With Or Without Martwick, School Board To Meet

Members of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education will meet Friday night — with or without Richard Martwick, Cook County educational service region superintendent.

"This meeting is at his request. We'll

'Not Opposed To Meeting,' Martwick Says

"I'm not opposed to meeting with Dist. 54 Board of Education members, but I will not attend the meeting the district scheduled in its offices Friday," said Richard Martwick, superintendent of the Cook County Educational Service Region.

Martwick said Wednesday the reason he insisted on meeting in his Chicago office instead of Schaumburg to discuss the district's support of legislation to establish a separate educational service region is a "practical one."

"My staff and our records are here in the Grand Avenue offices. Even with the short notice of a request to meet this Friday I could have substantiated what our region does for the district," said Martwick.

"However, their insistence that I come to Schaumburg means the gathering of all these materials and removing them from our offices."

"To demonstrate my intention to serve Dist. 54's needs I am willing at a later date to come to their district. However I must have time to gather the region's resources and will contact the superintendent at Dist. 54 in the near future to arrange a meeting."

"At that meeting I will be willing to not only discuss the present and past services of our county region offices but will talk about the district's future needs," said Martwick.

Name Mrs. Hoffman To Environment Unit

Mrs. Sharon Hoffman of 314 Bode Rd., Hoffman Estates, is a new appointee to the Village Environmental Committee.

Mrs. Diane Jensen, board trustee and committee chairman, said Mrs. Hoffman writes a weekly column in the Barrington Press about natural gardening and living.

Mrs. Hoffman has four years of direct experience in organic gardening and soil improvement, and taught a course on natural gardening for the Dundee Park District.

Mrs. Jensen added the new committee member has indicated a desire to work for the betterment of the world through personal contact with people in an educative or informal process, and is interested in anti-pollution activities and living.

be here and he's certainly invited," said board member Donnie Rudd. The purpose of the conference is to discuss a resolution proposed by Rudd, and endorsed by the school board, which calls for establishment of more than one educational service region in Cook County.

As chairman of the Dist. 54 legislative committee, Rudd plans to submit the resolution at the November annual conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB). He hopes IASB will support legislation permitting residents to decide, by general referendum, if they wish to be a service region or an educational cooperative.

Presently, Martwick's office, formerly the Cook County Education Office, is the sole education service region in the county and the largest in Illinois. It has jurisdiction over 145 school districts.

Should Rudd's proposal eventually become law, Dist. 54 and nine other Northwest suburban school districts which comprise the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), could form their own service region and become independent of Martwick's control. Until last month, Dist. 54 was a member of NEC, a consortium of school districts serving a four-township area in Northwest Cook County.

RUDD FEELS the present educational service region is too large to be responsible, but has stressed he does not favor formation of a "super district."

However, Martwick has apparently interpreted Rudd's resolution as criticism of his office and the services provided by the region. He has expressed a willingness to meet with Dist. 54 but insists the meeting be held in his Chicago office.

In a discussion with legislative committee members this week, Rudd emphasized his idea of an independent service region as educationally sound and not as a "political question," as Martwick has charged.

"In letters he has sent to us, he says if we tell him what his office is not doing, they will make certain it gets done. That is not our intention nor have we ever criticized his office," said Rudd.

However, Rudd maintains many of the benefits offered by the service region are now being locally provided, including electronic data processing and mass purchasing. Both are available to the district through NEC.

Rudd's resolution notes the action to form a service region must come from five or more school districts representing a combined total of 50,000 or more students. He said, however, the numbers of districts and students were arbitrarily chosen and could be revised.

Regarding Friday's meeting, Rudd said board members will be discussing the resolution in preparation for IASB submission.

"I don't particularly see the need for a meeting, but if Martwick wants to meet with us as he has requested, we will be pleased to have him present," he added.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg. The discussion will be open to the public.

ENDANGERED ANIMALS? ... This is what a Shopping Center. Officials from the village and cause flooding, and a large oil spill on one side of the lake.

Flooding Linked To Death Of Waterfowl

Animals Endangered At Shop Center

Concern over the safety of animals at the Town Square Shopping Center game preserve has been voiced by a Schaumburg resident who helps maintain the area.

The installation of a choke pipe on the outlet of the lake contributed to the death of the three waterfowl Monday, said Al Schur.

The pipe was installed to reduce the flow of water from the lake in accordance with regulations of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Schur fears the area, located adjacent to the shopping center near the intersection of Schaumburg and Roselle roads, will become a disaster area if heavy rains flood the lake.

"But the animals are in no jeopardy," said Joe Zgonina, Schaumburg's village engineer. He added the choke pipe had been planned all along and that the village and the MSD had inspected the project and approved it.

"The waterfowl must have some dry land to stand on or else they will become waterlogged and drown," Schur said. He said the entire fenced area was flooded Monday.

Beside a number of ducks and geese, two deer, several goats and two peacocks also inhabit the area.

In addition to the choke pipe, workmen on the project did not replace an iron grate used to keep the animals away from the outlet pipe. The absence of the grate caused the drowning of at least one duck, said Schur. The grate had been replaced by yesterday.

IT ALSO APPEARED that a large amount of oil, possibly from the lubrication of a heavy piece of equipment, washed into the lake with rain Tuesday. A large slick formed, and by Wednesday the oil covered a major portion of the lake's shoreline.

Representatives of the village's health department said they would investigate the oil spillage.

According to Zgonina, the project was handled by Rossetti Contracting Co. of Rolling Meadows.

MSD Trustee Abe Eiserman said he was unaware of any potential danger to animals and did not know there was a game preserve there.

A spokesman for his office said yesterday an investigation into the project would begin immediately.

Swimmers Promote Friday Water Show

Staff and members of various swim groups of the Schaumburg Park District will begin a marathon 24-hour swim at noon today to publicize the district's water show Friday evening.

Groups of swimmers will swim in 30-minute shifts at Atcher Pool until noon Friday in an effort to attract attention for the presentation of "Everything Is Beautiful," which is the theme of the annual show.

Synchronized swimming, water ballet and several comedy water routines, plus a water basketball game are planned for the show.

The show will begin at 8 p.m. at the Atcher Pool, 700 S. Springguth Rd. Tickets for the show will cost 50 cents. They will be available at the pool daily or on the night of the show.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Democratic National Committee comprised a budding struggle over party control in a spirit of campaign unity, but left open the real possibility of a drastic overhaul of party leadership in the event of election defeat in November.

Campaigning together for the first time, George McGovern and his running mate, Sargent Shriver, promised to work for quick approval of revenue sharing.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 2-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

State Supreme Court To Review School Funding Issue

by WANDALYN RICE
Last March, the Cook County Board of School Trustees should have had an election — but nobody came.
No one filed petitions for the two vacancies that were to be filled during the regular primary election. As a result, no ballots were prepared and no election was held.
The board of county school trustees has seven members and is responsible for ruling on annexations and boundary changes proposed by existing school districts and on petitions to form new school districts.

If any dual school districts (districts with elementary and high schools in separate systems) want to consolidate into a unit district, their petitions must go to the county school trustees.
County Supt. Richard Martwick said yesterday the remaining members of the board have asked for an opinion on how to fill the two vacancies from the Illinois Attorney General.

"IT'S BEEN A couple of months since we asked for the opinion," Martwick said, "and we have not received it." He said the two board members who had planned to retire after the election have remained on the board while awaiting the opinion.

Once the opinion is handed down by the attorney general, Martwick said, the board will probably either appoint two new members or allow the two former members to continue to serve until the next election.

If the board is told to appoint new members, Martwick said, it will probably ask for applicants for the job and for recommendations from organizations like the Illinois Association of School Boards.

Members of the board of school trustees serve without pay.
Even though the board's status is uncertain now because no opinion has been presented on the status of the former members, Martwick said, "I don't anticipate any problems with any decisions that might be made by the board. The two members have agreed to serve as long as necessary."

The two whose terms expired in April are Elsie Jacobson, the board president from Oak Park; and James W. Dugdale of Evanston.

Judge Rules On Investing Funds

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has ruled Cook County Treas. Bernard J. Korzen cannot legally invest $13 million in private funds held by his office.

Judge John C. Fitzgerald dismissed a suit filed by law partners Robert Sklodowski of Park Ridge and Lawrence Gabriele of Mount Prospect which had sought to force Korzen and Circuit Court Clerk Matthew Danaher to deposit the funds in interest-bearing bank accounts.

The suit filed by Sklodowski — a Republican currently in an election race with Danaher — arose after charges last spring from the Better Government Association about the funds held by Korzen's office.

Korzen maintained the court ruled funds held in the treasurer's office including money awarded for the condemnation of private land, money deposited by the probate court, and returnable bond money are legally private funds.

KORZEN SAID yesterday the court findings sustained his position that he cannot legally invest the private funds.

More than $151 million in public funds held by Korzen's office is currently in interest-bearing accounts, he said.

Korzen says he will welcome an anticipated appeal of the decision so a legal precedent may be set in the case for future years.

The charges the county was losing interest by not investing the condemnation, probate and bail bond money came at the same time as charges that county funds in the non-interest bearing accounts had been deposited in banks which had strong political connections.

Forest View Choir Performance Tonight Canceled

A choir performance scheduled tonight at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights has been canceled.

Jerry Swanson, choir director, announced yesterday the performance had to be canceled and will not be rescheduled. The performance was originally scheduled as a culmination to the high school's summer choir program.

Await Scott Opinion On Filling Posts

Two suits calling for at least a 51 per cent state contribution to local school budgets are expected to be reviewed by the Illinois Supreme Court as early as October.

One suit, filed jointly by Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase and Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick, and another, filed by Chicago Board of Education member Gerald L. Scharboro, were dismissed by Circuit Court Judge Edward Egan last month.

Illinois Supreme Court Judge Thomas Kluczynski has agreed to review the three plaintiffs' cases. The cases were appealed to the Illinois Appellate Court with a motion for review in the supreme court.

The suits were filed on the basis of a clause in the new Illinois Constitution which states: education is the "primary responsibility" of the state. The plaintiffs contend the clause requires the state to provide at least 51 per cent of local school funds.

JUDGE EGAN ruled the clause does not order the state to provide 51 per cent funding. Egan did not give cause for his decision, nor did he say what is the state's financial responsibility.

The suit is a local outgrowth of nationwide legal action challenging the constitutionality of the present system of school finance. The action was initiated by a California Supreme Court decision which said it is unconstitutional to place the burden of school budgets on local property taxes. A similar case in Texas is now before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Currently, Illinois school districts on the average receive less than one third of their revenue from the state and more than half from local homeowners. Under this system, the district with the most valuable property receives the most revenue and the child in the wealthiest district theoretically receives the best education.

While the Blase-Martwick-Scharboro litigation deals primarily with the Constitution, a separate suit filed by Martwick attacks the question of the property tax. Still pending in the U.S. District Court, Martwick's suit says reliance on local property tax is inequitable and unconstitutional. A decision is not expected from the federal court until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the tax question.

Scharboro said the Texas case does not affect the case before the Illinois Supreme Court because the latter deals only with the state constitution.

Start Contempt Proceedings Against Panther Survivor

by PAMELA REEVES

A judge started contempt of court proceedings Wednesday against a survivor of the 1969 police raid on a Black Panther apartment who refused to testify at the trial of Cook County State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan.

Blair Anderson, 20, one of seven Panthers who survived the Dec. 4, 1969, police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed, also refused to give any reasons for not testifying.

"If I stated my reason, that would be just as harmful to me as if I agreed to testify," Anderson told Circuit Court Judge Philip J. Romiti.

Anderson was allowed to consult an attorney after his initial refusal, but he continued to refuse to talk after the conference. He said he had not informed the attorney of his decision, and refused to change his mind even after Romiti ordered him to testify.

Romiti said since Anderson refused without a stated reason, "I think it's obviously in direct contempt of the court and I think that the proper documents be prepared."

ANDERSON WAS taken back to the Cook County Jail, where he is currently awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery and aggravated kidnapping stemming from an incident in May, 1971.

Prosecution attorneys said Anderson's refusal may be due to a statement which he allegedly made about the raid and which was discovered July 22 in the files of a Black Panther attorney.

In the statement, Anderson is quoted as saying he had a shotgun in his hands the morning of the raid, and he accuses another Panther of firing a gun at police during the raid.

The statement was one of four which the Panthers purportedly gave to their attorneys about two weeks after the raid and which were discovered accidentally last month by a prosecution attorney who was looking through a Black Panther attorney's files for other evidence.

ROMITI HAS not ruled on the authenticity of the statements, which contradict testimony the Panthers gave to a county grand jury. That jury later indicted Hanrahan and 13 other law enforcement officers on charges of conspiring to block prosecution of the raiding policemen by covering up evidence and planting false evidence.

Raid survivors Harold Bell, Branda Harris and Louis Truelock, who also purportedly made statements admitting they handled weapons during the raid, are also scheduled to testify.

Deborah Johnson, who was sleeping next to Hampton during the raid, finished testimony Wednesday morning, and the rest of the day was spent mostly in long recesses because Bell and Harris, the next prosecution witnesses scheduled, did not show up in court.

Atcher Announces Appointment

Ledgerwood New Trustee

The appointment of Denis J. Ledgerwood to the Schaumburg Village Board of Trustees was confirmed Tuesday. His appointment fills a vacancy created by the resignation of Jack Larsen Aug. 1.

In announcing the appointment, Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher said Ledgerwood is the type of man who "does not ask questions, just does the job."

He will serve until the village election in April. Ledgerwood has been active in civic affairs for about six years, serving on a variety of committees.

He is a charter member of the Schaumburg Jaycees. He also has been a member of the board of health, clean environment committee and has been serving as chairman of the airport study committee.

In addition to Ledgerwood's appointment, Atcher also announced that Dr. Betty Embysk would be appointed to the position on the board of health which was formerly held by Ledgerwood.

IN OTHER ACTION at Tuesday's meeting, the board gave first reading approval to a tax levy ordinance, which Atcher said would be abated before the end of the year. Atcher said the ordinance was introduced because of legislation pending in the Illinois General Assembly which would freeze tax rates for the next three years.

Presently, Schaumburg has no tax, but Atcher said if the village found it needed additional revenue in the future the tax levy would have to be on the books this year. Without a recorded levy the village would not be able to collect a tax if the legislation is approved.

The board also directed Village Atty. Jack Siegal to prepare an ordinance allowing the construction of an elaborate car wash facility at Mall Drive and Higgins Road.

The car wash, which would be the first to be opened in Schaumburg, will be operated by the Shell Oil Co.

They also heard an extensive discussion on flooding problems in a number of areas in the village.

Village Administrator John Coste said the public works department has put in a lot of time and effort investigating the flooding problems in the Cabot Lane area.

He said the problem is very complex and much more investigation is needed before any recommendation can be made to solve the problem.

The board also asked Coste to continue to explore remedies for a section of Landcer Park which also has had flooding problems.

The board passed a resolution requesting state and federal agencies to make residents of the village eligible to purchase a federally assisted flood insurance program. The resolution was necessary before the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs and the Department of Housing and Urban Development could declare the area eligible.

When the necessary procedures are completed, residents can purchase the insurance through any insurance company.

K. Of C. Carnival Opens On Thursday

A 4-day carnival opens today under the sponsorship of the Knights of Columbus.

The Knights from Bartlett, Hanover Park, Schaumburg and Streamwood will conduct the carnival today and Friday from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. at Streamwood Shopping Center on Bartlett road.

Featured will be eight rides and a number of game booths, including a dunk tank.

Suburban Bank Extends Hours

Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates is now offering extended hours of drive-in banking services for its customers.

The $10 million bank at 1100 N. Roselle Rd. will offer drive-in service from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Fridays and from 9 a.m. till noon on Saturdays.

President Lee L. Morrison announced further changes in the lobby hours, making full bank services available between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays and 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

Two Carnivals Will Benefit Dystrophy

Two neighborhood carnivals this Saturday will benefit research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

A carnival at 144 Bedford Rd., Hoffman Estates, is being sponsored by Sean Henning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henning, from 1 to 5 p.m. Helping him organize the games and refreshment stands are Chris, Mike and Colleen Henning; Billy and Mary Beth Schnecke; Tina, Diane and Ritchie Krick, and Julie, Kathy and Christ Dutton.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. James Kaufman will sponsor an all-day carnival beginning 10 a.m. on Saturday at 904 Knightsbridge Lane.

School Board Out To Lunch

When Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 Board of Education members meet at 7 p.m. Sept. 7 for the district's first dinner session, they will be seated in the Helen Keller Junior High School cafeteria.

Board Pres. Mrs. Dianne Hart invited the press and board members to join her at dinner on that date, but added it was really going to be a luncheon.

The Mass Feeding Corp. will serve a typical students' school lunch to those present. The board recently approved a three-year contract with MFC to provide hot lunches for the junior high school students at 50 cents a lunch.

"Since we have approved a contract that will provide youngsters with a hot lunch for three years, the least we can do is sample it," said Mrs. Hart as she answered board members' groans.

The board will meet in regular session at 8 p.m. in the Keller learning center after the meal.

Participation In Municipal Blood Plan Here Urged

Dr. Earl Suckow, chairman of the North Suburban Blood Center, appeared before the Hoffman Estates board of trustees Monday to urge the village participation in municipal blood donor plan.

Suckow has been invited to attend the next Thursday's meeting of the village board of health at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 1200 Gannon Dr., to explain the program further.

At Monday's session, Suckow said the agency uses only volunteer blood donations and is striving to maintain a program that would eliminate paid blood donations. He added that pending legislation will help bring about this change.

Suckow talked about a plan that would require four per cent of the village population to donate blood, thus covering the whole population in case of blood replacement need.

He added that the blood would be replaced at no cost. However, there would be a $23 per pint charge for laboratory costs.

The village would be required to provide, develop and maintain a donor recruitment program and notify the agency when villagers need blood replacement.

TRUSTEE VIRGINIA Hayter told Dr. Suckow the village and groups within the village have conducted numerous blood drives and asked him if he was aware of the time-consuming efforts such a program entailed. Others in the audience worried that the agency's efforts would negate programs they established.

The doctor said he was not fighting other blood programs, but was championing the efforts of the agency he represented, a strictly volunteer donor program.

Also discussed was flooding in Parcel "A," east of Roselle Road. Residents wanted to know what village officials had learned in a recent conference on flooding with the Illinois Department of Transportation.

John Hossack, director of public works, said the highway department is attempting to control flooding at the Higgins and Roselle intersections and in the Parcel "A."

He said it is a difficult task because the area has always been a flood area. Residents in the audience complained that flooding has been more severe since the transportation department put in the Higgins Road improvements. They fear Golf Road work will add to the problem, they said.

Hossack said it is estimated it could cost $500,000 to solve the flooding in the area and the effort would have to be area wide, involving neighboring villages.

"If not, then the solution to Hoffman Estates' problem could cause a flooding problem somewhere else," he warned.

The officials pledged continued efforts to reach a solution and the residents urged stronger tactics in dealing with the highway department.

Parks To Offer Flag Football

Flag football, a non-contact version of the fall sport, will be offered this year by the Hoffman Estate Park District for the first time.

The program will be open to fifth and sixth grade boys. Rules of the sport are similar to tackle football, except that to stop an offensive player with the ball, the defense must pull a flag from the offensive player's belt. No tackling is involved.

Three weeks of football fundamentals will be offered along with games.

An organizational meeting for the program will be held at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 9 at Voegel Park. A $5 fee will be charged. Persons can register for the program at the park district's offices, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, after Sept. 1.

Jaycees Answer Challenge Of River Raft Race

Schaumburg Jaycees will find themselves up the river next month.

The Jaycee chapter has accepted a challenge to enter the first State-Wide River Raft Race to be held Sept. 9 on a 4-mile stretch of the Kankakee River.

The local entry is being sponsored by Homestead Carpet of Schaumburg.

Activities are being coordinated by the Chicago and Kankakee Jaycees. Entries are limited to row boats covered with plywood decks. With motors outlawed, power will be limited to paddles.

Schaumburg Jaycees are asking for additional help in the loan of two row boats 12 to 16 foot long. They promise to return boats to donors following the race.

Donors may reach Red Turner, Jaycee project chairman and raft captain, at 529-8807.

clarified their differences Tuesday night, but made little progress toward settling their five-month-old contract dispute.

By the end of the two-hour meeting, the 24th in the five months of bargaining, representatives of the Dist. 211 Education Association had modified their proposal slightly but the two sides had reached no significant agreements.

The major issue separating the two sides is the question of whether to include specific guarantees on a number of "working conditions" in the contract. The two sides have not yet discussed salary proposals.

The teachers want contractual guarantees on assignment and evaluation of teachers, curriculum planning, and procedures for filling vacancies, transferring and firing teachers.

THE BOARD, on the other hand, has offered to form joint committees with the association to discuss the question of working conditions, but refuses to put guarantees in the contract.

Board member Robert Seger, head of the board negotiation team, said the board believes the committees will provide teachers a voice in district policies but will not open the matters to formal grievance.

Seger said, "We thought the committees would satisfactorily handle problems the same way we have handled them in the past. You are saying board policy doesn't work in the district. What are you interested in, solving problems or filing grievances?"

Ron Avery, chief negotiator for the association, replied that "grievances provide a way to solve problems. We feel that if you and we can reach agreement, we ought to be able to put it in a contract with a procedure to resolve problems that arise. A contract is a business-like procedure."

Another point of the dispute, which arose as the two sides convened, was the presence with the association bargaining team of David Tomchek, a regional representative for the Illinois Education Association (IEA). The Dist. 211 association is an affiliate of IEA.

SEGER SAID, the board objects to the fact Tomchek sits with the association team because "We feel this is an intrusion by a professional unionist. From what I have seen you are not here as a visitor or an observer but to take over the direction of these negotiations."

Tomchek first attended a bargaining meeting last week.

Seger added that Tomchek is not primarily interested in the welfare of Dist. 211, but "is responsible to the state union."

Avery said Tomchek has been invited into the talks by the association and added that members of the association pay his salary through their dues to the IEA.

"He is accountable to us directly because if we do not want him here, we can ask him to leave," he said.

At the end of the session, following a private caucus with Tomchek and other members of the association team, Avery announced he was modifying the teachers contract proposal by dropping a provision that would open board policies to grievance procedures.

Avery said, "We feel this is a major move in your (the board's) direction. We understand that you are concerned about grievances so we only want to open those things that are in the contract to grievances."

The board team said it will study the proposal. Another meeting was called for Monday at 8 p.m.

Officials Study Bids On Civic Center Phase

Architects and Schaumburg village officials will study several bids received Tuesday for construction of Phase I of the village's civic center.

Preliminary examination of the eight bids received by the village indicated M.B. Christensen Construction Co. of Chicago and Pritscher and Erbach Inc. of Arlington Heights were the "apparent low bidders," according to architect Al Eichsteadt. He said both bids appear to be in the $680,000 range.

All of the other bids appeared to be well over $700,000. But each contained a number of alternates and village officials will take some time to study them to determine which is actually the lowest.

Eichsteadt will meet with members of the Schaumburg Development Committee Monday in an effort to make a recommendation that can be presented to the village board Tuesday.

"We could be able to make a recommendation next week," Eichsteadt told the board Tuesday. He said he will contact the various bidders to discuss bids made on all the alternates to the main bid.

THE ARCHITECT ADMITTED all of the bids were more than the $638,000 estimated cost of the structure.

Both of the firms considered to be apparent low bidders said they could complete the work in 360 consecutive days after the project commences.

Other bidders listed completion ranging from 330 days to 450 consecutive days.

The total base bids of the eight firms were M. B. Christensen Co., $687,940; Pritscher and Erbach, Inc., $689,000; Norman Bullerman, $708,059; Slezak Construction Co., $731,867; Kiendl Construction Co., $749,870; R. L. Roth, $750,115; Ranke-Cimo Assoc., Inc., $751,000; Salburg and Sullivan, $765,359; and Egyptian Construction, $764,250.

I Intend To Take Crane To Task, Says Ed Frank

There will be a day, says Ed Frank, when voters of the 12th Congressional District will elect a Democrat to represent them in the U.S. Congress.

Frank, an advertising executive who moved to Hoffman Estates from New Jersey 10 years ago, obviously has little illusion that that day will be Nov. 7, 1972.

Frank, the Democratic congressional candidate against U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane in the new district which includes Wheeling, Barrington, Hanover and Schaumburg townships, intends however to establish a base on Nov. 7 from which a firm threat to Crane can be launched two years hence.

"My opponent is looking for a landslide victory," says Frank, "which he hopes will catapult him into the national limelight. He is relying on the hope that independent voters will write off the 12th District as solid Republican territory."

FRANK APPARENTLY was referring to a published memo from Crane's office which outlined a campaign plan to make Crane a runaway victor in his district, outpolling all Republicans from President Nixon to local legislative candidates.

Frank's counterstrategy will be to mobilize the independent voters against the conservative Crane on the basis of his record in office.

"I intend to take Phil Crane to task for his entire voting record," he declares. The first-time candidate believes that the independent vote in the 12th District has been greatly underestimated, and he adds that "the 18-year-old vote is an unknown factor."

His mobilization drive is admittedly short on a basic fuel, money. But Frank believes that an intensive campaign effort will gradually correct that deficiency.

A number of Democratic candidates have reported that money sources, already in short supply, dried up completely during the fiasco of the removal of Sen. Thomas Eagleton from the No. 2 spot on the national Democratic ticket.

BUT, SAYS Frank, "Once the people in the 12th District know that funds are needed for a potential winner" against Crane, the funds will begin to come in. In the meantime, Frank intends to operate out-of-pocket, hand-carrying his message on what he considers to be five basic issues in the 1972 campaign.

The issues, as he sees them:

—Vietnam. ("Nixon is trying hard to end the war as an issue by November.")

—The economy. ("What has Phil Crane done to reduce the ever-increasing consumer-price index? To reduce prices?")

—Drug abuse. ("Swift retribution to pushers... compassion for drug users.")

—National Health Care (He's for it, with emphasis on greater outpatient treatment.)

—Education. ("It is the right of every child to expect quality education.")

3 Candidates, All Female, Seek Mayor's Post In New Jersey Town

by DAVID P. FRANKS

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — Anyone in New Brunswick who doesn't want to vote for a woman for mayor Nov. 7 can just stay home. There are three women candidates for the job. No men.

"All those people, men and women, who under ordinary circumstances would not vote for a woman will have to pick from one of the three," said Eva Shapiro, the Republican candidate.

"That is an advantage, allowing the candidates to focus more on the issues rather than 'red herrings' — such as being women."

Like Mrs. Shapiro, Democratic candidate Jean Walling and Independent Emily Altman agree that the main issue in this middleclass township of 30,000 concerns the community's living conditions and that women are best fit to deal with them.

WOMEN LIVE much more in and with the community," Mrs. Walling said. Since the men commute outside the town to their jobs each day, they are not as familiar with or involved in the fabric of the community, she contends. Thus women are more sensitive to community needs and problems.

"It's not a case of women's lib, but a using of talent of all people the best possible way," added Mrs. Walling.

All three women speak of the need to upgrade the "quality of life" in the community, which sits in the heart of New Jersey's industrial belt. Each is a veteran of battles against encroachments on that quality, fights for better zoning, for better performance by industry, against a planned turnpike expansion that would have destroyed some homes and much tranquility.

Mrs. Altman, 50-year-old chairman of the sociology department at Douglass College of Rutgers University, said there is significance in having an all-woman mayoral race.

She pointed out that last year an effort by women to put themselves on various town governing boards met with little success. Her Republican opponent is the first and only woman elected to the township council.

The mayor's term is four years, a $3,500-a-year part-time job that requires nearly full-time effort.

THE CURRENT professional administrator, hired by the township, is a male, but only Dr. Altman feels strongly about replacing him with a woman, "to take advantage of women's sensibilities on a local level."

Mrs. Walling, a 50-year-old mother of five sons, won her primary election this spring against the regular Democratic nominee by a two-to-one margin.

Building her campaign on her 15 years as a town resident and the experience of her slate, she took advantage of the strong independent electorate with a youth-oriented, McGovern-type approach.

"Independents put us into office, really," she said, pointing to the 7,000 voters who cast ballots in the primaries in a town with only 17,000 registered voters.

Councilwoman Shapiro, a former caseworker for the Bureau of Children's Service in New Brunswick beat incumbent Mayor Joseph Mannon for her party's nomination by 500 votes.

"I think I lent credence by my performance" on the council, she said. "I view my campaign as the people's responding to the issues and my record, rather than just my being a woman."

All three women agree that the mayor must take a strong hand in revamping the township's master plan for growth, and in studying its problems of transportation, recreation and schooling.

But no matter which woman wins, they all agree with Dr. Altman's statement that the "township cannot lose in this election."

Goin' Down The Road With Col. Stein

by KEN KOZAK

Here I am, an old man in a dry month,
Being read to by a boy, waiting for rain.

—T.S. Eliot

Col. Fred Stein sits propped in a Lutheran General Hospital charity bed, snow white hair exploding like lightning from a thin, red face, looking slightly mad, like Neptune rising from the foamy billows of the bedsheets.

He pushes the remains of the mid-day institutional meal away from his bare, spare chest, chews a last mouthful of food and a first thought, studies his audience of one briefly and begins to pontificate.

The audience does not realize that in the next two hours he will be dragged through one man's emotional meat grinder as the conversation spastically jumps from man's inhumanity to man, to world humanism, to heartbreak over a lost dog, to the criminality of the Vatican, to Americanism, superpatriotism, chauvinism, conspiracy, poetry and death.

Feeling like a hitchhiker on a pathetic, desperate ego trip. A hundred miles an hour to make up for lost time. Goin' down the road, feelin' sad, no sad.

AND AS THE journey hurtles faster, crazily you begin to see visions of Wonderland, flashbacks of the Mad Tea Party.

But you are pulled up short at a precipice as the Colonel suddenly stops, raises a paper cup of water in salute and chortles, "To General Lee."

Yes, of course, and to General Grant, too.

"Like hell! To Stonewall Jackson!"

Look back over your shoulder. Where have you been? Nowhere. What have you seen? Nothing. Just amplified visions of the world of Col. Fred Stein. Like trying to make sense from Sanskrit.

Who is he?

An escapee — although he says he's been driven away — from Chicago's Skid Row, and he's made the same pilgrimage to the suburbs that thousands have made seeking the good life and the American Dream Pot of Gold.

He does his searching in garbage bins behind supermarkets. Sleeps in a 1963 Peugeot sedan behind a gas station in Des Plaines. Takes the mail that never comes at the Northwest Police Academy, address Arlington Heights police station. Writes super-patriot poetry. Scrooges. He is 70 years old.

BUT WHO IS HE?

In his own words — words printed with the patriotic poems he used to talk people into reproducing free — he is "America's Heritage Poet," providing "education in ethics, civic duty and patriotism for mental, moral and national health Non-profit.

... honored by the United States Air Force ... elected to the Hall of Fame ... Northwest Police Chief's Association voted the Colonel its Honorary Chief of Police ... honorary firefighter of the United States and Canada.

"For many years he has recorded these inspiring one-minute readings over long-distance phone to many of the nation's radio and TV stations and national networks. Wherever there's violence, the Colonel phones that city's radio stations, records support for police, firemen, National Guard, etc., and debunks dissident propaganda."

Col. Fred Stein and his now-missing dog, Ranger.

Wherever he goes he carries with him his poems and his files, testaments of his life. He has letters from dignitaries. From Mayor Daley, for example, congratulating him on being named to the Chicago Hall of Fame. He has been photographed with astronauts, foreign leaders and poets.

But he also says he was once a rich man, sailed a 45-foot yacht in Lake Michigan, lived in the best suite of rooms in the old Sherman Hotel, had a small inheritance. Lost it all 15 years ago trying to become a multimillionaire.

THE STORIES may be true, yet when the Colonel tells them, his eyes darting sidly sidward to check the impact of his tale, you may wonder. It's hard to accept a simple statement like "I was born on the Oklahoma-Arkansas border," without wanting immediately to run to a map and see if the states do have a common boundary.

In the Colonel's own words, many people seem to feel his stories and his calling are something more than acceptable suburban bill of fare.

"They think I'm a goof," he says.

A goof? You mean, as in "a nut?"

"Yes."

Who thinks that?

"The people who are harassing me. trying to shut me up."

And he lists people, people he feels are trying to stop him from helping this country save itself from itself. People, he says, who have smashed in the windows and doors on the two Peugeots he keeps behind that Des Plaines gas station. People who throw rocks and firecrackers at his dog Ranger. People who, he thinks, have murdered Ranger.

Ranger has not been seen in 10 weeks.

That ostensibly is why the Colonel called the newspaper last week. To get help finding his dog, a half-breed that Stein says he rescued three years ago from people who "threw scalding water on him."

His poetic search for America has temporarily ground to a halt as he waits in bed for an old man's pain to pass.

HE IS WAITING for his strength to return. He is waiting for Ranger to return. When he is ready, he says, he will put his poems, letters, photographs, in a Dodge van that was given to him one day — another of the fantastic things that have happened to him — and tour the country, preaching Americanism to high school students. That's what he says.

He also says he should have taken the job offered to him several years ago. He says he was sought out to be a ghost-writer for H. L. Hunt, the Texas billionaire. He turned it down because, he said, at the time he would have had to listen to Hunt. He wanted to build up more influence so Hunt would listen to him.

He will continue to fight, he says, for the World Humanist Movement and against the "criminality" of the Vatican, which he calls the arch-criminal of the world.

Yet he also talks about donating his life to put mercy-killing or euthanasia to a test case in the courts. He says a man should be able to die peacefully.

He talks sadly about the fact that he has been giving his poems away for years and never once has he had an inkling of appreciation.

He leans back in his hospital bed and recites from the work of Dr. Albert Schweitzer and a poem — his own — called "The Ultimate Refuge." It is about dying.

And he says, "I think I know what's right and I gotta do it."

Outside it is another dry day. And there is not a hint of rain in the world.

The Doctor Says:

Water Diabetes Symptoms Explained

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you give me any information on water diabetes. I never heard of it until recently (I have the regular diabetes) and I am very interested. Does it require the same diet as the regular diabetes or a different one?

Dear Reader — It's an entirely different disease from "sugar diabetes." The kind of diabetes I presume you have is related to insufficient insulin in the pancreas and a high level of blood sugar. The usual diabetic, unless the disease is controlled, loses a lot of sugar in the urine. To flush out this excess sugar the person will pass a lot of water. To replace the water loss he has to drink a lot of water. Thus the typical uncontrolled diabetic, whose disease is sufficiently advanced, drinks lots of water and passes large volumes of urine frequently. These two characteristics are similar to water diabetes.

The person with water diabetes has a defect in a portion of the pituitary gland that rests just beneath the brain. The gland normally produces hormone which prevents too much water from being passed by the kidneys. If insufficient amounts of this hormone are produced, then the usual control to prevent passing too much water from the kidney is lost. So individuals with this defect will pass large volumes of urine frequently. They will also replace their water loss by drinking large amounts of water. The similarity to "sugar diabetes" ends there since it is not related to sugar in any way. As you would expect from the above explanation, these individuals do not have to go on a diabetic diet in terms of carbohydrate control nor are they helped with insulin or any other such medicines commonly used in patients with sugar diabetes. Usually they are given medications that will help the kidney control the water output.

HERE IS AN interesting problem. There has been a lot of publicity in recent years about the dyslexic child, who has difficulty in reading and writing. There is an opposite disorder, the hyperlexic child. These children are compulsive readers and are able to read without ever being taught to do so. Two-year-old youngsters reading voluminous material have been reported. Despite their great facility in reading without being instructed, they are retarded and are said to have brain damage. They don't just read children's books. They read newspapers and novels. How in the world do they ever develop this super capacity to read without instruction? Do they inherit their reading capacity? All of this suggests that there may be more to inherited knowledge than has been suspected. It's a very rare disorder, but in a way it's refreshing. It's good to know that there are still a lot of interesting facets of life to be solved.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

One way to win any bridge event is to overbid and then make your contract. Bobby Goldman's one-club opening was just above a minimum. West's diamond overcall was based on a six-card suit and general optimism. Nancy Alpaugh's double was one of those newfangled negative doubles for takeout. East's redouble showed strength and Bobby and Nancy overbid to four hearts.

The contract is a horror. There are four losing tricks, plus all sorts of handling charges, but watch what happened.

East cashed his top diamonds and led a third. This gave Bobby a chance to discard a losing spade and ruff in dummy.

A club was led from dummy and West plunked his ace right on Bobby's jack. This represented mistake number two by the defense. The third diamond lead gave Bobby a chance to get rid of a spade loser. This rush to take the ace made it possible for Bobby to pull trumps and score his clubs.

West actually led a fourth diamond. Bobby ruffed in dummy. East could have helped out by overruffing, but East discarded the queen of clubs. Bobby was ready. He played dummy's king of trumps; finessed against the jack; drew

Collecting Coins

On April 2, 1972, Congress passed the first U.S. coinage act. The value of a silver dollar was to be in an exact ratio with that of the Spanish Milled dollar then current as legal tender in most civilized countries of the world. The half-dollar, quarter-dollar, dime and half-dime were to be in an exact proportion to their fractional part of the dollar.

Section 10 designated the design requirements for each coin in each denomination, but while this section was specific regarding the device or emblem, it failed to provide for the visual value on gold and silver coins. Only the copper pieces were to be identified by denomination:

SECTION 10: And be it further enacted that upon the said coins respectively there shall be the following devices and legends, namely: Upon one side of each of the said coins there shall be the impression emblematic of Liberty and the year of the coinage, and upon the reverse of each gold and silver coin there shall be the figure or representation of an eagle with this inscription: "United States of America," and upon the reverse of each of the copper coins there shall be an inscription which shall express the denomination of the piece, namely, cent or half-cent as the case may require."

THE ACT ASSUMED there would be less difficulty in recognizing the value of gold and silver coinage than there would be in distinguishing the difference between a cent and a half-cent.

The omission of value on all but copper coinage was corrected in Section 13 of the act of Jan. 18, 1837. It reads in part: "... and upon the reverse of each gold and silver coin, there shall be the figure or representation of an eagle with the inscription 'United States of America,' and a designation of the value of the coin, on the reverse of the Dime and Halfdime, cent and half-cent, the figure of the eagle shall be omitted."

Our first quarter-dollar was issued in 1796 and pretty much followed the same pattern as the early half-dimes and dimes. But someone on the Mint staff anticipated public confusion with the absence of a value on silver and gold coins, and production was stopped until 1804 when the designation "25C." was placed in radius below the new eagle.

IN 1838 THE denominational designate was changed again. This time to an abbreviated term "QUAR. DOL." Certainly prettier than 25 C but more confusing to those with limited or no schooling in the English language. Especially since the first 25-cent piece measured 1 1/8 inches in diameter; the second measured 1-1/16 inches and all issues after 1831 measured 15/16 of an inch.

The position of the arrows in the great seal on the reverse of the 1804 issue stirred still another dilemma. Heraldic protocol holds this to be an indication or preference for military conflict. So, in 1815 the wrong was righted to satisfy diplomatic critics, the arrows were transferred to the left talon and the sprig of laurel to the right talon.

School Board Lobbyist Reviews His Record

by BETSY BROOKER

With three bill passages tucked under his belt, Bill Henkel, lobbyist representing local school boards, predicts the January session of the legislature holds more promise for suburban school districts than ever before.

"We are going to go back to Springfield with more bills and better preparation," said Henkel. He predicts headway will be made in securing more state aid, releasing parochial, clarifying collective bargaining and establishing a state board of education.

The 1973 session will be Henkel's third stint as a lobbyist for the Educational Research and Development Assn. (EDRED). The coalition of 100 Lake and Cook County school districts was formed a year ago to create and propose legislation.

EDRED is primarily a school board-administrator lobbying group. The coalition's focus in the past has centered on securing more government funds while at the same time preserving local board control. Efforts also have been made to put a check on any government or teacher interference that threatens this local control.

In the spring session, for example, EDRED supported and won a boost in state aid for dual districts and a revision in suspension regulations benefiting school boards.

But more than support, EDRED has assumed a watchdog role to defeat what it considers detrimental legislation. Henkel said he took a stand against three bills last spring because they were "too political."

Opposing state appointments on two counts, Henkel fought against a bill that called for an appointed board of elections and another proposing an appointed study commission on collective bargaining. A third called for consolidation of state and local elections which Henkel said might tie school elections to political parties.

Reviewing the record, Henkel said his successful support and opposition was satisfactory considering the "unproductive nature" of the session. He said EDRED, as a new lobbying group, was able to both catch the ear of legislators and avoid outright confrontation with other lobbying groups.

The record should improve in the next session, says Henkel, not only because EDRED will benefit from past experience but also because a new, more liberal breed has been elected into the Legislature. Replacement of one-third of the legislators in both houses is expected to not only bring new names but also reshuffle political coalitions.

One of the most important projects slated for next year is a boost in the amount of state aid and a more equitable distribution of state aid. According to Henkel, "we will probably witness some drastic changes in the state school aid formula."

Local districts are also expected to support immediate establishment of a state board of education in preparation for the abolishment of the present state education office in 1974.

As for collective bargaining, Henkel said the school boards want to avoid any mandatory regulations calling for outside binding interference. In the past, EDRED has opposed collective bargaining legislation because "it was hastily contrived."

If parochial funds are frozen again, Henkel said party lines will be crossed in efforts to release it. Transcending political ties in the interest of education gains is a top priority, added the lobbyist.

Bill Henkel

Take A Walk Through Toyland Sunday

by LEA TONKIN

Proving that songwriters can't tell the truth all the time, area adults and children alike may take a stroll through Toyland this weekend.

Once you pass its borders, you can never return again, the song goes.

But the songwriter didn't count on the wave of nostalgia that's boosting the toy collecting market into the big time. For years, collectors of timeworn toys were outshone by stamp and coin enthusiasts and speculators.

But as more and more adults are bitten by the nostalgia bug, the search for favorite dolls and trains and comic books has increased. At least that's the opinion of collector Don Srenaski of Inverness, co-host for the Sunday, Aug. 13 Toy Collector's Festival in Rolling Meadows. The show will be held at the Holiday Inn from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission charge is $1 a person.

"WE ASSOCIATE happy times with the receiving of gifts when we were children, rather than playing with toys," says Srenaski. "Most people who are collectors look for the toys of their childhood era."

"A generation is all it takes for people to become interested," he adds. "When they go off to college, kids couldn't care less about their old toys. But parents should box them up and put them in the attic. When the children have grown up and have their own children, they want to go rummaging through the attic so they can find their old toys."

Prices of many toys have gone up considerably as more and more collectors come into the field, according to Srenaski.

naski. But he says any investment value in a collection of cast iron trucks or Tootsie Toys is a secondary, unintentional benefit.

Srenaski notes that the metal Tootsie Toys, which sold for a nickel in the 1930s, are sometimes priced today above the $100 mark. The company still produces the small cars, boats, trains and other toys.

ELECTRIC TRAINS, several doll collections, comic books, banks, matchbook toys, tin toys, wooden and glass items will be featured at the show. At least 40 displays will be featured. Participants from across the country will sell, display, trade or buy items at the show.

Several hundred visitors are expected at the show, Srenaski says. Experienced collectors may sometimes bring along a suitcase of their treasures for some informal trading.

A collector of cast iron toys, Srenaski is also a writer for the Antique Toy World magazine. He and his wife collect cast iron toys.

Displays of the Srenaski's toys will be featured at two presentations this year at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

Maryville Care Center

15 Lucky Boys Avoid Audy Home

by KATHERINE BOYCE

A lucky few teenage boys who have become wards of the court are being placed at a new temporary care center at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines, avoiding the usual stay at detention centers such as Chicago's Audy Home.

The new center, opened Aug. 1, is funded by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (IDCFS), and has facilities for 15 boys, according to Don Ferro, director of the temporary care program at Maryville.

In contrast to the prison-like environment of the detention home, Maryville's center has a living room, dining room, dormitory bedroom, kitchen and recreation room with pool table and phonograph.

MANY OF THE boys at the center, aged 12 to 16, formerly would have been put in a detention home to await placement in a children's home, in a foster home or return to their natural parents.

The new center provides up to 60 days of residential care for boys who have been taken from parents by the courts. Some of the boys eventually become residents of Maryville.

While living at Maryville, the boys are given a medical examination, psychological and psychiatric evaluation, as well as a social study of the child's development and family life. The results of these tests are given to the IDCFS caseworker to aid in the child's placement. Each boy is permitted to see his own file and can add his own comments, said Ferro.

"The major thrust of the center services is to mobilize the child, family and involved agencies toward resolving the problems which lead to placement and to return the child to his family as early as possible," said Ferro.

The center accepts children referred to it by the IDCFS 24 hours a day if space is available. The only boys who are refused are those who are severely retarded, actively psychotic, suicidal, or homicidal.

The center is located in a portion of the former arts and crafts building near the center of the Maryville campus. Although the center is a separate living unit no attempt is made to segregate the boys from the rest of the children at Maryville.

A MOBILE unit will be used as a classroom for the boys during the school year. Two teachers trained in special education will assess each boy's academic progress. Although an attempt will be made to continue the boy's education while at the center, teachers will deal primarily with attitudes toward learning. Each boy's vocational skills will be tested for training in job skills when the boys leave the center.

Staff members include 11 counselors, a social worker, two special education teachers, a psychologist, psychiatrist, nurse and program director. Ferro said he hopes the center will be expanded in the future so girls can also be accepted. Right now, temporary care centers for adolescent boys are particularly scarce, said Ferro. He said most foster parents don't want to take teenage boys because they are too hard to handle.

There is a special problem in dealing with these boys, said social worker Terry Sullivan, because they have just been taken from their homes and their future is uncertain. Counselors try to emphasize the future instead of the past in dealing with the boys.

"Where are you going and what would you like your next home to be like?" are questions often asked, said Sullivan.

TEMPORARY CARE CENTER at Maryville Academy, 1150 N. River Rd., Des Plaines, provides residential care for boys who have been taken from their families and are awaiting placement by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The boys have access to the center living room, kitchen, recreation room and dormitory housed in the old arts and crafts building at Maryville.

Mt. Prospect Mayor To Sing At Randhurst

"Old Fashion Days," a three-day affair featuring old-time movies and exhibits, will come to the Randhurst Shopping Center today through Sunday as part of Randhurst's month-long anniversary celebration.

There will be continuous showings of W. C. Fields, Charlie Chaplin, and Laurel and Hardy films along with a Model T Ford display in the center's mall.

Also, Friday night at 8:15, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Telchert, and Village Mgr. Robert Eppey, will sing old-time songs.

Old-Fashion Days' events will take place during the normal store hours of 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily, Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Qualify For Low Rates

LAKE GENEVA, Wis. (UPI) — American Motors Corp. said its 1973 model cars will qualify for special lower collision rates offered by the Allstate Insurance Co.

Allstate offers the lower rates, which amount to a maximum 20 per cent in normal rates, to owners of cars which meet its special criteria for bumper damageability.

County Coroner's Inability To Carry Out Reforms Explained

by ROGER CAPELLINI

The Cook County Coroner's Office has tried to carry out the promises for reform of the office made in February, a spokesman for Coroner Andrew Toman said yesterday. "But our hands are tied."

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the reforms "would be to our advantage," but added the office has been largely unsuccessful for various reasons.

The statements by the coroner's spokesman followed remarks made to the Cook County board Monday by a spokesman for a citizen's group, alleging that Dr. Toman "never intended to fulfill his public promises for across-the-board reform."

At the county board meeting, Mary Powers of Winnetka, speaking for a group known as Citizen's Alert, said Dr. Toman promised, in February, to use volunteer attorneys as special deputy coroners. Mrs. Powers said the coroner also promised to summon coroner's jurors from the county's list of citizens eligible for jury duty.

"TO DATE, Dr. Toman has never asked any of these attorneys to serve," Mrs. Powers said. "Coroner Toman has yet to summon his first juror. The same patronage 'employees' still serve on all coroner's juries."

The spokesman for Dr. Toman yesterday conceded Mrs. Powers' statements were "accurate to a point." He said since the coroner agreed to use special deputy coroners from the list of 30 volunteer lawyers for "sensitive" cases, only one special deputy was used and he was not on the list.

That special deputy, attorney Martin Gerber, was used by Toman for the inquest into the death of Cornell Fitzpatrick, shot by a policeman in a Chicago high school.

The spokesman said Dr. Toman did not use the volunteer list in that case because he didn't know if the volunteers are capable of conducting an inquest. He said Gerber was chosen because "He did such a good job on the Black Panther inquest."

Dr. Toman's aide said the coroner has agreed to select a deputy from the volunteer list for a "sensitive" inquest, scheduled for Aug. 23, into the death of Edward Dolberry. Dolberry, who allegedly killed his brother, reportedly was shot 12 times by three policemen who confronted him shortly after the alleged murder.

THE SPOKESMAN said Dr. Toman has requested a special deputy in this case because it was requested by a citizen's organization. "Unless someone requests a special deputy," the spokesman said, "we have no way of knowing if a case is sensitive or not."

Referring to Mrs. Powers' statements that Dr. Toman promised to summon coroner's jurors from the county's list of citizens eligible for circuit court jury duty, the coroner's aide said the coroner cannot, legally and practically, adopt that system.

The spokesman said Harold G. Ward, presiding judge of the circuit court's law division who also controls the selection and use of jurors, has told the coroner state statutes prohibit the use of circuit court jurors outside the court.

Judge Ward also explained to the Herald that jurors for the circuit court are summoned on a countywide basis, without regard to their residence. Coroner's juries, on the other hand, are required by state statute to be summoned from the vicinity in which the death occurred.

DR. TOMAN'S aide said that in order to set up a similar system for summoning juries for the coroner's office, the coroner would have to go to great expense, both in money and in time, that the office is not able to provide.

The spokesman said, "Everyone thinks it's a beautiful idea." He said, however, it would be difficult to obtain any more money from the county board for such a system, and that the best chance for developing the system would come in the form of new legislation pending in Springfield. He said a bill which would enable the coroner's office to draw jurors from the circuit court never got out of committee in the last session.

The coroner's spokesman said, however, that Dr. Toman has agreed to seek volunteer jurors for the Dolberry inquest from the jurors' room in the circuit court. He emphasized, however, that those volunteers would have to reside within the vicinity of the death in order to serve.

Suit Is Filed Against Wes-Ware, Inc.

Atty. General William J. Scott has named three Northwest suburbanites as defendants in a suit against Wes Ware, Inc., a stainless steel cookware sales company.

The suit charges the company violated the Illinois Consumer Fraud law in its chain referral sales program.

Among the defendants were Tony Buccino of Old Willow Road, Wheeling, regional sales manager; Jack Torza of 2404 Brandener Ct., Arlington Heights, area manager; and Betty Buyers, alias Bernice Bishop, whose residence is listed as the Holiday Inn of Mount Prospect.

The suit seeks to enjoin the company, not registered to do business in Illinois, from using the chain referral program, and from doing any further business until they have properly registered Scott also asked the court to declare all Wes-Ware contracts sold by this method null and void.

Scott said the company, located in Tusculum, Fla., sells its cookware by recruiting participants through sales meetings, advertising and the personal efforts of those already in the program. Scott said potential customers were told that they could make $17,700 in 12 weeks if they participated.

THE PROCEDURE, according to Scott, was for the customer to buy a set of cookware for $400, and then sell three more sets to others, at which point he would become a "dealer." As a dealer, he would receive $100 for every sale made to individuals referred by the customers he recruited.

Scott charged the sales presentation is false, and that simple mathematics reveal the deception. Based on the premise that an individual need bring in only one customer a week, each of whom in turn brings in one customer weekly, the process quickly proliferates to result in many sales, but in profits "only for the few at the top of the pyramid."

Such a chain system, based on a mathematically impossible formula which grossly misrepresents potential earnings, is illegal, Scott said.

No-Fault Insurance Dies In Senate

by MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal no-fault auto insurance is dead for the rest of this year and maybe for two more years.

A Senate vote of 49-46 Tuesday night killed a bill which would have put the insurance reform plan into effect nationwide within 18 months of enactment.

Technically, the vote merely sent the bill to the Senate Judiciary committee for further study.

But as a practical matter, it has no chance of revival in this session of Congress. The bill's sponsor, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., who oversaw 16 months of committee struggle to get the bill to the Senate floor, said it may take two years before he can crank out a bill again.

Magnuson and other backers called the Judiciary Committee the bill's "graveyard." Conservatives dominate that panel.

Although President Nixon and Department of Transportation officials have repeatedly urged states to enact their own no-fault insurance laws, only Massachusetts and Florida effected strong bills of this nature.

IN ILLINOIS, the state's no-fault insurance law slated to become effective Jan. 1 of this year was struck down by the state Supreme Court as unconstitutional. As its supporters ready revised bills, insurance firms doing business in the state may choose whether or not to offer a no-fault plan to their customers.

The backers said no-fault insurance would have saved motorists millions of dollars. They said 44 cents of every auto insurance premium dollar goes to pay legal fees rather than to pay accident victims. The need for all but a fraction of auto negligence suits would have been eliminated under the no-fault bill.

Under the concept, accident victims are compensated for their injuries and economic losses by the insurance company covering the car in which they were riding without regard to whom was at fault in the accident.

Under the present system, the company covering the car whose driver is found to be at fault must pay damages. That determination often takes months and requires costly trials. Out-of-court settlements are often for only a fraction of the actual damages suffered.

OPPOSITIONERS SAID the bill was of questionable constitutionality and deprived victims of their right to sue for intangible damages — the pain and suffering and mental anguish of being involved in a crash.

The White House, segments of the insurance industry and trial lawyers lobbied heavily for the vote to send the bill to the Judiciary Committee. Trial lawyers earn $1 billion a year in fees in negligent cases in the courts.

Consumer groups lobbied for the bill's enactment.

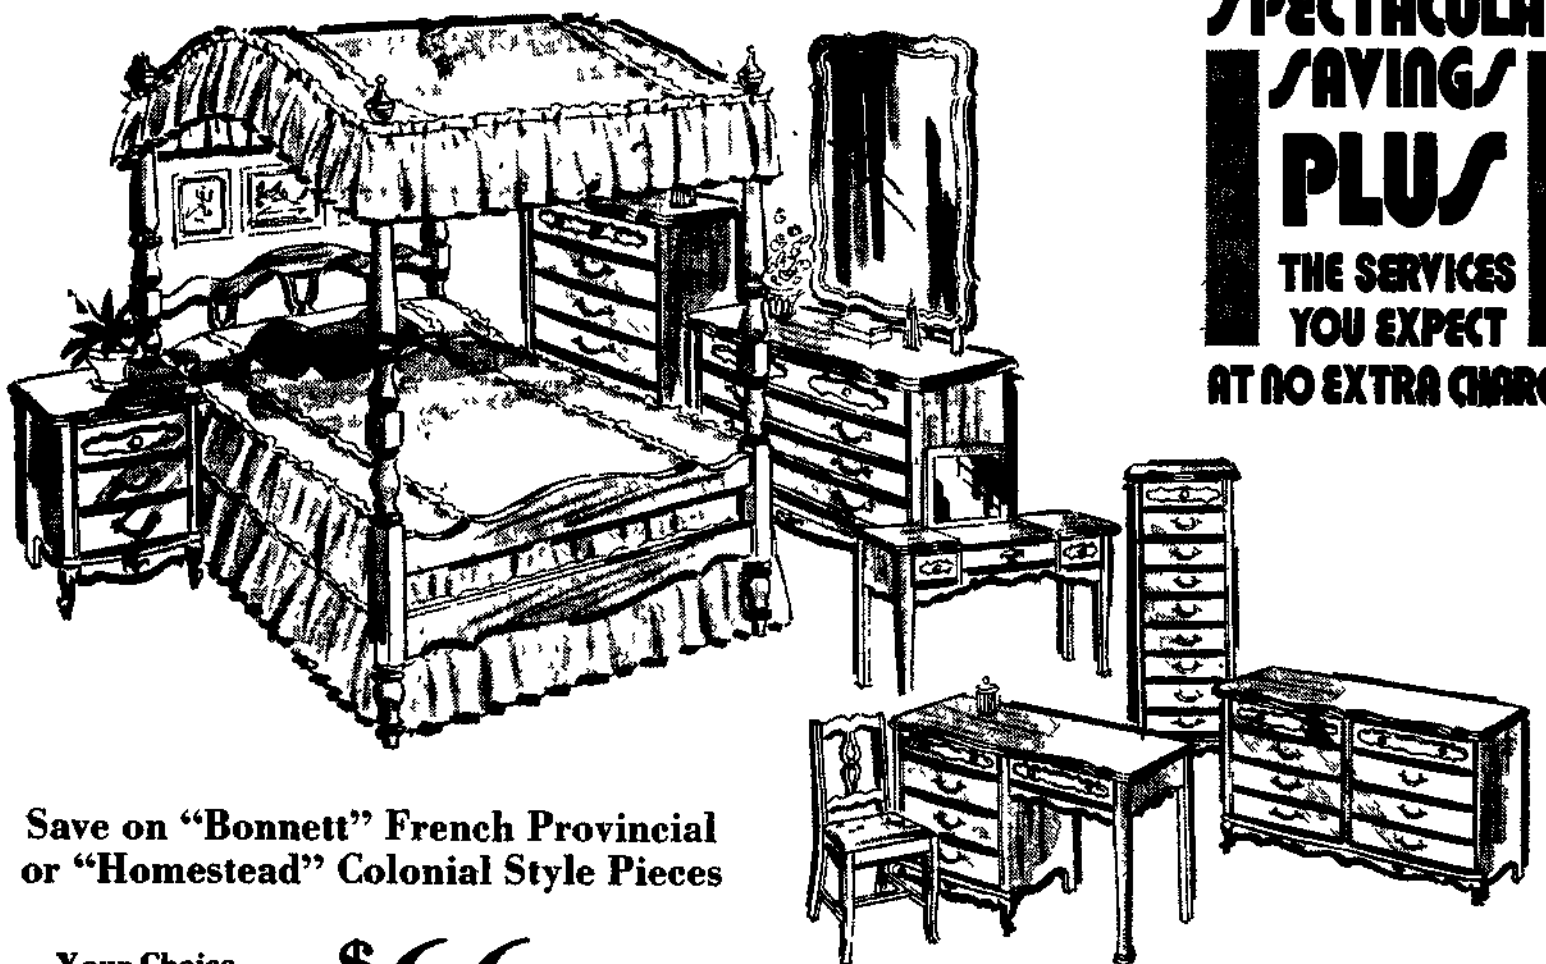

Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern voted against sending the bill to committee. He was joined by 32 other Democrats and 13 Republicans.

Even though the Democratic platform calls for federal no-fault legislation, 21 Democrats joined 28 Republicans in voting for the motion of Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., which sent the bill off the floor.

"No-fault is an idea whose time has come," President Nixon said about a month ago, but he argued that it was a matter best left for the states.

Do-It-Yourself

Gutter and downspout repair is a job generally done in the fall because of the accumulation of leaves and in the spring because of the wear and tear of heavy ice and snow.

But damage during those seasons would be less if the gutters were attended to during the summer. They would then be able to handle the extra loads.

Besides, working on a ladder is easier on a summer day than on a cold day in the fall or spring.

Clean and repair at the same time. Cleaning is something you will have to do more than once anyway.

A whisk broom or a stiff brush should be used to clean dirt and leaves from the gutters. If left in the gutters, this accumulation will cause water to slop over the sides in a heavy rain. The dirt also is carried to the downspout, resulting in clogging.

After you have cleaned out the dirt you can look for rust spots. If it is just rust with no damage to the metal beneath it, sand the metal clean. Then give the spot a coat of rust-preventive paint.

If the metal has started to rust through, clean away the rust, then make sure all loose particles of damaged metal are removed. A small hole or crack can be taken care of by spreading roof cement over the area.

If the hole is larger, add a patch to the cement. With the cement still wet, place a piece of metal similar to the gutter in it. If the gutter is aluminum, use heavy aluminum foil. Roofing paper or fiberglass material can be used with any metal.

The patch would should extend several inches beyond the opening and the cement should extend beyond the patch. Add another coating of cement over the patch, covering all edges.

Sometimes joints between sections of gutter will develop leaks. Patch these areas the same way.

For larger holes, stick with metal. Make certain it is the same kind of metal as the gutter, otherwise corrosion.

Water should flow freely toward the downspout. If the gutter is sagging, this won't happen. You may have to adjust hangers or re nail a section.

If water isn't going through the downspout, then it needs cleaning. Sometimes a gentle tapping will dislodge the obstruction. If this fails, try a garden hose and if that doesn't work, use a snake.

A wire strainer over the opening of the downspout will prevent debris from blocking it. This will need regular cleaning.

Stamp Notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

Australia will mark the 1972 Olympic Games with four postal issues slated for release August 28th. Three 7 cents and one 35 cent stamps will commemorate athletics, swimming, rowing and equestrian events respectively.

The stamps, which are strikingly similar to the U.S. series to be released Aug. 17th were designed by Brian Sadgrove of Melbourne. Each subject will be printed on a separate sheet of 100 stamps.

The issues are the first Australian stamps to be printed in five-color photogravure process. The summer Olympics begin this month in Munich.

On Aug. 22nd, Australia will issue a 7 cent stamp to mark the centenary of the completion of the Overland Telegraph Line.

The construction of the 2,000 mile long single-line Overland Telegraph Line from Adelaide to Darwin, Australia, 100 years ago gave the country its first instant communication capability with overseas countries.

Three souvenir cards will be issued by the U.S. Postal Service in August. They will honor Olympia-Philatelic München 72, which begins August 8th, concurrently in Munich with the Olympic Games; EXFILBRA 72, which opens Aug. 26 in Rio de Janeiro and National Postal Forum VI which is scheduled for Aug. 28-30 in Washington, D.C.

The Olympia-Philatelic card bears a full-color reproduction of the Olympic insignia and depicts four U.S. stamps being issued in honor of the 1972 games.

Reproductions of two Brazilian stamps and one U.S. stamp appear in full-color on the EXFILBRA card. The Brazilian stamps are the 200 reis airmail Santos-Dumont's airship "N6" and the 300 reis airmail Augusto Severo's airship "Pax." The U.S. stamp is the $1.30 airmail commemorating the flight of the Graf Zeppelin from Germany to the Americas in 1930.

The National Postal Forum card bears a message from the Postmaster General and depicts a block of stamps honoring the inauguration of the Service in 1971.

All three cards were printed in limited quantities by the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and will be available by mail after the issue dates. Requests should be addressed to Souvenir Cards, Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20036, enclosing $1 for each card plus a 50 cent handling charge per order. This handling charge will be waived on orders for all three cards.

THE HOLIDAY INN, 200 E. Rand Road, Mount Prospect, will host a stamp bourse the first and third Sunday of each month, according to Innkeeper diGiovanni. Todd's Stamps of Des Plaines organized the event which will feature ten dealers and free admission from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Watch for the opening of Tom Ryan's Rare Stamp and Coin shop on the mall at Randhurst. More on this one later.

'Showdown Week' In Gasoline War

The yo-yo like pattern of gas prices in the Chicago metropolitan area has taken another upward swing, with prices throughout the region jumping from one to nine cents a gallon.

There are indications that this latest move might bring an end to a long-term and bizarre pattern of gas price wars, in which regular gasoline had been selling as low as 31.4 cents a gallon at some stations.

The move was initiated by several major oil companies, which in effect raised the wholesale price to dealers by pulling out price supports.

The reasons behind the move are fairly simple, according to Herbert Hugo, Mid-west bureau chief for Platt's Oilgram, a daily industry publication.

Heavy declines in profits and a short supply of gasoline are behind the national move closer to normal pump prices, according to Hugo.

"This is a time when many companies are showing a resurgence of profits," Hugo said. "But with a few exceptions, many of the major marketers of gasoline are reporting losses for the first half of this year."

He said that Shell and Standard Oil of Indiana, for example, are showing profits, but Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texaco, Gulf, Atlantic Richfield and Marathon are showing heavy losses of up to 27 per cent on operations.

"THIS IS considered a showdown week," Hugo said. "The major oil company managers are under great pressure to end the price wars once and for all, or else there will be a lot of new faces in the executive lineup."

"Secondly, there is the problem of supply and demand," Hugo continued. "A lot of forecasters goofed when they predicted this year's supply." Demand is up while supply is down, he said. More cars on the road and heavy gas consumption by late-model cars account for the increased demand.

"This week's change in prices looks as though it will be the most significant one in the last two years," he said. It began Monday morning as one major moved up to 38.4 cents a gallon for regular gasoline. This is two cents below the normal pump price. Chicago area prices had ranged two to three cents below the 38.4 cents a gallon mark.

As of noon Tuesday, all but one of the 13 majors in the Chicago metropolitan area had moved upward to the two cents below normal recommended price level.

Oil companies offer subsidies, or supports, to their dealers as the price wars force pump prices downward. They can withdraw these supports as they attempt to boost pump prices. Oil companies generally pay 70 per cent of the difference between normal prices and the actual pump price. Dealers pay 30 per cent of this amount.

Mobil announced late Tuesday that it withdrew all supports to its dealers, in a nationwide move toward normal prices. Two other oil companies had followed Mobil's lead as of Wednesday morning and others were considering this move.

Oil companies need not worry about bumping the price ceiling established under Phase II regulations, according to Hugo. He said the pump prices averaged 40.4 a year ago in July, 1971. Major oil companies have made several attempts to raise pump prices several times in the past year as they dipped as much as 9 to 10 cents a gallon below normal price levels.

EPA, Municipal Unit Volley Over Pollution Standards

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Municipal League and the state's Environmental Protection Agency are blaming one another for delays in Illinois' fight against pollution.

The Municipal League, representing some 800 Illinois towns, charged Tuesday it can't adequately comply with EPA standards until they're put down on paper.

The league sent the EPA's director, William L. Blaser, a resolution asking his agency to lay down specific anti-pollution standards so municipalities can meet deadlines for clean air and water.

Blaser fired back a letter criticizing "local officials... who have gone about constructing excuses to avoid compliance."

NEVER MENTIONING the league's specific charge that EPA rules are too vague and unwritten, Blaser ended his letter by saying, "It is time for laggard public officials to spend less time saying why they cannot meet their responsibilities and more time pursuing courses of action to fulfill their obligations."

Blaser could not be reached by phone Tuesday for comment on the charge EPA standards are unclear.

Pekin Mayor William Waldmeier, chairman of the league's environmental committee, said league is "not really being critical of the EPA. After all, we've all grown into this thing together since the Environmental Protection Act of 1970 was passed."

"BUT WE DO WANT the EPA to make their regulations in writing as soon as possible so we know where to go," Waldmeier said.

In-Patient Benefits Called 'Valuable'

"For most people 65 or older, in-patient hospital benefits are the most valuable part of Medicare's health insurance," according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security Office.

"Hospital bills frequently run into thousands of dollars. Unlike many private insurance policies there is no upper limit on the total amount Medicare will pay in the life time of a patient. There are limits, however, to what Medicare will pay in any one period of illness."

"For Medicare purposes," Thoresen said, "a period of illness begins the first day the patient enters the hospital and ends when he has spent 60 days without being in a hospital, extended care facility, or other skilled nursing institution. During the period of illness, Medicare will pay the major part of the patient's expenses for up to 90 days if the patient has medical need for this care. Effective last Jan. 1 from the first day through the 60th day of hospitalization, Medicare pays for all the covered services except the first $68. From the 61st day through the 90th day, Medicare pays all except the deductible of $17 per day."

After the patient has used up his 90 days, he may, if he wishes have Medicare continue paying part of the cost of his care by electing to use the lifetime reserve hospital days. The lifetime reserve is a 60 day period when Medicare pays all except $34 per day of the cost of covered services.

"The lifetime reserve gets its name from the fact that once these 60 days are used up they are never again available to the patient," Thoresen explained. If the patient uses only part of the reserve, Social Security keeps a record of how many of the lifetime reserve days he has left in case they are needed for future illnesses.

"In all cases the hospital care must be medically necessary," Thoresen said, "and Medicare payment will stop when the care is no longer necessary even if the patient is still in the hospital. The decision as to medical necessity is initially made by the patient's physician. This decision is subject to review at regular intervals by a local hospital utilization committee made of local people in medical and related fields and by Medicare."

Local Girl In Pleiades

Joyce L. Maycan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Maycan of 1823 Norman Dr., Palatine, was a member of the first class to be initiated into the Pleiades Chapter of Mortar Board, at Northern Illinois University at De Kalb.

The chapter was chartered last fall. Miss Maycan was one of 32 juniors tapped for the honorary, which bases its membership on scholarship, leadership and service.

"Because the EPA standards for water quality weren't committed to writing, many communities went ahead on their own, hoping to be in compliance when the criteria were finally issued."

"Unfortunately, many of them weren't," Waldmeier said, "and this put the towns — which are genuinely interested in cleaning up our atmosphere — in a position of public disrepute."

"This is what we don't want to happen as deadlines for storm water overflow treatment and solid waste disposal come along," Waldmeier said.

"If the EPA will tell us in writing where we're expected to go within six months, we'll be able to make systematic preparations for these deadlines two or three years hence, Waldmeier said."

FDA Decision Isn't Enough

There's some inescapably bad logic in a recent decision by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to ban a controversial cancer-causing feed additive.

The FDA did, in fact, order an immediate halt to the production of diethylstilbestrol (DES), a drug which has been implicated as the cause of a rare form of cancer in young women who took it as an anti-miscarriage drug during the 1950s.

However, at the same time the FDA has given feed manufacturers and farmers five months to make an "orderly close-out" of existing stocks of the suspected deadly chemical.

If the drug is so dangerous, then why is an "orderly close-out" being permitted? Indeed, if the FDA is as alarmed about the drug as it appears to be, shouldn't it ban all future use immediately?

There's a weak argument in favor of the partial ban by the FDA, in that DES has never been specifically linked to human cancer. The drug has produced cancer in laboratory animals, but never has been linked directly to human cancer.

Indeed, the FDA ban doesn't affect the practice of implantation, in which small amounts of DES are physically inserted into an incision, typically in the neck of a chicken. The FDA has even suggested that cattle raisers might consider such a process if they wished to continue the use of DES.

However, the warning from FDA commissioner Charles C. Edwards is somber: He says he ordered the ban because of "serious doubt (of) our ability to set rules for the use of DES in animal feed that will insure against residues remaining in animal livers at the time of slaughter."

The FDA also chided the animal feed industry and the U.S. Department of Agriculture for failing to develop controls on its own. Thus, "the law requires that use of the drug be discontinued," the FDA reports.

We support such a ban — and we feel enough doubts are raised by the drug to warrant destruction of all existing stocks of DES as soon as possible.

Vietnam's Toll

Thousands of Vietnam veterans are returning to the United States with serious infectious diseases — diseases which often go undetected until after the servicemen have again become civilians.

This causes problems because some of these infections are not usually considered even a possibility by American physicians in civilian practice.

However, "the physician who treats a returned veteran or civilian should be aware of the serious infectious diseases that are endemic in Southeast Asia," warns The Medical Letter, a nonprofit publication which evaluates drugs and therapeutics for 55,000 medical and health professionals.

Among the diseases that have caused problems among some of the 2.5 million Americans who have been stationed in Southeast Asia since 1965 are:

—Malaria. Exact figures are not available, but tens of thousands American troops have been treated for malaria in Vietnam. The incidence of the disease in the United States has jumped from 50 to 100 cases annually before 1965 to some 4,000 cases reported in 1971.

The disease has also been spread in this country by "the sharing of needles by drug addicts and by blood transfusions," The Medical Letter says, and adds the warning that "once a reservoir of infected cases has been established, the widespread distribution of anopheles mosquito makes it possible for malaria to occur anywhere in the United States."

—Gonorrhea. An increasing number of Americans in Vietnam have gonorrhea infections that do not respond to the standard dose of penicillin. Some cases fail to respond even to twice the normal dose recommended by the U.S. Public Health Service.

—Drug-resistant tuberculosis. Some 10 to 20 per cent of the South Vietnamese have active tuberculosis, and many of these cases are caused by drug-resistant organisms.

"Resistant strains are probably the result of uncontrolled use of anti-tuberculosis drugs, sold without prescription in South Vietnam and frequently taken without professional advice," The Medical Letter says.

The publication further warns that persons returning from Vietnam with TB should be tested for the presence of drug-resistant strains of the disease-causing organism.

Other diseases that have affected Americans in Southeast Asia include encephalitis, cholera, typhoid, bubonic plague, viral hepatitis, tapeworm and other parasitic infections.

Certainly civilian physicians have the duty to be on the lookout for these diseases — many of which could become epidemic. It seems more logical, however, for the military to undertake an extensive screening of all men returning from Vietnam.

Thorough examinations would certainly be expensive, but, on the other hand, we'd like to think that our young men and their health are valuable enough commodities to be protected.

Fire Station Needed

The idea of the Centex Homes Corp. of their pre-annexation plan to develop 236 acres west of the Winston Knolls subdivision along Algonquin and Freeman Roads in Hoffman Estates to me is, all in all, a worthwhile idea. However, the plan as it stands right now should be considered by the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission, and also by Centex Homes Corp. itself as being unsafe. The reason? Inadequate fire protection. However, no one in Winston Knolls can actually criticize the fire protection and ambulance service Palatine Rural Fire Protection District has given to the residents since Winston Knolls has been in existence. But one must realize what pressure this must put on the Palatine Rural Fire Protection Dist. 1) Travel distance from the Palatine Fire Dept. Slade Street station to Winston Knolls is approximately five and a half miles. 2) Palatine Fire Dept. is a volunteer fire department. One must consider all the time factors involved. The time it takes the fire department to receive the call, the time it takes until the call is placed to the volunteer firemen at their homes or at their place of employment, the time it takes the volunteer firemen to get to the station and then that five and a half mile stretch from the Palatine Slade Street Fire Station west all the way to Winston Knolls.

One Winston Knolls resident who needed the services of the fire department said it was 17 to 20 minutes until their arrival after she had placed her call for help. Now, this is actually an excellent responding time, taking into consideration the preceding facts. A fireman is taught in his training that seconds count and how valuable time is. And when a fire truck or an ambulance is needed, 17 to 20 minutes seems like forever when waiting for one. And to repeat, this is not the fault of the Palatine Rural Fire Protection Dist., for residents of Winston Knolls know, as well as I do, that the Palatine firemen do their best, and make every effort to respond quickly in answering a call. However, one must realize that a person in desperate need of an ambulance, a matter of life and death call, when seconds really do count, that 17 to 20 minutes can easily prove to be fatal and tragic.

And now to make my point clear. Centex plans for approximately 325 single family houses and 618 townhouses, and a total estimated resident population of 3,837 people added to the now full grown population of Winston Knolls. What's even worse is making and expecting these firemen to go even further west than they already have to right now, possibly leaving their own community partially unprotected while they are forced to travel so much farther west of Palatine.

Who knows, should this pre-annexation plan pass how many people this would leave inadequately protected? This also has to be, or seems to be anyway, quite a burden on the Palatine Rural Fire Protection Dist.

My questions to the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission are, as a resident of Winston Knolls, I'm asking instead of proceeding with the wishes of Centex Homes Corp., and having an additional 3,837 people inadequately protected, why not consider a small station with maybe one pumper and one ambulance or rescue squad before letting Centex follow through with the pre-annexation plan? I, myself, am interested very much in fire-fighting and becoming a volunteer fire-fighter, but obviously have been denied the opportunity both by Palatine, because I do not live in the city, and by Hoffman Estates, because the department is too far away anyway. Now here is a resident being refused this civic duty to help his community. However, should a department be built near Winston Knolls I definitely would be first to enlist for the force, and I'm sure they easily could get others from this area also.

Is it worth leaving these present and also possibly some future residents with this type of protection? Why not consider improvement of present fire protection for Winston Knolls first, then consider the Centex proposal?

To me, another fire station in this area would seem more feasible to build on a half acre of land than it would be to let a developer use up 236 acres immediately and have all these people with inadequate fire protection. The fire station would be a great idea, to further protect the residents of Winston Knolls, Windmer and any future development in the Howie-in-the-Hills area along with the pre-annexation proposed by the Centex Homes Corp.

Why not consider the idea of a small fire station first? The idea might prove to be a life saver. Why be only half safe?

Mount Prospect Appeals Board Hit

Recently we filed a petition before the Mount Prospect Board of Appeals requesting special use of the home at 216 W. Rand Road in order to establish a pre-school training center. The area is residential although heavy traffic on Rand Road, plus commercial activity surrounding the area make residency somewhat undesirable.

We, the petitioners, emphasized that we did not wish to change the residential zoning or the residential environment of the area. We stated advantages of home-type atmosphere for a pre-school operation and that our intentions were to operate in the present home structure with no exterior building modifications. We listed other schools operating successfully in residential environments of nearby towns. We indicated the need and value of a pre-school center especially since Mount Prospect has only six such facilities while neighboring Arlington Heights and Palatine have two and three times that many.

The objectors, residents of the triangle area surrounded by Elmhurst, Euclid, and Rand Roads, stated this would be a step toward commercialization. They labeled it as a "foot in the door." In light of the fact that the residential zoning remains intact in this case, is this argument not somewhat weak?

Yet, in spite of the weakness in argument, the value, need, and our wish to keep present residential status, the petition was defeated by a board vote of 5 to 1. It is a shame such a worthwhile cause as a pre-school center should receive such a resounding defeat and concluding fate.

Education of the young in a given community should be a concern of all members in the community. Unfortunately, it appears board chairman, Mr. George Jacobsmeier, and other board members are not concerned and we suggest that their sense of values are somewhat distorted. We sincerely hope this is not true of other Mount Prospect village officials.

When the Appropriations Committee met for a hearing on Scott's budget, Lyons was absent.

Lyons then distributed press releases charging Scott with distorting his actions in the anti-pollution field and claiming that Scott has won only one lawsuit against a polluter.

That charge received little display in newspapers which recognize that Scott has gained national recognition for his efforts against major polluters, to the discomfiture of many major industries.

Arriving in the mail shortly thereafter was a summary from the Environmental Protection Agency outlining more than 300 cases initiated before it or in the courts by Scott's office against individuals, municipalities and industries.

Lyons' latest charge is that former state representative John C. Parkhurst, a Peoria attorney, was on a "hidden payroll" in Scott's office.

Scott responded that Parkhurst had taken a leave of absence from the attorney general's office as of February. He added that as head of Scott's Peoria office, except for the time during which he took another leave to serve as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, Parkhurst had handled a great deal of consumer protection and anti-pollution litigation.

Lyons undoubtedly took on one of the toughest campaign assignments among the Democrats when he challenged Scott, whom many believe will lead the Republican ticket in Illinois. So far, he has done little to improve his chances.

It's Not McGovern

The man of compassion, honest thinking, strong convictions, real integrity is really wallowing in the mud of life.

Handle the pressures of two political parties, the pressures from nations, the pressures from the press? Wow! Hardly!

My hat is off to anyone who has the highest office in the land, but I hope it won't be George McGovern who makes me take that hat off.

Editorial Lauded

We would like to congratulate you on your fine editorial support for the Lake Michigan Bill of Rights legislation. It is important for all Illinois citizens to be informed on legislation that is so vital to them, and to their children's future. Your paper has helped to accomplish this.

The end of the spring session of the Illinois Legislature finds that this bill and the Scenic Rivers bill were killed in the Senate Agriculture and Conservation committee without ever coming to the floor of the senate for a vote. Another important piece of environmental legislation, the Orphaned Lands Reclamation bill, was defeated on the floor of the House.

We write to suggest that when the Legislature convenes in January, 1973, Pad-dock Publications could provide an invaluable service by publishing a weekly legislative scorecard, listing bill numbers and committee assignments of vital environmental legislation, providing a synopsis of these bills and following their progress. This information is available from the Legislative Synopsis and Digest, printed weekly by the Illinois Legislative Reference Bureau in Springfield, at an annual subscription rate of $20.

There are approximately 6,000 bills introduced each session and it takes an expert to keep track of them all. If you could sift out a few of the important ones and keep your readers abreast of their progress, they could write more intelligent letters pro and con and they would not be frustrated by learning of an important bill only after it has been defeated.

Thank you for your consideration.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The airport hotels, originally established in the 1960s to accommodate passengers laying over while changing planes, now are grabbing a large chunk of the convention and company meeting business from older hotels.

Since there are around 900 conventions and sizable company meetings going on any given day in the United States, it's a big market.

A spokesman for O'Hare Inn at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport said he believed airport hotels already have taken most of this business away from downtown hotels in the larger cities.

The Hotel Association of the City of New York disagreed. An association official said that, while unquestionably a strong trend in favor of holding business meetings at hotels near Kennedy and LaGuardia airports has developed in the past year, mid-Manhattan hotels still have much more than half New York's convention and company meeting business.

ONE REASON is that many large companies maintain permanent suites in Manhattan hotels large enough for small meetings, and they can easily get ballroom facilities for large gatherings.

Companies such as World Wide Business Centres, Inc., of New York also funnel meeting business into hotels in the inner cities on both sides of the Atlantic. World Wide Business Centres maintain staffed offices and hotel suites on a stand-by basis in many cities. Even on weekends, companies that avail themselves of facilities can get clerical and translation and other services on instant notice.

Nevertheless, the trend to holding meetings in airport hotels is so pronounced in Chicago, according to Manager William H. Horine of O'Hare Inn, that most people who attend the meetings never go into Chicago proper at all.

"Frequently they arrive at the airport hotel on a morning plane, leave on a flight that gets them home in time for dinner," said Horine. This leads to the curious phenomenon of the hotels having 105 per cent or more occupancy on some days, against a national average for all hotels of only 70 per cent.

"A guest at an airport hotel will rent a room in the morning for one meeting and a man coming for a different meeting will take it for the evening," Horine said.

THE CONVENTION boom at O'Hare has led to the building of 7,000 rooms on the Chicago airport's fringes. Horine believes this trend will spread to other cities.

The airport hotel has an advantage over the highway motor hotel for meeting business because it saves time, Horine said. Not many companies want their employees to drive to company meetings or even to take the time to drive any distance from the airport after quitting the plane.

This compels the airport hotel to expand its facilities. It must have a swimming pool, access to a golf course very close by, for example. O'Hare Inn has its own golf course, two tennis courts and two swimming pools. O'Hare Inn has hosted 50,000 conventions and company meetings in just 12 years.

Protects Against Dishonest Employees

What 'Bonding' Means In Business

"Must be bondable!" This phrase appears often in help wanted ads. Most people not connected with insurance nor personnel work have only a hazy idea of what it means.

It really isn't mysterious or foreboding. What the prospective employer tries to convey is that he wants candidates with good employment records, no on-the-job stealing or jail terms.

Those who have had run-ins with the law or were involved in a dishonesty loss steer clear of such job offers, said the Insurance Information Institute. They want to avoid an investigation that might disclose that a bonding company paid for a loss or made an investigation on a prior job that left some questions unanswered.

How does a bonding company insure people?

Oversimplified, an employer asks his insurance agent to have an insurer specializing in fidelity bonds give him protection.

If the business is small, a bond can be written for just one employee. Usually a so-called "blanket" bond is used. "Blanket" means it covers all employees except those specifically excluded. One form applies to the positions and another applies to "people." Often the fidelity or dishonesty insurance is one part of a "comprehensive crime contract."

In both types of blanket bonds, the employees are not named in the contract, but the insurer usually requires each employee to complete a questionnaire so that it can investigate employment records and reputations.

The Institute said this investigation service is regarded by many businesses as well worth the cost of the protection. Potential sources of trouble are usually uncovered.

NO ONE is grilled or made to feel uncomfortable. The majority of people are aware a check is being made. If an employee is confronted by his manager with a request to explain a few points raised by the bonding company, the employee can quickly untangle the misunderstanding or he knows he will be requested not to report back for work.

A large number of insurance companies that write fidelity coverage are member of the Surety Association of America which gathers data on fidelity and surety matters.

What else does a surety company do for a firm that wants dishonesty insurance?

It writes a contract in which it says: "I, the insurance company, promise to you, Mr. Employer, that your employee(s) will be honest or I will repay your loss(es) up to $xx if sustained under these conditions..."

So, if an employee steals $2,000 from his company's safe and the surety is convinced by the evidence that he took it, the surety reimburses the employer.

The bonding company then seeks out the dishonest employee and demands repayment. It persists in its search and demands until the loss is made good or until further salvage efforts seem futile.

Why does it do this?

There is a provision in the application the employee signed called an indemnity agreement by which he promises to reimburse the bonding company for any loss it pays on his behalf. Knowledge of the consequences has helped to encourage some weak-willed people to remain honest.

Employee dishonesty losses are a major drain on American business assets today. Annually they total $4 billion. With adequate dishonesty insurance an employer's loss can be passed on to an insurer for a known, reasonable premium.

Wall Street Chatter

THE SPEAR MARKET report says the "pulse of economic recovery has quickened to a pleasing rate in recent months." The consensus of professional opinion seems to be that continued doses of "strong earnings, GNP gains, retail sales spurts, cooling inflation" will help the stock market's generally sick performance.

Cost To Operate Car Up 14%

Have you been thinking about buying a new car? Have you been wondering how much the cost of driving has gone up recently?

If you fit within the guidelines of a recent government study, each mile you drive in a standard-size 1972 model auto will cost you 14 per cent more than it did in 1970.

The federal study also shows that auto insurance is the second lowest cost factor, the Insurance Information Institute said.

For the typical buyer of a 1972 standard-size car that will be driven for 10 years (by two or three owners) and for 100,000 miles, the cost at today's prices will be 13.6 cents per mile, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation study.

A similar study in 1970 revealed the comparable cost then was 11.9 cents per mile, or 1.7 cents less. No study was conducted in 1971.

The startling increase of better than a penny a mile for cost and depreciation of a new auto in just two years was attributed to price increases and new equipment, such as safety and anti-pollution devices. Inflation is a factor as well.

In 1972, the study also analyzed the cost per mile for compacts and subcompacts. It found owners can expect the compact car to cost 10.8 cents a mile to operate and the subcompact 9.4 cents.

The decrease in insurance cost resulted from a change in what was considered "typical" by the researchers. In the 1970 study a large metropolitan city's insurance rate was used, while the lower suburban rate was considered more typical in 1972.

In either case, the Insurance Information Institute said, the government figures indicate that insurance is the second lowest cost factor involved in operating a "typical" American car.

Combined Insurance

Directors of Combined Insurance Co. of America declared a 10 per cent share distribution, subject to stockholder approval, of an increase in capitalization.

A special stockholders meeting will be held Aug. 17, in the corporation's international headquarters of 5050 N. Broadway, Chicago.

If the shareholders approve the increase in capitalization, the new shares will be distributed September 22 to holders of record on Sept. 1.

Shareholders will be asked at the special meeting to increase the company's authorized shares to 28,338,567 shares at $1 par value from the present authorized 25,782,334 shares. The company now has 25,292,209 shares issued and outstanding.

MSL Industries

MSL Industries, Inc., today reported that net earnings before extraordinary items amounted to $1,200,000 or 80 cents per share in the second quarter. This compares with earnings of $330,000 or 20 cents a share in the same period last year before extraordinary items.

Net earnings before extraordinary items for the six-month period of 1972 amounted to $2,200,000, or $1.30 per share, compared to $734,000, or 44 cents per share in the first half of 1971.

Net earnings after extraordinary items for the six-month period of 1972 came to $2,326,000, or $1.43 per share, compared to $933,000, or 50 cents per share in the first six months of 1971. There were no extraordinary items in the second quarter of 1972.

Sales for the second quarter of 1972 were $25,424,000 compared to the 1971 second quarter total of $26,730,000. Sales for the first six months of 1972 were $52,374,000, slightly above the 1971 six-month total of $53,130,000.

Nortrust Corp., parent holding company of The Northern Trust Company, Chicago, reported income before security gains of $8,033,000 or $3.15 per share for the first half.

This represents a decline of 9.7 per cent from an adjusted total of $8,898,000 or $3.49 per share for the first half of 1971. Per share figures are based on the 2,552,875 shares presently outstanding.

Net income including gains and losses realized on investment security transactions was $6,056,000 or $3.16 per share for the six month 1972 period, as compared with $6,355,000 or $3.66 per share in 1971.

In reporting mid-year earnings, Edward Byron Smith, chairman of the board, said the business of the bank continues to grow satisfactorily. The decline in earnings reflects mainly a lower rate of return on loans and investments and a reduction in bond underwriting and trading profits. Trust fee income rose significantly, and despite increased volume in most areas, expenses were kept under close control.

Borg-Warner Corp.

Borg-Warner Corp. had record sales and earnings for the second quarter and first half of 1972.

Second quarter earnings rose 29 per cent to $15,950,000 or 82 cents a share of common stock, compared with $12,349,000 or 64 cents for the second quarter of 1971.

For the six months' period, earnings were up 28 per cent to $28,109,000, or $1.45 per share, versus $21,967,000 or $1.14 a share in the first half of 1971.

Sales in the second quarter were $334,250,000, up 14.5 per cent from the $291,912,000 sales for the 1971 quarter. For the first half, sales rose 12 per cent to $638,634,000 from $570,103,000 in the 1971 period.

Technical Publishing

Technical Publishing Co. reported increased revenues and profits for the second quarter.

Profits were up sharply to $280,067 or 20 cents a share for the second quarter, as compared to $110,827 or 8 cents a share for the same period of 1971. Net revenues increased to $2,970,024 as compared to $2,620,049 for the year-earlier period.

For the six months, profits climbed to $435,997 or 33 cents a share, up 140 per cent over the 1971 half's $181,212 or 13 cents a share. Revenue rose to $5,306,440 from $4,609,578 a year earlier.

American Can Co.

American Can Co. reported increased earnings and record sales for the second quarter and first half of 1972.

For the quarter, net income was $18,108,000, equal to 96 cents a share of common stock, compared with earnings of $16,270,000, or 85 cents a common share, in the comparable 1971 period. Net sales rose 11.3 per cent to $333,161,000 from sales of $299,218,000 a year ago and were the highest for any single quarter in the company's history.

Net income for the first six months of 1972 was $34,108,000, or $1.38 a share, a gain of 4.7 per cent over the $32,602,000, or $1.22 a share, earned in the first half of 1971. Sales were $663,500,000, up 7.8 per cent from sales of $614,400,000 in the first half of 1971.

The Lighter Side

Any Number Can Play 'Running Mate'

by DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just in time for Phase II of the Democratic presidential campaign, a new adult board game is coming on the market.
That is, it will be on the market as soon as I can obtain copyright clearance. The name of the game is, of course, "Running Mate."
Any number can play, as we have seen demonstrated in recent days. The rules: Each player selects a token and places it on the space marked "Go." His moves are determined by throwing dice. The object of the game is to go all the way around the board without being nominated for vice president.

The squares on the board are colored red and green. The green squares are "safe" areas. If your token occupies a green square, you may not be nominated on that turn.

However, when a player lands on a green square, he must draw an "unavailable" card that may be a handicap in future moves. Typical penalties are:

— "You go sailing on Cape Cod each time the presidential candidate calls to ask you to be his running mate. As a result of your spending so much time at sea, your family has you declared legally dead. Lose next turn."

— "Your attempt to avoid the nomination by changing your name, growing a beard and surreptitiously moving to another state causes you to be arrested on charges of impersonating Howard Hughes. Remain in place."

— "When the presidential candidate knocks at your door to offer you the nomination, you say 'There ain't nobody in here but us chickens.' This fools the candidate but Colonel Sanders sues you for franchise infringement. Go back five spaces."

So much for the green squares. Now for the red squares.

A player landing on a red square loses his immunity and must draw an "available" card that could make him the running mate.

For example, the card might say: "The Presidential candidate discovers your hiding place under a pile of old 'McGovern-Eagleton' buttons and offers you the nomination."

The player holding such a card is said to be "vulnerable" but he does not automatically lose the game at this point. Instead, he is given a chance to draw an "alibi" card. Here are some of the key "alibi" cards:

— "I personally would love to be your running mate, but my wife won't let me."

— "I'm terribly flattered by the offer, but before accepting I think I should tell you that I once underwent treatment for nervous exhaustion."

Players may use these cards as grounds for spurning the nomination. However, if two or more members of the same family are in the game, only one is entitled to turn it down.

Missing were Jim Prandini, Jim Locascio and Ed Carpenter. Arlington opens against Kankakee today at 4 p.m.

MARK'S THE MAN. Arlington Heights' Mark Leonhard will open on the mound today in the state legion tournament at Recreation Park in Arlington. The Heights hurler was picked by head coach Lloyd Meyer because of his ability to pitch with just two days rest. He opposes Kankakee at 4 p.m.

Arlington Plays Kankakee In Headliner

American Legion Tournament Opens Today

by PAUL LOGAN

Team contrasts, timing and setting make today's afternoon game of the state tournament THE featured attraction.

Following "warmup" contests with Barrington and Giles (9 a.m.) and Limestone and Belleville (12:30), host post Arlington Heights takes on Kankakee at 4 p.m. Of this Recreation Park tripleheader, the latter game promises the winner the favorite's spot in the tourney. The reason — the winner gets a day of rest on Friday while the others are in action.

With this vital victory in mind, it's time to mention the contrasts existing in this matchup:

First, the managers. Arlington's Lloyd Meyer has been guiding legion ball clubs for 17 years; Kankakee's John Westerhof is in his rookie year. However, that does not mean Westerhof's inexperienced. Four years in Pony League play and eight in Little League in baseball-crazy Kankakee give him good credentials.

It has been said that in a tight game the experienced coach can make the difference. Meyer is thoroughly experienced in this regard, especially from the 1965 season. That was that last time Arlington was in the state tourney and Post 208 won it and then the regional before bowing out at the nationals.

Second, the players. For this, let's turn to the coaches and their analysis.

"We've had a pretty good season," says Westerhof of the team's 24-7 record. "We've had very few problems."

"My team averages 16 years of age. They're young but they can hold their own. The thing that hurt us down here are the two semi-pro teams. If we had those guys, we would be loaded for bear."

Despite the lack of many 18-year-olds, KKK is still loaded. Six of the nine starters are hitting over .300 with the team average nearly that high. Three of the big sticks are off the Eastridge team that went as far as the state semifinals last spring — first baseman Jeff Devine, third baseman L. C. Nutall and shortstop-pitcher Steve Scott. The latter has accounted for 10 victories.

Starting will be ace hurler Tom Kilgus, 11-1 on the year. He had been bothered by a sore arm in the Danville Divisional Tournament last weekend, but Westerhof says he'll be ready.

"I've got a lot of material," says Meyer of his men. "If you've got the material, it's up to the coach to get it out. I feel — up to this point — we're ready. If we lose, then I've not done my job as a coach."

His first challenge is to get the maximum effort out of Mark Leonhard, Arlington's best with a 10-1 record.

"Not taking anything away from (Jim) Hopkins, but he (Leonhard) can come back within two days," explains Meyer of his husky hurler.

This is an all-righty hitting lineup — the same as Kankakee. This would seem to be an advantage to right-hander Leonhard, but Westerhof doesn't think so.

"I don't know what kind of pitchers they've got up there," he says. "We've been having a lot of trouble with lefties but we've been killing righties lately. We hit Champaign righties (four triples and three doubles) hard all day."

In that championship game Sunday, KKK's Devine won the game in the ninth with two on and one out with a triple. The final score ended up 12-9. Their other two wins came over Champaign (9-1) and Gillespie (6-4).

Arlington, which received a berth directly to the tourney because of the host post rule, kept sharp last week by playing the Northwest Rebels, a collegiate team. Only two of the four scheduled games were played because of the weather.

The Rebels won 4-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Mike Pettenuzzo, former Herald Athlete of the Year. Keying the victory was a two-run homer by Mark Frase, a former Arlington Legion star. Hopkins, who is scheduled to pitch the second tourney game, was the hard luck loser. He yielded just five hits while fanning 10.

Leonhard warmed up for today's start by holding down the Rebels for a 2-1 victory. Pettenuzzo provided the only fire-power with a blast of about 400 feet over the center field fence.

Arlington tied the game when Broderick scored after a possible double play failed to develop. Then Post 208 won it with a delayed double steal with Harth scoring and Broderick drawing the throw.

Meyer liked what he saw in those two practice games. He is hoping for a little more hitting, but he's optimistic.

"I think the whole team is concentrating a lot more," says Meyer. "Instead of losing 3-2, we're going to start winning 3-2."

"It came too easy too early," he said of the 12-game winning streak. That romp at the beginning of the season left Arlington with a sparkling 14-2 record.

Meyer's men went 13-9 the rest of the season, but many of those losses were by just a single run.

"Every time they've come to play, they've won."

This afternoon's contest has to be one of those days or the Kankakee youngsters just might answer their coach's question, "We don't have any idea how far we can go?"

Eloise Harrison Heads Newcomers

Eloise Harrison dominated the scene in the Arlington Heights Newcomers Golf League last Friday at Arlington Country Club.

"She carded a low gross 46 and a low net 32, chipped in for a birdie at No. 14, and recorded the fewest number of putts for the day with a meager 11. Betty Godwin, playing in the First Flight along with Ms. Harrison, birdied the 12th hole.

In Flight No. 2, Irene Burquest had low gross 57 and low net 37. Britta Anderson took the low putts competition.

Norma Doering carded a low gross 69 and low net 39 to pace the Third Flight. There was a three-way tie for low putts among Marge Melcher, Sue Montgomery and Lee Yelovich.

In the Fourth Flight, Mary Lou Blaz walked off with all the honors as she scored a low gross 72, a low net 36 and registered the fewest putts.

Paul Logan

One Of 'Them' Finds An Adopted Home

ANOTHER POTENTIAL cheerleader joined the Logan clan just a year ago this month.

Although my hopes were eager high and grimmer great for a boy, Lisa Lynn came along instead. Short on hair but pretty just the same, she and I have gotten along famously. Just one thing bothers me still — people have mistaken her for a baby boy.

Lisa has huge blue eyes that go great with similarly colored outfits. Almost without exception, when we take her in a store somebody will have to remark, "What a cute little boy!" She'll quickly outgrow that label, however.

You see, I've got this girl complex because our young family is all girls except for me. It's three on one every so often with the old man usually getting overruled by my Woman Libbers.

Last Sunday this outnumbered male was joined by another with the adoption of our little guy. Despite being shorter than our five-year-old, weighing less and being much younger, he's already making it known that he's calling the shots. In fact, Mia and Lisa are just a little afraid of him.

Don't get me wrong — they love the little guy. They smile at him and talk to him and sometimes touch him, but the latter only occurs when Linda or I are with them.

You see, he's black. Not brown or medium dark but jet black. His color seems to be one of the reasons why our youngsters are cautious of him. When the lights are turned off in the evening, it's hard to know exactly where he is unless his eyes have a certain shine to them. But they're pretty dark, too.

Despite his color, the older neighborhood kids have accepted him for what he truly is — kind, lovable and always seeking to please.

Since our backyard is fenced in, few adults have seen or met the newest member of our family. We've wanted it that way so that he could get used to his new home and our lifestyle.

Two adult couples have been introduced to him. Both seemed to have liked him, I guess. It's probably because he hasn't caused any disturbances yet — making a lot of noise or running through their backyards.

One of the couples — our neighbors to the west — once adopted one, but they didn't care to keep him. They put him in a home or something. He didn't have as dark a complexion as ours, but he was sent away just the same.

Our neighbors to the east — a Philippine couple — haven't seen him yet. When they do, they might want one, too. They don't have any children yet, so they might seek the same companionship after they see how lovable our little guy is.

Although our little guy already had a given name when we got him, several nicknames were suggested by friends, neighbors and our babysitters. Such names as "Boy," "Blacky," "Jet" and "Sambo" were tossed out. Also "Willie," "Richie," "Ernie," "Wil," "Malcomb," "Jesse," "Kareem" and "Muhammad" in honor of the more well known black personages.

We settled on Muhammad's last name — Ali.

Ali has a look of royalty about him. A champion's charisma although he's still pretty young. His sleek, black, strong body reminds you a little of the former heavyweight champion of the world.

He doesn't box and he never will, but he's already a good wrestler. And you should see him handle a ball. He's a natural. It won't be long before he'll be catching baseballs. Ali can already scoop them up with the best of the shortstops. And, despite his tender age, he already has most of the sports moves he'll need when he grows up.

Ali does have his bad points. People warned us that his kind would be rough on furniture and clothing, and he is. He also has a certain distinctive smell about him, but we expected that and can live with it.

You see, when you have a Labrador puppy, his good points easily outweigh the bad ones. He's my man. Right on!

Skiers Needed At Fox Trails

The Fox Trails Ski Patrol, a member of the National Ski Patrol, is in need of qualified skiers to train for the coming season. Any better-than-average skier over 18 years of age is encouraged to telephone Dick Brandel, Director of the Fox Trails Patrol, at 437-8724, for additional information.

The National Ski Patrol is a non-profit organization dedicated to the protection of the skiing public.

Gene Sackett, chairman of the Ninth District and a member of Michael R. Blanchfield Post No. 1968 of Wheeling; Alex Schanmier and Vince Cunningham of Merle Guild Post No. 208 of Arlington.

Contrasting Races In St. Raymond's Action

Races for first place in the two divisions of the St. Raymond Holy Name Society Twilight golf league are contrasting with four weeks remaining in the season.

Friedrich Funeral Home is clinging to a slim one-and-a-half-point lead over Ackerman Insurance in one division with Kruse Restaurant also in striking distance of the leaders. In the other grouping, Trapani Builders holds a much more comfortable margin of 10½ points.

The second half of play has seen four eagles scored already, two of them coming on the same night last week. They were by Bob Shanley on the third hole and Mike Murphy on the sixth.

St. Raymond's Parish Golf Day will be held Friday, Aug. 18 at Elmhurst Country Club. Tickets can be obtained from George Seminatore at 253-1008 or at Mount Prospect Country Club on Thursday evenings.

High point leader for regulars is John Moore with 21½ points and Pat Schneider for alternates with 29½.

Team standings:

LEAGUE NO. 1
Friedrich Funeral Home	33
Ackerman Insurance	31½
Kruse Restaurant	29½
Winklerman Shell	23
Mt. Prospect Slate	22½
Keefer Pharmacy	22½
Meeske Super	13½

Novak & Parker	26
Jake's Pub & Bar	25½
Mt. Prospect Federal	25
Shoe Place	24½
Illinois Range	24
Moran Park Place Furs	15½
Kirchoff Insurance	14

Tense Race In VFW Loop

With just three weeks of play remaining in the Arlington V.F.W. Monday Night Golf League at Old Orchard Country Club, Scott Tree & Landscaping is in first place by the thinnest of margins, one point over the Paddock Golf Tournament entry Piepenbrink Movers.

Fetke Insurance and Active Heating Service remain in third and fourth respectively. Kolman Plumbing, with a strong win over Convenient Foods, moved into the No. 5 spot. The big point winners of the evening were Village Pipe and Cigar Shop with a 19-5 victory over the Cake Box and Kehe, Foy & Snellen Insurance, who cleaned up on L'Nor Cleaners 20-4.

Low net honors were shared by Jack Francisco 45-12 — 33, Rick Weber 39-6 — 33, Charles Baranowski, Sr. 47-14 — 33, Allen Garske 39-6 — 33 and Joe Kolman 45-12 — 33. Scratch player Darryl Burkett captured low gross with a 38.

Junior Golf Tournament In Palatine

The Palatine Hills Men's Golf Association and the Palatine Park District are co-sponsoring a tournament for junior golfers at the Palatine Hills Golf Course Tuesday, Aug. 22.

The tournament is an 18-hole challenge in medal play and is open to all junior golfers 12 to 18 years of age. The three divisions broken down into age groups has 17-18-year-olds in Division A, 14, 15 and 16-year-olds in Division B and 12 and 13-year-olds in Division C.

The tournament entry fee is $1 plus greens fee and entries are now being accepted at the Palatine Hills Pro Shop. The entry deadline is Aug. 20.

Drop In Grand-Slammers

Major League baseball enjoyed only 55 grand-slam home runs in 1971, a drop of 33 after the all-time high of 88 grand-slammers the previous year. American League hitters knocked out 29 while the National League had 26.

Tight Duel At Raceway

With the competitive season drawing into the home stretch, it appears that Bill McEnery of Evergreen Park and Ray Young of Dolton will make a neck and neck duel to the wire for the season's track championship at Raceway Park, the paved quarter-mile oval at 130th Street and Ashland Avenue in Blue Island.

McEnery now owns a rather commanding lead, but Young is within range that would enable him to bypass McEnery. Young won the recent Monza Classic to draw well past the veteran Bud Koehler of Blue Island, a seven-time track champion. With another Monza Classic scheduled for Aug. 19, Young will get another chance to pass McEnery. Young won the track title back in 1962 and aims to repeat. Koehler is now in third place.

McEnery has passed the $9,000 mark in earnings at Raceway this season and Young is close to it. They'll continue their torrid rivalry in this week's competition in the Late Model races scheduled for Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights.

An extra added attraction on Wednesday night (Aug. 9) is the return appearance of the famed Trio Angeles of Denmark, acclaimed as Europe's international aerial champions. The Angeles perform motorcycle and trapeze feats high in the air without the aid of nets or safety devices. They'll do their act at intermission time Wed. night.

Another hectic Demolition Derby is scheduled for Friday night, as well as next Sunday night. The racing program each of the four nights calls for a 30-lap feature for Late Model cars and a 20-lap feature for Super Sixes, plus six 10-lap heat races and a trophy dash.

Time trials will start at 6:30, the first race at 8 p.m. Parking is always free to the patrons.

Independent League

Bombers	243	231-15-13
Zonkers	335	99-13-12

Living up to their nicknames, the Bombers recently did do some bombing in defeating the zonked Zonkers in the championship game of the Independent Baseball Association, 15-13, recently. The lead changed hands five times with Mike Daly finally registering the win in relief. Daly held the Zonkers to only one run during the last few innings to allow his team winners with Steve Lichterman socking a pair the two-baggers for the losers and Steve Byrnes also doubling. Jim Marici was the losing pitcher.

Jets	299	418-6-5
Cougars	318	92-7-4

In a game to determine the third and fourth place finishes in the IBA playoff series, the Cougars rallied with three runs in the fifth to edge the Jets, 7-6, recently. Chuck Johnson was the winning pitcher in relief. J. Connell took the loss.

City Welding In Biggest Jump

The top three spots in the Arlington Heights Twilight Golf League remained unchanged through last Friday's play as Lauterburg & Oehler, Service Stampings and Koops Mustard held down 1-2-3 again.

A big jump was registered by City Welding, which zoomed from eighth place to fourth. Baird & Warner is now fifth and Binzel Industries stayed in sixth place to round out the first division.

Tom Douglas recorded the low gross score for the night by shooting a 37 while low net honors went to Mike Grant with 30. The 11th hole provided four birdies as Larry Gullick, Steve Gecan, Jack Leslie and John Goffey all got down in one under par. Les Wdowik and Ralph Panek carded birdies on the third hole, Bob Hudec birdied the seventh, and Panek got his second of the night on the eighth hole.

Snyder Tops Chemplex Golfers

Carl Snyder shot a nifty 42 to capture both the low gross and low net ($4) honors for the Chemplex Twilight Golf League at the Golden Acres Country Club last Friday. However, Snyder's performance still fell short of Jack Blanchard's opening round record of 39-31.

In team play, it was the same old story. Team No. 5 (Jack Jacobs, Milt Kosner, Sven Solvik and George Laybourne) continued to hold first place, a position it has held through all 12 rounds. Meanwhile, Team No. 6 (Ray Cameron, Hank Gudrian, and Bill Abbey) again took six points, but still trails the leader by a single point. Team No. 5 has maintained this one-point lead for the last four rounds, with only two rounds remaining.

Gudrian recorded the only birdie for the round on the par five No. 9 hole.

Walt Ramsey leads Ray Cameron by two points in Flight A play. Mike Melchoir and Sven Solvik have already won in Flights B and C, respectively, while Bill Abbey has a comfortable five-point lead over Ken Chao in Flight D.

'As Long As I Am A Soldier I Cannot Be A Mother'

by TOM TIEDE
KAM PAUL, Cambodia — When 21-year-old Luy Neary was wounded high on the thigh during a recent battle, Cambodian medics cut away the trousers with more than the usual medical enthusiasm.
Luy Neary is a woman.

Ans what a woman. A feminist of perhaps the ultimate degree, she practices equal rights with deeds instead of yak. At four feet, three inches, 61 pounds, she is a soldier in the Cambodian Army. She doesn't like it. But she does it. Just like a man.

Luy Neary is, actually, not a rarity here. Women have been "liberated" in Asian countries since before Betty Freidan was a seed — and that's some time ago. In Vietnam the girls operate the garbage trucks, in Laos they carry rocks in wicker baskets to build roads. In Cambodia, thousands of them, nobody seems to know exactly how many, are spending the war years in the olive drab wrappings of national defense.

The girls are not just military ornaments either. As part of Cambodia's national mobilization program (a mostly ignored plan to enlist the entire populace in the two-year-old war), some women are given the same kind of army duty as men — that is, hard-core combat.

LUY NEARY, as example, is no garrison soldier. She's one of 3,000 elite Khmer paratroopers. To get her jump badge and jungle fatigues, she spent four months at some of the most rigorous physical training known to man (and, now, woman). Fifteen-hour days. Five-mile runs. Hand-to-hand combat preparation ("The men all try to get women recruits for this"). Just to toughen up, paratroopers here practice jumping from successively higher walls, 10, 20, 30 feet and up — "until you don't vomit when you hit ground."

Not everybody makes it through the training. But, say commanders, the women's failure rate is no higher than the men's. "That may surprise Americans," grins a paratroop colonel, "but we Cambodians expect more from our women." And, to be sure, they get it.

Luy Neary is fully qualified on the M-16 and AK-47 rifles. She can field-strip a dirty machine gun and put it back together as if her life depends on it. She can survive in the jungle on worms, grubs and things that leave slime when they crawl. She can march 10 miles in 100-degree heat and then dig a foxhole to sleep in for the night. She has been taught to shrug off bomb concussion, snake bites, leeches and enemy tortures. And, most importantly, she can, and does, jump from airplanes, land in the middle of wars, and then do what has to be done — even kill — to carry out her mission orders.

NOT LONG AGO, while carrying out orders, and sagging under a combat pack that weighed almost as much as she (35 pounds), Luy Neary spotted a Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Communist) in a tree. Unfortunately, he saw her first. The guerrilla opened fire — and caught the girl in the thigh. "I didn't feel it at first," she says, and so fired back at the tree. "Then when I moved, I fell over." She stayed over, seriously wounded, for three months in a field hospital before being rated fit, and thus put back on the roster for more war.

For her sacrifices as a woman, Luy Neary has received no considerations other than a separate barracks to sleep in (sometimes). For her patriotism as a soldier, she has been treated with equal impartiality. That is to say, like most down-rank troopers in this blistered, impoverished country, she has received practically nothing.

She has been awarded one medal. She is paid $14 a month (50 cents daily), part of which is returned to the military for rations. As yet, after two years of service, she has not been given any rank; and she is expected to obey without question (on pain of death), work as long as required, and stay in uniform "until national security is assured."

Yet Luy Neary doesn't complain. Much. At least not publicly. Cambodian equal rights haven't yet progressed to the stage where male chauvinist pig sergeants will permit women in the ranks much more than equal work and equal suffering. "You can talk to her," says Luy Neary's dour company topkick, "but I will have to listen too."

STILL, LIKE MOST common soldiers, the woman's deep thoughts about killing and privation and hardship are quite obvious. And she says as much, even with her sergeant listening near. Sitting on the running board of a truck, blowing the flies out of her eyes, smoothing her hair, she sighs "I always want to be a mother. Now I am a soldier. As long as I am a soldier I cannot be a mother." The sergeant doesn't catch it, but it is a beautiful, unusual condemnation of war. (Newspaper Enterprise Asia.)

THE GIRLS IN THE band . . . Luy Neary, second from right, and friends are treated exactly as their male comrades in Cambodia's elite paratroopers — no special favors.

Crabgrass doesn't have to grow on you

Your answer to ugly crabgrass is Scott's CLOUT. It takes care of the miserable stuff in just two applications — a week apart. It's the easiest and surest way to be rid of crabgrass before it crowds out more of your good grass. Spread CLOUT, Scott's crabgrass control, this weekend. There's no mixing. Just pour the clean, lightweight granules into a Scott's Spreader and take a stroll. That's all there is to it.

Now there's a better
lawn weeds!

TURF BUILDER PLUS 2, Scott's weed-n-feed, is made especially for people who hate lawn weeds and love healthy, green grass. It's easy to use, nothing to mix, measure or spray. PLUS-2 clears out most common non-grass weeds roots and all. It also provides a prolonged feeding for your grass at the same time. Makes it grow greener, thicker, sturdier. The time to spread PLUS-2 is now, while weeds are growing. Then sit back and enjoy a better lawn this year.

The Great Rip Off

Burglary A Fact Of National Life

by IRA BERKOW

NEW YORK — In a Miami suburb recently: Dead of night. Truck pulls up to a greenhouse; bustle of activity; truck drives off with $2,000 worth of orchids. Only motive police can imagine is that burglars thought they were getting poppies.

In Los Angeles: Man wakes in the morning, finds his house made barren during the night; burglars even took the pants on a chair beside his bed; man still had his pajamas, thankful for small favors.

In New York City: Moving van pulls up in front of house. In short order, much of innards of house are disengaged. As truck is about to pull away, a sharp-eyed neighbor calls out — "You left the door open." Burglar disguised as mover tips his hat in gratitude, shuts door, takes off.

There is a burglary every 15 seconds in the United States. And that rampant rate is increasing.

There will be about 2.5 million burglaries this year in the United States, about double the number of five years ago.

It is small wonder that there are near-any eight-year-old kid, and without the slightest peep from that sophisticated, wiretrewn, high-priced, nasty looking burglar alarm system.

In an attempt to preserve life, limb and orchid, people are going to desperate measures. Some businesses are increasing their security forces, though this is not always sanguine — as witness the guard in Long Island recently who allegedly helped two bandits help themselves to $315,000.

Some watchdogs have been increasingly attacking their masters' children for some voracious reason. And one Kew Gardens, N.Y., watchdog was made yipping drunk by a bourbon burglar. Watch-geese have proved even less effective in felling yeggs. Some Toronto businessmen tried to push the idea that watch-geese are the wave of the burglarproof future. Their wings were considered a powerful means of thwarting thieves. Yet when a newspaperman recently visited these gimlet-eyed geese, they turned feather and ran away.

Even in the suburban setting of Coral Gables, Fla., there are those who are always intent on a burtle. Ira Ehrenkrantz, president of Reliable Security Systems, Inc., there, says he has installed 225 complete burglar alarm systems in the last 18 months and business is still booming.

House breakage is, of course, serious business. There are professional burglars who want nothing more than your money, but there are also drug addicts, and psychotics who could cause physical harm.

A GOOD SECURITY device is an important and, perhaps, necessary addition to home or business. Not all are expensive. They cost from $150 to $2,000. Some simply provide light or make a noise to scare off a burglar. Others have hookups with the police department, some are ultrasonic, photoelectric or have microwaves or an infrared system.

There seems as much disparity in quality of companies and installers as in systems themselves. A dealer and his equipment should be certified by local and national agencies, such as county organizations or the Underwriters Laboratory, an independent, nonprofit organization for testing public safety.

In other words, when choosing a system and a dealer, be as painstaking as a second-story man.

Excavated Grecian City May Well Be The Proud Atlantis

by RICHARD M. SUDHALTER

AKROTIRI, Isle of Thera, Greece (UPI) — As scientists calculate it, fire and rock rained from the sky, burying cities under hundreds of feet of ash. Tidal waves nearly 700 feet high, rushing at more than 200 miles an hour, smashed in a moment the proudest of the ancient maritime empires.

And out of holocaust, a legend. Here, behind the towering, blasted cliffs, cinders and ash layers of this southern Aegean island, many scientists say they may have found the key to the "lost civilization" of Atlantis.

"That is quite true. This may indeed be the source of the Atlantis legend." Even as Prof. Spyridon Marinatos spoke the idea aloud, he grew visibly wary of it.

"THERE IS A danger here. It is only too easy to become lost in speculation about Atlantis, and thereby lose sight of what is to us far more important right now — conclusive insight into the Minoan Empire."

Marinatos, with a graying, bushy brow and craggy features, is Greece's top archeologist. He holds the government position of inspector-general of antiquities.

Under his direction in 1967 a team of scientists and students began digging in a ravine outside the small, crumbling alabaster town of Akrotiri on Thera's south coast.

In five years they have uncovered a treasure beyond Marinatos' wildest dreams: a major city, of a size still to be calculated, but clearly a pivotal part of the Minoan maritime empire centered on Crete, 70 miles to the south, 3,500 years ago.

The city stands intact, caught and frozen for all time when death came fiery hot from the sides, the earth shook and the waters rose to break the back of the bull of Minoan, triumphant symbol of an empire respected throughout the ancient world.

Thera has borne many names through the ages. It has been Kalliste the "most fair" and Strongyle, the "round island," though its modern form barely hints at that. More recently it has been Santorin, after St. Irene, its patron saint in the Greek Orthodox Church.

ACCORDING TO all available geological evidence the isle has always been a volcano. But by the rise of Minoan Crete around 2500 B.C. it had long been dormant.

Minoan at its height grew into a civilization based on a prosperous trading economy. Its ships were among the first to use the keel, and carried Minoan commerce the length of the Mediterranean. Pottery from these islands has been found at Marseille, France, and at the site of Menorca, off Spain.

Its people, handsome and decoratively clothed, lived in urbane life on the hundreds of islands dotting the Aegean.

Here, in Marinatos' words, "lay the birth place of European civilization."

Then, midway through the 15th century B.C., a natural cataclysm of near-unimaginable magnitude wiped out Minoan at fullest flower. The Thera volcano exploded, hurling pumice, rock, fire, ash and lava miles into the air with a shock and sound felt for hundreds of miles.

Its closest modern parallel, scientists agree, is the explosion of Krakatoa, between Java and Sumatra, Aug. 26-27, 1883. Krakatoa's tidal waves devastated nearly 300 towns and villages on the Sunda strait, killing 36,380 persons. The sound of the explosion was heard clearly up to 3,000 miles away. Seismographic instruments in London and Paris picked up the shock waves.

Experts now estimate the Thera explosion may have been up to four times as powerful.

AS WITH KRAKATOA, sea water rushed into the volcano's newly emptied magma chamber after the explosion, struck its super-heated bottom and recoiled violently. From here, Greek seismologist A. G. Galanopoulos takes up the story:

"The sudden movement of such huge quantities of sea water created waves of prodigious height," he said in his book, "Atlantis." "These waves, spreading in all directions, flooded the coasts of the eastern Mediterranean to a great height above sea level, completely devastating all towns and settlements in and around the Aegean."

Galanopoulos calculates these tidal waves must have measured 600 feet at their start, then raced across the 70 miles to Crete in less than 30 minutes. There, still 300 feet high, they devastated Minoan and its capital of Knossos.

What has this to do with Atlantis? Plato, writing in the "Timaeus" and "Critias," tells of a story brought back from Egypt in 500 B.C. by the sage Solon, describing "a great and wonderful empire which had rule over the whole island and several others, and over parts of the continent..."

IT WAS DESTROYED, said Solon, by "violent earthquakes and floods, and in a single day and night of misfortune... the island of Atlantis in like manner disappeared into the sea."

Marinatos, Galanopoulos, British classicist J. V. Luce and others have published strong arguments identifying Atlantis with Minoan. They pick apart past theories placing the "lost continent" in the Atlantic Ocean — Luce says both names derive separately from the Greek name for Atlas — or elsewhere.

Certainly today's Thera, Atlantis or not, bears visible witness to the devastation of 3,500 years ago. A ship entering the 32-square-mile bay which now covers the volcanic crater passes cliffs rising twisted and stark 1,150 feet out of the sea, striated in layers of red and gray lava, then, higher, white-gray tephra, volcanic ash.

In the center of the bay, dark brown against the grays, are two islets forming the volcano's "plug." The surface of the water around them, even by Aegean standards, is unnaturally warm, broken periodically by great, discolored heat boils. Fresh pumice floats on the sea.

Atop the cliffs, perched gleaming white, are the towns — Oia, Phira, Merovigli. The only way up is a zigzag mule track of 800 steps cut into the cliff face.

The top, dotted with tiny whitewashed villages, is in reality a mountainside — the former flanks of the volcano of old, covered with vineyards and sloping gently to the sea. A fleet of rusted gray taxis, Soviet-built Volga sedans, cart visitors around the island's narrow cinder-laned roads. No one — not even the grizzled Theras who drive them — seems to know how they got there.

"Megalli Polis" big city, a guide said, indicating with a generous sweep of an arm the roofed-over excavations marking the area where five years of work have uncovered a highly developed urban community which seems to spread without limit in all directions. The archaeological team is still clearing away tons of brittle, chalky tephra. The more they dig, the more there is.

THERE ARE streets once alive with people. Here a crumbled staircase which once led to someone's bedroom, there a cracked bathtub, decorated in red and gold to a lady's pleasure. Around the corner a coppersmith's shop, anvil and dipping-trough still intact.

Frescoes discovered here depict many facts of day-to-day Minoan life: two youths sparring with what must be the earliest known boxing gloves, girls alluring in the bare-breasted fashions known from the wall paintings at Knossos.

But frescoes aren't all. There are tables and chairs and toilets and beds and dressing tables, all hewn out of stone or the marble which lies strewn like driftwood about these islands.

"We are still actively digging," said Marinatos, sipping heavily sweetened Greek coffee in his seventh-floor paneled office in Athens. "Who knows what we will find as we continue?"

Who indeed? For the moment, Thera sleeps on in the sun. Now and then, as in 1956, the mighty volcano stirs slightly — the result was a spasm that smashed 2,000 houses in less than a minute.

Only 25 miles to the north, the shock tipped the water out of the harbor of the island of Ios, then returned it with a rush that flooded nearly a mile inland, depositing sailboats in farmyards and scattering stone houses.

The history of the Thera volcano is not finished yet.

The Long And Short Of It: Sleep Patterns Surprising

NEW YORK (UPI) — According to scientific estimates 5 to 10 per cent of young adults either sleep less than six hours or more than nine hours out of every 24 and are none the worse for it.

They're very special, these short or long sleepers. Most people find it necessary to sleep about eight hours in 24 in order to function effectively. They are groggy with less, loggy with more.

The tested young adults excited the curiosity of Drs. Ernest Hartmann and Frederick Baekeland who operate sleep laboratories at Boston State Hospital and the State University of New York in Brooklyn, respectively.

THESE SCIENTISTS wondered if there were psychological differences between the short and the long sleepers which might account for their places on the two extremes of the usual and therefore "normal" sleep pattern.

They advertised for volunteers in Boston and New York newspapers and got more than 400 responses. Of those 250 were entirely authentic — the short night or the long night in bed was a firmly established way of life and the young men, all over 20, were healthy.

Hartmann and Baekeland put them through an exhaustive series of psychological tests and interviews. Twenty-nine slept eight nights in the laboratories, having their brain waves, sleep-depths and dreams analyzed.

For the shorts, the results were clear-cut. The scientists reported, "as a group they were efficient, energetic, ambitious persons who tended to work hard and to keep busy."

"They were relatively sure of themselves, socially adept, decisive, and were satisfied with themselves and their lives. They were somewhat conformist in their social and political views and they wished to appear very normal and 'all-American.' They were extroverted and definitely were not 'worriers'; they seldom left themselves time to sit down and think about problems."

THE LONG sleepers did not fall so readily into a psychological group, the scientists reported. Among them was a wide variety of opinions on all subjects. They were inclined to be nonconformist and critical.

They were more uncomfortable than the shorts, "complaining of a variety of minor aches and pains and concerns. Although none of them was seriously ill psychiatrically, most had mild or moderate neurotic problems."

"Some were overtly anxious, some showed considerable inhibition in aggressive and sexual functioning, and some were mildly depressed. They appeared in general not very sure of themselves, their career choices or their life-styles."

X-Ray Crystallography Used In Research Of Cancer

by ELDON BARRETT

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — A technique called X-ray crystallography is being used by a University of Washington professor to plumb the depths of protein molecules in one phase of the scientific war against cancer and other diseases.

Dr. Lyle H. Jensen, a professor of biological structure in the university's School of Medicine, said that new technique may become an important weapon for doctors once the secrets of the complex inner structures of proteins are understood.

The discovery of the configuration of these "building blocks of life" depends on this technique which has come into use in the field of medical research only in the last five years.

The X-rays penetrate the extremely minute, yet highly complex structures involving hundreds of combinations of amino acids. These protein molecules are too small to be viewed even through an electron microscope.

PROTEINS CARRY disease as well as essential life functions in their amino acid composition and Jensen believes that by knowing where each amino acid is situated in the space of the protein molecule, the disease-carrying amino acid may be detected and isolated.

Mapping the protein hemoglobin has given scientists an aid in understanding the sickling mechanism in sickle cell anemia and this may lead to a control of that disease. By mapping other proteins, Jensen hopes to facilitate the finding of ways to cure diseases.

"If we can learn how nature is built, we can better understand how nature functions," he said. "If you want to fix something in a building, you have to know the floor plan."

The X-ray process takes place in a small room in the Health Science Center on the campus. The room is filled with machines, including computers. These machines are used to analyze a protein crystal which may measure no more than 15-thousandths of an inch in size.

X-RAY BEAMS are directed through a crystal of the protein. As the X-ray interacts with the amino acids, the rays are deflected and measured by a quantum counter. The values from the counter are then passed to a computer. The computer prints out a numerical electron density map.

Jensen translates these figures into a contour map which shows the amino acid groups of the protein.

The electron density map is then translated into three dimensional models of wood or plastic showing the long chains of amino acids. Complete structures of large proteins, such as carbonic anhydrase or insulin, with all its amino acids and subgroups may take years to develop.

"We see the molecule through the numerical data of the computer, which takes the place of the lens of a microscope," Jensen said. "Without the computer's large capacity and rapid calculations, we could not have made such advances."

Seattle: A City Out Of Work

Unemployed Struggle For Survival

(First of Two Parts.)
by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SEATTLE — To Howard Kraft, it remains incomprehensible. How could he, Howard Kraft, still be a mere statistic, after more than a year?

There are 60,100 people without jobs in the work force of the hush-green Seattle area. The unemployment rate, highest in the nation for the last four years, stands at 11.8 per cent. It has been as high as 16 per cent.

How could he, Howard Kraft, be one of those unemployed?

He was no ordinary working stiff. He was a delicately trained mechanical engineer, with a degree from the University of Washington and licensed by Washington state. His field was "constant speed drive, variable ratio hydromechanical transmission."

HE HAD contributed to the development and production of the Boeing 747, the world's largest commercial airliner. He had worked at Boeing without interruption for nearly 28 years, more than half his lifetime.

It meant nothing.

"I still remember that black weekend when I was laid off," says Howard. "A sort of numbness. It was something that couldn't happen to me. April 12, 1971, was my last day."

That same day was the funeral of his father. And his mother is an invalid.

Howard is now in the basement of the First United Methodist Church at Fifth and Marion, not far from downtown Seattle. He is bald and wears thick prescription lenses. He could be a professor or a druggist. He has on a white undershirt, dusty dungarees, scuffed work shoes and a carpenter's apron. Howard at the age of 51, is keeping busy. He is in charge of remodeling the church's interior.

WITH HIM are six other construction workers. Five were also former engineers at Boeing. The sixth is an unemployed computer programmer. They do ceiling tile work, carpentry, vinyl wall inlays, wiring, steam fitting — you name it.

"I like this stuff," says Howard, "better than I do engineering. There's so much satisfaction in realizing you can do other things."

John Warner is 24 years old and drives an airport cab. He works a 12-hour trick, 6 to 6, and makes half of what he used to make. He was, until last year, a mechanic at Boeing, working on the mid-flaps of the 747. He admits it was a boring job. But his pay had climbed to $4 an hour. He often worked double shifts, which meant time-and-a-half up to 10 hours, double time after that. John could make up to $460 for a five-day week. And if he wanted to work weekends, that was straight double time, plus triple time for holidays. In early 1969, 106,000 workers streamed daily into Boeing's Seattle area plants. Today the figure is 39,000. John isn't one of them. So what does a guy do? "I do this," he answers, tapping the wheel of his cab. He has a wife and small child to support.

FOR HIS CONSTRUCTION work at the First United Methodist Church, to which

"I still remember that black weekend when I was laid off," says Howard Kraft.
"A sort of numbness. It was something that couldn't happen to Me."

he has belonged for 38 years, Howard Kraft is paid $1,000 a month, which is not bad. "This job," he says, "is always three months from completion."

Then what? He doesn't know.

"I have no desire to leave the Seattle area," he says. "My wife thinks I'm narrow-minded. But I've got my 100,000-mile club membership. I traveled all over the country for Boeing. This is where I was born and raised and want to live."

His house, much of which he built himself, is on Mercer Island in Lake Washington, one of the best residential communities in the Pacific Northwest. Howard figures it could sell for between $35,000 and $40,000. His mortgage has only three years to run. From his back patio you can see the cluster of Seattle and the white snowtopped ridges of the Olympic Peninsula beyond. It's an island of low-slung ranch homes, with no sidewalks, carefully tended shrubs and flowers.

"We call it a Mexican depression," says Emmett Watson, the discerning general columnist of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the best-known writer in the area. "You know it's there, but you can't see it. When something like this happens in Los Angeles, they blow town. In Seattle, they stay and muddle through somehow."

"THE REAL GNAWING worry," says Howard Kraft, "is that you don't have enough to retire on. There's a lack of medical coverage, and of future security."

His wife Jean is working full time now as a teacher's aide. And that helps. Howard's temporary construction job at the church pays only half what his engineering salary used to be at Boeing ($21,000 a year). They have four daughters, ages 21 down to 12. The two oldest are at the University of Washington and work in the hospital to pay their way. A third will attend community college this fall and live at home.

"The clothes start to wear out," says Howard. "Even my house needs a roof. These things start to scare me. I'm just beginning to notice them. And I've gotten my fingernails dirty. The two cars start to wear out (a '65 Chrysler station wagon, a '64 Buick sedan). I put in a water pump. I put in shock absorbers myself. Of course, I can do these things. I used to have a jalopy when I was a kid. Can the cars last another 100,000 miles? I don't know."

When the depression in the Seattle area was at its peak two years ago, automobile sales were drastically off and dealers closed. "But it's changed now," of it. Another engineer works part time in a super-market.

"My whole circle of friends has suddenly shrunk. To my wife, the social life has changed for us. She thinks it's a charity job I have at the church. I don't. Domestically, it's a real strain. I can see where divorces occur."

"My brother is close to being the typical Boeing engineer," says Wes Uhlmann. "He was an industrial engineer with three degrees. He's seven years older than I. He was laid off. The kind of human tragedy that occurs has happened to him. A year and a half ago he had it made. Now his family is divorced. He's in Portland, selling real estate." Wes Uhlmann, modishly 36, prematurely gray, is the mayor of Seattle. He took office just before the bottom dropped out of Boeing. Starting in 1969, the company went 18 months without selling one domestic airplane, the bulk of its business. When the government canceled the supersonic transport (SST) program in early 1971, 5,000 people were abruptly laid off, almost all of them engineers.

"We have to see to it," says Uhlmann, who has gone to Japan to entice new industry, "we don't remain on the Boeing aerospace yo-yo. Our single biggest problem in this area is to diversify. We've formed an Office of Economic Development which should have been done 15 years ago. I don't care about Boeing's feelings. They didn't elect me."

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Mount Prospect grew rather slowly until after World War II, but as a result of the mass move to the suburbs by Chicagoans, its population increased 371.6% during the 1950's. Its current population of 45,200 people represents another rise of 139.1% in just the 12 years from 1960, largely due to the annexation last fall of a large area of Prospect Heights, northeast of the village.

Many large trees line the village streets and the Chamber of Commerce annually sponsors such events as a 3-day July 4th Fair, Welcome Lady service to new residents, and in recent years an annual Octoberfest.

Mount Prospect celebrated its 50th Anniversary in 1967, highlighted by a 3-day fair, parade, and village historical exhibition. The village is developed with numerous winding streets and features home styles of all sizes and designs with the downtown area paralleling the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks.

CHURCHES:

Included in the village are 4 Lutheran, 2 Catholic, and 8 Protestant churches.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The recorded history begins about 1871 when a Chicago real estate man, E. C. Eggleston, purchased a tract of land from the Burke and Rooney families who were among the early farmers to settle in this area. He named the town "Mount Prospect" probably to express his optimism as to its future. The settlement grew slowly, even after erection of the Chicago and North Western Railroad station about 1875. According to the "Illinois State Gazetteer" in 1893 the village had a population of 35 with mail delivery once a day. One of the earliest business establishments in the village was a creamery and cheese factory operated by William Will at Busse and Wille Streets.

RECREATION:

The village is served by the Mount Prospect Park District and the River Trails Park District. The Mount Prospect Park District has 3 outdoor pools, 1 indoor pool, and several parks scattered throughout the village. Also, it has the Lions Park Recreation Center, and the Mount Prospect Community Center, the latter having an 18-hole golf course. The River Trails Park District has an outdoor pool. Both have sled hills. Mount Prospect also has tennis courts.

Also in Mount Prospect is a private indoor-outdoor tennis club, as well as numerous movies and theatres. Planned is an indoor ice skating rink, privately owned, for the Randhurst Shopping Center.

HOUSING:

Established areas of older homes meet newly constructed areas with the average age of homes estimated at 10 years. Prices range from $33,000 to $125,000. New homes start at $40,000. Over 700 rental units are in the village, including some new 12-flat buildings and several "close-to-downtown" 2 unit apartment areas. There are many new major apartment complexes on the perimeter of the village, and rents range from $245 to $350 per month.

The MALL at Randhurst Shopping Center

MEDICAL:

Northwest Community Hospital and Holy Family Hospital are adjacent to the village. In addition, there are 35 doctors and 30 dentists operating within the village.

TOWN SHOPPING:

The central downtown district features a full variety of retail shops with several "Park-and-Shop" centers. Randhurst Shopping Center is located at the north end of the village and there are various secondary shopping districts on the perimeter of the village.

TRANSPORTATION:

C&NW trains reach the Loop in 42 minutes (29 minutes for express trains). The United Motor Coach buses take 70 minutes to reach the Loop. A recent special bus system has been developed to commute shoppers from Chicago directly to Randhurst.

VILLAGE GOVERNMENT:

Mount Prospect has a village form of government. The head of the village is the Village President, also called the Mayor. He and a Board of 6 trustees, all elected at large, pass legislation for the village. The Village Manager is the chief administrator. He carries out the policy of the Village Board. Under the Village Manager are the department heads such as the Fire Chief and the Police Chief.

SCHOOLS:

The village includes 7 public elementary, 2 junior high, and 5 high schools serve the community, with Prospect High School and Forest View High School located within the village. There are also 1 Lutheran and 2 Catholic elementary schools in the village. The pupil:teacher ratio is 22:1, with $690 spent per pupil annually.

ORGANIZATIONS:

There are 34 civic and service clubs available to men and women.

Record Breaking Six Months Are Recorded

At their recent semi-annual sales meeting held at the Howard Johnson Restaurant in Palatine, Annen & Busse, Inc. announced a 22 per cent increase in production over any previous six month period in their history. Included in the celebration were Million Dollar Sales Awards honoring Muriel Hogarty and Eileen Rodgers, who reached that goal during the six-months.

Guest speaker, John Clikeman, presented an exciting film and discussion period based on Fred Herman's "Selling Is Simple."

To coincide with their record breaking production, Annen & Busse, Inc. opened their new facilities in Schaumburg at 127 South Roselle Rd. This office will serve the fast growing areas of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, along with the remainder of the Northwest Suburbs already serviced through Annen & Busse's other offices in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

Joining Pete Rodgers sales manager in the Schaumburg office, are two new sales associates, Dennis Rapata, formerly a high school teacher and new to the real estate field is a resident of Rolling Meadows, and has lived in our area all his life. Herbert Lai, also new to the real estate business, has resided in the area for sixteen years. After attending Harper College and the University of Illinois, he served in the United States Air Force. Annen & Busse, Inc. proudly welcomes these men to their Schaumburg team.

Also at the sales meeting, the two members of the Annen & Busse staff who reached the coveted Million Dollar Sales mark for the first six months of 1972 were honored.

Muriel Hogarty, longtime member of the Annen & Busse firm, serving from the Mount Prospect Office, shares the Million Dollar honors with Eileen Rodgers, of the Arlington Heights Office.

Mrs. Hogarty, on the Annen & Busse, Inc. staff for eight years, is a charter member and director of Women in Real Estate, an organization of professional real estate women, a past recipient of Annen & Busse's President's Award, and previous member of the Million Dollar Sales Club Mrs. Rodgers, serving with Annen & Busse, Inc. since 1968, is a past recipient of the Million Dollar Sales Award and also was cited as Top Salesman of the Year from her office in 1971. She participates in the Prospect Heights Women's Club and is an active wife and mother. Both women are members of the Northwest Suburban Board, and along with all members of the Annen & Busse, Inc. firm, work through the MAP Multiple Listing Service and the National Multi-List Service, of which Annen & Busse, Inc. is a member.

Fifth Building Opened In Barcelona Project

The demand for one, two, and three-bedroom Barcelona condominium apartment homes in Skokie has been so severe that a fifth building was recently opened by Hollywood Builders.

First owners are already moving into the second condominium building and the third and fourth building are virtually completely sold. When the fifth building opens for sale 40 units will be available. An additional advantage of the new fifth building will be the park side view from all apartments, Gene Gayle, apartment manager said.

"The continuing demand will be partially met soon," Hollywood Builders vice president Manuel S. Kramer said. Construction of the fifth building is up to the third floor level.

The record-breaking sales success of the prestige Barcelona condominium apartment complex is accounted for by many factors, Kramer said.

The condominium apartments provide a great advantage by their location in the heart of Skokie, near Old Orchard shopping center, with parks, theater and rapid transportation to Chicago Loop readily available.

THE BEAUTY of the buildings' exceptional architecture, providing a Mediterranean design with massive arches and private balconies give the owner-residents a feeling of security and elegance.

The housewife finds delight in the all-electric kitchen, self-cleaning ovens, illuminated ceilings in kitchens and baths, master bedroom and two walk-in closets, and a breakfast patio on 23-foot balcony. A life style of luxury is provided additionally by recreation rooms, swimming pool and heated garage space.

One, two, and three-bedroom units are priced from $30,900. Condominium ownership provides a tax benefit with the advantages of apartment living. There are no maintenance chores, no lawn mowing or snow shoveling in the winter time.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS & SELLERS

If you're in a hurry to sell... the "Multiple" system can speed things up.

Although some home sellers are in no particular hurry to sell their home, most sellers set a definite deadline for the sale of their home.

Generally speaking, the greater percentage of people who must sell their home in a hurry cannot rely on the rigors of selling the home on their own without the aid of a Real Estate Broker, especially a broker who belongs to an active, influential Multiple Listing & Sales organization. The "Multiple" system immediately puts hundreds of professional salespeople to work to find a qualified buyer for the home. All multiple offices are quickly aware of the property and they treat the property like their own personal listing, exerting every means of sales efficiency and experience to sell the home equitably for buyer and seller.

The big difference between selling a home individually and listing with a Multiple Associated Broker is the difference between whispering and shouting and the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service is one of the nation's most powerful and successful sales organizations.

If you're selling in a hurry... call a MAP Multiple Broker office... and relax!

MILLION DOLLAR SALESWOMEN Eileen Rodgers, left, and Muriel Hogarty, were honored for their achievement at the recent semi-annual sales meeting of Annen & Busse. Mrs. Hogarty has been with the firm eight years and Mrs. Rodgers four. Both ladies made their mark in the first six months of 1972.

Home Sales Up In June

Cook County home sales climbed sharply in June, boosting the year's total activity ahead of the 1971 pace, according to the First Federal Savings of Chicago's Home Sales Index.

Compared to May, 25.1 per cent more existing one-to four-unit residential properties were sold, a total of 3,564. Dollar volume reached $112,799,500, topping last month's total by $30,746,200 — up 22.5 per cent.

Both the level of sales activity, and the dollar volume advanced sharply, compared to June, 1971. Dollar volume was up 25.6 per cent, or $22,979,200 this June. Sales increased by 33.3 per cent, or 890 more than the 2,674 recorded for June, 1971. At that time, sales had fallen off from the previous month's.

This June's substantial gains pushed the cumulative dollar volume for 1972 to $482,555,100 for 15,494 sales. This is a 4.4 per cent gain in dollar volume and a 6.7 per cent increase in the number of transactions, compared to the same period last year.

Last month's home sales activity had brought the cumulative total to only 0.7 per cent (or 82) over the number of sales for the same period last year, and dollar volume actually had decreased 0.8 per cent ($2,882,200).

Jefferson Township remained the most active of the 33 townships, with sales totaling $11,397,000 for 340 transactions. This accounts for 10.1 per cent and 9.5 per cent, respectively, of county volume totals.

Wheeling Township ranked second in dollar volume, with $8,390,500 or 7.4 per cent of sales. Maine Township, in third place, showed $6,540,000 for 5.8 per cent of the dollar total.

Anderson Named Rich Port Office Vice President

Robert Anderson

Robert Anderson, 17 N. Prindle, Arlington Heights, has been appointed vice president of the Arlington Heights office of Rich Port, Realtor.

The appointment was announced by Richard Caruso, vice president and general manager for the Northwest division of Rich Port, Realtor, who also stated that Anderson will retain the title of sales manager.

Anderson has been with Rich Port since October 1970, joining the organization as sales manager of the Arlington Heights office. Prior to this, he was associated with other local real estate firms for 15 years.

He is a member of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers and a past associate director of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. In addition, he is a graduate of the Illinois Realtors Institute and carries a G.R.I. designation which is earned after successfully completing the institute's requirements. He also is a real estate instructor at the Central YMCA and the Oakton-Niles Community Junior College.

Anderson attended Northwestern University, and has been a member of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and the VFW for the last five years. He also has been a director of the Arlington Heights Boys Football League and is secretary of the Prospect High Boosters Club.

Apartment Site Choice Well Thought Over

The day of "seat-of-the-pants" judgments in deciding where to buy or construct an apartment building is becoming a thing of the past. Computer science has revealed in real estate, as in other industries, that there are better ways of arriving at a decision.

The basic factors have not changed: is it good design, close to a trade area, proper rental level for potential tenants' income? Is land cost in proportion, financing attractive, building construction sound? What about competition, population trends, prospective zoning changes?

Compiling these and other facts that a prospective owner of an apartment should know to make a sound decision has become the service of companies formed just for that purpose. Such real estate research companies perform their service most often for investments in the millions. Because so much is riding on the decision, investors want it based on all the facts possible. Research computers lend themselves to masses of data gleaned from a variety of sources.

The smaller investor can do the same thing, but with less sophisticated tools. Census data alone can yield facts about population growth, income levels, housing types in the neighborhood, average value of owner-occupied dwellings, average rentals. City maps show the location of schools and planned new schools. A survey from an auto window will reveal such items as churches, shopping areas, and recreation spots.

Out of this jumble of information it is useful to do a market analysis. And when it is completed and studied, much of the mystery of what to buy, where to buy, or whether to buy disappears. The decision becomes a matter of business sense, of matching cost to potential.

None of this is to say that a market analysis eliminates risk. We all know the absolutely sure investment is a rare commodity, indeed. Rather, it points out the risk, and isolates it, so the investor can take the proper safeguards to protect the money he has put into the property and the income he can reasonably expect to receive, to say nothing of other extremely important factors involved.

It is a tribute to the basic value of real estate that many owners of apartment buildings saw the advertisement, saw the building, saw the opportunity, and bought, successfully. As our population increases, becomes more urban and more complex, however, that route will be less used.

This wider employment of the methods developed by computer-oriented research has had another effect in the real estate market. It allows the beginner who might otherwise turn to other forms of investment to seriously consider this most basic method of building capital.

Fortunately, there are a considerable number of professionals who are qualified to help investors use this newer method. The realtor, the appraiser, the banker, the accountant, the tax specialist, all are aware of the value of market analysis and can help take the mystery out of successful real estate investment.

When you sell homes in your own neighborhood, you work harder.

If you're selling homes in Milwaukee, but you live in Chicago, the ultimate happiness of your customers sort of loses its importance. But when your customer is moving right across the street, or down the block, his happiness is something you'll notice day after day.

Which is why, if you're considering a home in the Northwest Suburbs, Village Square Realtors can do more for you than anyone else. You see, the realtors at Village Square work where they live.

They know more about the schools, the property values, the neighborhood, and the people, than practically anybody.

You'll be pleased with the attention you'll get from Village Square Realtors.

After all, what else are neighbors for?

We work where we live.

How To Avoid Unnecessary Service Calls

It's easy to avoid unnecessary appliance service calls.

How? Just be sure something's wrong with the appliance before you call a service technician.

Proof lies in the fact that appliance service companies report on automatic washers alone, about 40 per cent of first year service calls could be avoided.

Service calls on most appliances could be avoided by following these two simple rules:

First, learn all you can about your appliance.

Second, check a few simple items before you call a technician. Not only is it embarrassing to have a service technician tell you the machine isn't plugged in or that a fuse has blown, it can be expensive too.

How do you learn about your appliances?

When you purchase an appliance, ask the salesman for the owner's manual and installation guide before the unit is delivered. Then sit down with a cup of coffee and read both manuals thoroughly.

The owner's manual is your textbook and the salesman and service technician are your teachers. But it is your responsibility to use them. Ask questions. Don't be satisfied with the answers until you understand your appliance completely. And keep instruction books nearby for quick reference.

If you have lost your owner's manual, write the manufacturer. His address and model number (be sure to give the model number) will be stamped or printed on the appliance.

With proper use and care, you can expect years of trouble-free operation from your appliance. However, as with any other machine, appliances may need occasional adjustment.

But, before calling the service technician, check these items. They are the most common sources of unnecessary service calls:

1. Electric cord. Is it plugged in? This does happen.

2. Pilot light. Is it lit? Check your owner's manual before trying to light it.

3. Power source. Has a fuse blown or a circuit breaker moved to the off position?

4. Controls. Are they set correctly? Be positive by checking your owner's manual. Give push buttons an extra-firm push and turn dials in the proper direction.

5. Lights. If not on, check the power source. If the bulb's burned out, your owner's manual will tell you the type of bulb needed for replacement.

6. Dust, lint and dirt buildup. This reduces efficiency. Washer filters (if not self-cleaning) and dryer lint screens need to be cleaned after each use.

Dust and dirt can block your air conditioner filter. Check your owner's manual for instructions in changing or cleaning the filter.

Dust and dirt will also build up on the coils, back and beneath refrigerators and freezers. They should be cleaned periodically with a brush or vacuum cleaner attachment.

7. Water supply. Is water flowing into the appliance? Be sure faucets are turned on and hoses not kinked.

8. Doors and latches. Are they properly closed? Most appliances will not operate correctly unless doors and latches are closed tightly.

That's how to avoid the most common unnecessary appliance service calls. However, specific appliances have operating parts that may pose questions in your mind. These will be answered in future articles.

If you've made the basic checks and read your owner's manual and the appliance still doesn't operate correctly . . . it's time to call for help.

But don't call any fix-it man down the street. Get the job done right. Call your dealer and ask him to recommend a manufacturer's authorized service technician . . . or contact the manufacturer directly.

Your university extension center, utility home economist or county agent can be an additional source of information.

Or, you may write Whirlpool Corporation, Home Economist, Benton Harbor, on, Home Economist, Benton Harbor, Michigan 49022, or Landwehr's Home Appl., 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

By avoiding unnecessary service calls, you'll save money. That's one way to beat inflation.

Wisconsin Lake Sites Available

An additional 124 sites opened last week at Dutch Hollow Lake, the new second-home community created by the Branigan Organization in central Wisconsin.

Located at the northwest corner of the 2,350-acre planned community, the lots make up the Matterhorn and Sioux Trails subdivisions of Dutch Hollow. The sites are located on a peninsula jutting into the springfed lake, now under construction. Bays flank both sides of the new subdivisions, and piers and beaches will be added when the lake is completed next June.

Back on the mainland, the Dutch Hollow guest center has been finished and the $250,000 clubhouse-swimming pool complex is open.

Altogether, about 25 per cent of the sites have been sold at the lake in the rugged Wisconsin Dells region, near La Valle.

A picnic area and supervised playground have also been completed. Three pontoon boats and a paddle-wheeler are used for lake tours, now that the future 200-acre lake is partially filled. The 60-foot dam was completed last December and water is expected to reach permanent depths of up to 45 feet next spring.

Dutch Hollow Lake can be reached by taking Rte. 23 and 33 from the Reedsburg-Lake Delton I-94 turnoff and following the signs.

It is open daily from 9 a.m. until dusk. Although appointments are not necessary, visitors who wish to enjoy recreation facilities at the lake, such as the swimming pool, are urged to make an appointment by calling 464-1034 in Milwaukee; 257-5627 in Madison, or 985-7292 at Dutch Hollow Lake.

Arkansas Will Have Winter Sports Area

Arkansas' first winter sports resort is scheduled to make its formal bow next Dec. 15 when Jess P. Odom, Little Rock financier and entrepreneur, completes his multi-million dollar Marble Falls complex adjacent to Dogpatch USA on the slopes of the Ozarks near Harrison.

Plans for Marble Falls, announced today by Odom, include an unusually beautiful ski run, a ski lodge, a year-round ice skating rink, an alpine-type motor hotel and a large convention center complete with restaurants and capable of seating a thousand people.

Artificial snow-making facilities to supplement the normal snowfall at Marble Falls will be installed. "These slopes overlooking Dogpatch USA are usually covered with good ski snow during the season," Odom said, "but we will be well equipped to provide constant assurance of good ski conditions."

A huge antique car museum, housing classic exhibits of automobiles from two continents has already been constructed at Marble Falls and will be open year round, Odom said. Featuring regular weekend "junk auctions" the museum is attracting wide attention throughout the Mid-South.

"Arkansas offers a beautiful setting for winter sports," according to Odom, "and we believe that Marble Falls will lead the way to a tremendous growth in recreational facilities of this sort in our state. Starting on Dec. 15, the ski slope and winter sports activities will continue through March 15 each year."

Second Mortgage May Be Trouble

House-sellers who execute second mortgages in order to obtain quick cash for their equities can be borrowing trouble, too, according to the president of American's pioneer home-buying company.

Daniel C. Hanrahan, Elizabeth, N.J., president of POTERE, Inc., pointed out that the real estate industry has developed a number of plans under which — in the absence of a normal house sale — a seller can obtain cash from his former residence in order to buy a new one.

"Some, like the POTERE Equity Purchase (PEP) program, include an offer to buy such a property, at appraised valuation less costs," Hanrahan said. "Under PEP and similar plans, title changes hands and the seller has no further responsibility for his former house — no matter how long it might take the purchasing organization to re-sell it to a subsequent buyer."

"Other programs that guarantee a seller money from his old home so he can buy a new one may be predicated on a loan based on as much as 80 per cent of valuation, made against the proceeds of eventual sale of the house," Hanrahan said. "Such a loan typically is secured by a second mortgage against the property, payable to the lender after a stated period of time. But title and responsibility for the property remain with the seller."

If the real estate broker involved in a loan-against-equity transaction is able to sell the property promptly — and pay off the second mortgage — the seller has no worries, Hanrahan acknowledged.

"But the possibility must be considered that the house might not be sold during the term of the second mortgage," he warned. "In such an event, the seller would be faced with paying it off and having the former residence back in his hands, perhaps years after he thought he was free of it — or selling the property on a 'crash' effort at far less than listed price."

In addition, he is liable for interest payments on both original and second mortgages and real estate taxes on the property, Hanrahan pointed out.

Last year, Hanrahan broadened the concept to include individual sellers. Working through local real estate brokers throughout the 48 contiguous states, POTERE offers to take title to houses at their independently appraised valuations, less the estimated costs of reselling them.

"Sellers thus are enabled to go to their new communities, assured of receiving a known amount of money on an agreed-upon date," Hanrahan said. "They can make firm plans for their moves and purchase of new homes."

The PEP program includes two provisions designed to give a seller as much money as possible for the equity in his former home:

—If the actual costs of re-selling his property are less than estimated, he receives an additional check for the difference (but if costs exceed estimates, the loss is borne by POTERE and the broker in the transaction).

—In the period of 60 to 120 days between seller acceptance of a PEP offer and closing of the sale to POTERE, the broker might be able to sell to another buyer with a greater net return to the seller. In such a case, POTERE will release its interest in the property.

Your Garage Should Be Functional And Attractive

There was a time when a garage was storage for the family car. Generally it was a modest structure, usually set apart from the house, a sort of "second class citizen" in the residential environment.

However, all this has changed. The garage has been raised to a status level, adding to the curb-appeal of the home with styling in modern facing materials and appointments which enhance the showcase effect of today's housing.

Today the garage is a central "motor-pool" for not only the auto but also for the motorized lawnmower and snow-blower, the mini-bike and motor-scooter, children's velocipedes, mechanical machines used for house maintenance, and a variety of items such as garden furniture and cook-out equipment. Portions of today's garages are also used for workshop, gardening lab and hobby centers. Truly, garages have become all-purpose structures.

Republic Lumber Co., with four garage centers, two in Chicago, and in Oak Lawn and Bellwood, has a separate garage division which is one of the largest in the area having supplied plans, materials, equipment and construction services for over 20,000 garages during the past few years.

TUNING-IN TO THIS trend of upgrading the garage, Ira Nathanson, vice-president, comments:

"The garage is no longer the makeshift structure in a home setting. Distinctive architectural styling, materials and engineering techniques, comparable to those used on a home, now make up the complete residential package. People recognize that a structure that can provide so many functions — motor machine storage, extra recreation area, hobby center — merits the same attention given any room in the house."

An important aspect of a modern garage is the storage potential it offers. The appearance of many otherwise good-looking homes is marred by the ugly and cluttered appearance which usually faces the street. The collection of tools, toys and garden equipment often leaves little room for the family car. Visible too, are exposed studs, cinder block and the like which detract from the overall appearance.

One of the simplest, quickest, most economical improvements is to finish the interior of the garage with quarter-inch perforated hardboard paneling. When fitted with appropriate hooks and hanging hardware, heavy-duty perforated hardboard, sometimes known as garage liner, will turn the wasted walls into flexible working walls and greatly improve their appearance.

Garage liner is available in 4 by 8 foot and other standard dimensions, both pre-finished and ready-to-paint. It also can be obtained with the perforations only down to waistcoat height.

This durable board, easily workable with ordinary carpenter tools, is strong enough to hold heavy items like ladders, bicycles, lawnmowers and automobile wheels, as well as shelving, garden and workshop tools and similar items. The holes, covering the entire panel, permits placing the hanging hardware to any convenient height and utilizing the entire wall space.

IN ITS CHICAGO Center, Republic Lumber Co. is setting up a model all-purpose garage display, much like a builder presents a model home to demonstrate the various ways to make a garage more functional.

The swing toward better garage structures is also evident in the public's choosing engineered structural components and quality building materials that contribute to improved appearance and durability and assure low maintenance expense.

"We find a strong demand for hard-board siding on the exterior," says Nathanson, "both in the prefinished type, including the popular textured finishes, and in the preprimed panels which can be painted any desirable color. The siding is tough and dense, won't split or crack or splinter, nor dent or corrode, nor check which could cause paint failure.

"The outside of a garage can be subjected to impact from baseball throwing, bicycle and toy banging, the scratching of trees and bushes and other abuse, because of its location as a play and recreation area. Hence, it is practical and economical to select a siding which easily shrugs off these attacks. And hardboard siding does this."

As garages become more important in the overall home environment, the innovations available through specialized garage builders will improve the status of this one-forgotten structure. It may even revert to the old-fashioned coach house which was a vehicle-storage and secondary living quarters.

Centex Names Winkle Region Finance Chief

Centex Homes Corporation, home-builders and developers, has named Robert C. Winkle, director of finance of the Illinois Region, to the position of regional finance chief. Centex Homes Corporation is a subsidiary of Centex Corporation headquartered in Dallas, Texas.

In his new position, Winkle is responsible for the obtaining of mortgage money and heading of the Closing Department for the Illinois region which currently for nine active developments of townhouses, condominiums, single family homes and high rise apartments in the Chicago area.

Winkle has been associated with Centex Corporation (the parent company) for the past fifteen years and was most recently the firm's sales director in Elk Grove Village. He has been involved in the homebuilding field since 1962. A graduate of Northern Illinois University, he is a member of the Home Builders Association of Chicago for which he has served as a director. A former president of H.B.A.C.'s Sales and Marketing Council, he is currently an active member of that committee as well as the Mortgage Finance Committee.

Winkle is chairman of the board of McHenry Savings and Loan Association and is an active member of the Elk Grove Village Kiwanis Club which he helped found and has served as president. He and his wife, Mary, reside in Elk Grove Village and have two grown daughters.

Improve Laundry Facilities

Until recently, laundry facilities provided in most new homes (Even many deluxe models) consisted of a sink and wall space in the basement. Now, it's more usual for builders to provide "home clothes care centers" with better equipment, ample space, convenient locations and attractive decors.

Practically speaking, it does take more than a washer and dryer to make a proper laundry room. For instance:

- Countertop space for sorting, folding and on-the-spot mending.
- Good lighting and ventilation. A window to give natural light and fresh air is preferable, with supplemental vents or exhaust fans and strong-wattage overhead lights.
- Flooring that's easy to clean and comfortable underfoot (laundry chores are mostly stand-up jobs)

• Wall covering that's both practical and decorative. This is easily achieved with new materials such as plastic-surfaced hardboard panels, which are moisture- and humidity-resistant and can be washed clean. There's no utility-look about the panels. They come in attractive woodgrain designs, a variety of cheerful colors, and patterns of marble, mosaic, flowers and interesting textures.

• Shelving and storage for baskets, detergents and other laundry needs. A simple way to provide it is with a panel of perforated hardboard that matches the decorative paneling. Shelf brackets fit into the perforations, as do hooks for handy hang-up storage.

In some of the more extensively-designed laundry "centers," additional features include rods placed over elongated floor drains (for drip-dry clothes), sit-down ironing facilities and intercoms.

You can put your rent money to work for you instead of donating it to your landlord every month.

The same money can buy you a little peace and quiet out where a tree isn't an oddity and there's more grass than pavement.

And one heck of a home. Complete with goodies that usually cost extra. Quality carpeting (wall to wall), an all-electric kitchen (GE), central heating and air conditioning (the best). And then some.

Outside, it's impressive. Colonial. Down to the coach lamps and other nice touches, like siding painted genuine Williamsburg colors. And landscaping all around.

As for the price, it'll floor you. Only $20,990. Which, all things considered, is very little to pay for a whole lot of house. And to top it off, we even pay the closing costs!

So if you can afford a decent place in a decent neighborhood, you can afford to be your own landlord for a change. Because you don't need the customary colossal down payment—only $950. And your monthly payment is every bit as painless—only $151*.

There's a bonus besides. Every day's a holiday. From mowing, raking, pruning, painting, puttering, sprinkling, shoveling or otherwise dipping into your leisure time. All that's our headache.

Enough said. Except that our Shangrila is called Ivy Glen and you have to see it to believe it. Which you can do any day of the week from 10 to 10. In Palatine. On Baldwin Rd., north of Dundee (Rt. 68) between Rand and I-53.

Park District Purchase Among Realty Transfers

Arlington Heights Park District purchased the property at 2100 N. Fernandez, Arlington Heights, from Fred J. Schwantz for $7,500. It was announced in the mid-summer Wheeling township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

There were 121 sales in Arlington Heights, 42 in Mt. Prospect, 20 in Buffalo Grove, ten in Prospect Heights, two in Des Plaines and 18 in Wheeling and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document ($1.00 in stamps for each $1,000.00 of market value).

The transfers are:

Condominium Unit Opens

Centex Homes Corp. has opened Willow Creek number 5, the fourth condominium building in the planned total environment community located at Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway in Palatine. Valued at more than $3 million, the new four-story building will contain 116 one, two and three-bedroom condominiums ranging in price from $22,600 to $38,100.

Prospective purchasers at Willow Creek will have a choice of apartment homes with views overlooking either the lake, pool and recreation area or wooded areas.

Opened for sales on June 17, Willow Creek number 5 is scheduled for occupancy beginning in the spring of 1973. Willow Creek number 4 is over 90% sold and the first families are scheduled to move in beginning in October. Some 192 families are already living in the first two condominium buildings at Willow Creek. The other residential building at Willow Creek contains rental apartment units.

According to Jim Riedy, sales manager of Willow Creek, value for the money (spacious rooms with a good traffic pattern) and ideal location are the two major selling factors. "People like its proximity to the expressways, Woodfield Shopping Center, the train station and Palatine's downtown shopping center," said Riedy. "They particularly comment on the convenience of being within walking distance of the Willow Creek Theatre, Suburban National Bank, service station, restaurant and shopping facilities within the Willow Creek commercial complex. The availability of indoor parking in the heated garage is another feature that many condominium owners consider," he said.

THE FULL facilities of an outdoor swimming pool, adjoining clubhouse which features a party room with kitchen, billiards room and card rooms, and children's play area also have been major factors in the popularity of the community.

The two-bedroom, two-bath condominium which provides 1,232 square feet of living space is typical of the apartment homes at Willow Creek. It also includes a 65-square-foot terrace, air conditioning and heating with individual controls, wall-to-wall carpeting and closed circuit TV security system.

The four-story elevator buildings have laundry facilities on every other floor and individual storage rooms on every floor. The two-bedroom apartment home is priced from $28,400.

Model condominiums located at 415 Creekside Drive (at the intersection of Rte. 53 and Northwest Highway in Palatine) are open for inspection daily from 10:00 a.m. until 7:00 p.m.

CENTEX HOMES Corp. has recently opened Willow Creek No. 5, the fourth condominium in the building complex located in Palatine at Rt. 53 and Northwest Highway. Prospective purchasers will have a choice of apartment homes with a variety of views, ranging from recreational to wooded.

O'Hare Lake Plaza Nears Completion

O'Hare Lake Office Plaza, Devon Avenue and the Tri-State Tollway in Des Plaines, will be completed over one year ahead of schedule, reports developer Arthur J. Rogers.

Ground-breaking for the 60 acre, 30 million dollar development took place on Oct. 12, 1967 with a projected completion of Spring, '73. Close-in work is complete on the 9th and last building with occupancy scheduled for Oct. 1st. Five and 4-story buildings now grace the shoreline of a 20 acre spring fed lake, the focal point of the plaza complex. The modified Williamsburg structures, with elegant 2-story lobbies, were designed by the noted Chicago architect Roy B. Blass.

Rogers has also developed 2 other major office centers in Des Plaines: O'Hare Office Center, Devon and Des Plaines avenues, and O'Hare Office Center-North, 2720 Des Plaines Avenue.

With completion of building 5 at the Lake Plaza, Rogers Enterprises will aggregate 900,000 square feet in the 3 office developments.

"The contributing factors to the Lake Plaza acceleration were the continued growth-in-demand for O'Hare Airport office space and the application of the same philosophy which made our earlier office developments a success," Rogers said.

"Companies relocate in the suburbs to escape what they've endured in the city. The saturation point with the pattern of old —business concentration in urban areas — has been reached," Rogers observed. "Today's businessman is questioning the necessity of submitting to the mundane irritants that have become a cost of doing business."

"Our approach has been to give businessmen a clear alternative — to improve the quality of their life, if you will, by specifically designing our office centers to reflect the distinct advantages of a suburban location. We selected from available land in the O'Hare area, those sites away from air-traffic patterns and most ideally situated in relation to the interstate system. An architectural form was conceived to enhance the character and maintain the quality of the community. We purposefully turned from the maximum land utilization trend in land development. A significant reason for our success has been the park-like settings of greenery and open areas — a suburban charm — we have imparted to our centers."

Buildings occupy about 10 per cent of the available land at Rogers' developments. The remaining 90 per cent is devoted to landscaping, and the largest free parking per square foot of office space in the Chicago area. Rogers has negated the potential problem of unrelieved monotony created with spacious parking by employing a professional landscaper and crew year 'round to create, plant and maintain the grounds of his office centers.

"Everything we have done in regard to landscaping/parking areas is subject to periodic review," said Rogers. "In fact, our design staff has just completed drawings for revision of a major portion of the Lake Plaza parking. An examination, based on almost 100 per cent occupancy of the 2 buildings involved, indicated that we could safely put an area equal to 50 cars into landscaping."

"Beyond the physical and practical considerations in planning our office centers," Rogers said, "we studied the aspect of the interaction between man and his environment. This research indicated the most desired features and conveniences. We incorporated these and innovations of our own to create an efficient, attractive, and stimulating atmosphere — a feeling of warmth and welcome that engenders a rapport between tenants and between tenant and management. An atmosphere that eases the pressure of business and develops a happier, more productive individual."

Proof of the success of Art Rogers' approach is the occupancy figures of his developments. O'Hare Office Center, consisting of 6 buildings representing approximately 200,000 sq. ft., is fully leased. The North building, 100,000 sq. ft., is 98 per cent occupied. O'Hare Lake Office Plaza, with 1/3 of the present 332,000 sq. ft. just recently available, is approaching the 90 per cent mark.

Transferees Key Hilldale Success

Certainly the northwest suburban communities of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg have experienced a tremendous amount of building activity over the past two years. Major shopping centers and large independent retailers have opened in the area, and both large and small industries have chosen to relocate or to open new facilities nearby. What has followed, quite naturally, has been a tremendous boom in residential construction. The one aspect of this residential building activity that strikes many people is the large number of rental projects. No doubt many people wonder where all the renters are coming from and what type of people are being attracted to the area.

Hilldale Village and Country Club, a Multicon rental community in Hoffman Estates recently completed a rental profile of its tenants to help answer these and other pertinent questions. Although the study was undertaken at one large rental complex it should offer some insight into the total rental picture in the northwestern suburbs.

The 258 acre Hilldale Village development presently consists of "Augusta Village," a 312-unit rental community, and "Spyglass Hill" a contemporary designed 246-unit rental complex. Rentals range from $200 to $420 at "Augusta Village," and from $190 to $305 at "Spyglass Hill," with each "village" offering tenants a pool, play house, tennis courts, bike trails and party areas for children.

The first fact brought out by the study would certainly seem to reflect the large influx of new industry to the northwest suburbs since 45 per cent of all Hilldale residents are transferees to the Chicago area.

The colonial inspired "Augusta Village" is their particular favorite, with transferees numbering 51 per cent of the residents of that village. Local area residents constitute the second major market for Hilldale with 36 per cent of the total residents having previously lived in the northwest suburbs.

Local area residents slightly favor the contemporary designed "Spyglass Hill" village. Chicago with 9 per cent and the western suburbs with a 7 per cent figure provide the remaining bulk of present renters, while the north and south suburbs follow in that order.

The average head of the household age at Augusta is 32, while the figure drops to 29 years at Spyglass. Neither village would be classified as a "singles" complex since 84 per cent of Augusta renters and 75 per cent of Spyglass residents are married.

Hilldale Village has 1.5 children per family with half of the children being under 5 years of age. In fact at Spyglass Hill 42 per cent are under 3 years of age.

The average income per household at Hilldale is $12,600. Almost half of the residents work locally while one-fourth work in Chicago. Sales constitutes the largest single (25 per cent) profession with almost another quarter of the residents involved in management. The chemical and service areas rank next in percentage. Hilldale also sports a large number of airline personnel, engineers and policemen.

Over 40 per cent of the present Hilldale residents were attracted to Hilldale through newspaper readership, while 32 per cent were driving in the area, and another 24 per cent came to Hilldale through the recommendation of a then present tenant.

Richard Adashek, marketing director for Multicon Properties, Inc., Chicago, who conducted the study, believes the success of Hilldale Village lies in Multicon's comprehensive land plan and a willingness to stick to it.

Adashek stated that this same total environment formula with its large portions of open space and its variety of recreational facilities will be followed in all future Multicon efforts in Chicago.

Want total real estate service? Let Starck serve your six needs .....

IF YOU WISH TO SELL A HOME . . .

- 1. PROFESSIONAL RELIABILITY. We conduct our business with the very highest ethics and standards so that you will get quality service from each Starck sales associate and from every person connected with our organization. Our selection standards and training for sales associates insure that you should receive outstanding service at all times. (If there is ever any problem, please call our president, Robert W. Starck: 255-2000 in daytime or CL 3-7273 at night.)
- 2. TOP PRICE. On every home we list, we do an evaluation of the property and furnish you a copy of a Competitive Market Analysis. This way you know that your property is priced "right." Overpricing is just as bad as underpricing.
- 3. FAST SALE. Your home gets immediate exposure through M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service and through our effective mass advertising. 30,000 Home Guide booklets are sent each quarter to homeowners, nationwide Realtors, corporations transferring personnel. Weekly ads in Paddock Publications, Copley Papers, daily ads in Chicago papers add to the exposure. Our exclusive membership in Inter-City Relocation Service brings us hundreds of transferred buyers from Realtors across the country. Our Guarantee Sale program permits a buyer to buy your home in spite of the fact that his old home is still unsold. Open house tours and all the other marketing efforts usually result in exceptionally fast sales for our clients.
- 4. FREEDOM. When you sell with us, you never feel "tied down." Just live and enjoy a normal life while we handle the complete sale of your home. Come and go as you please. Our sales associates only bring fully qualified buyers to your home, never just "lookers."
- 5. COMMUNICATION. The sales associate that will be assigned to your listing will keep in weekly contact with you and keep you informed of everything that is happening at all times.

IF YOU WISH TO BUY A HOME . . .

- 1. PROFESSIONAL RELIABILITY. We conduct our business with the very highest ethics and standards so that you will get quality service from each Starck sales associate and from every person connected with our organization. Our selection standards and training for sales associates insure that you should receive outstanding service at all times. Check us out with any local banker, attorney or Chamber of Commerce.
- 2. GOOD ADVICE. Everything you need to know to help you make a wise selection of a home will be furnished you by your Starck sales associate. Neighborhood and area conditions, school information, tax rates and most important of all, you will receive good advice about home values. We are particularly concerned that you purchase a home that has outstanding resale value in the event you are ever transferred or wish to sell.
- 3. PRIVACY. We think that you will enjoy visiting our offices because they are arranged so that you and your family can discuss your home requirements with one of our sales associates in quiet and private surroundings.
- 4. SAVE TIME. Although our salesmen have over 1,000 different homes to show you at all times, they know that your time is valuable and will only show you the very best home values in the price range that you have specified. They listen to what you have to say about your desires and needs in a home and then "zero in" on those homes that fill the bill. Our Guarantee Sale program permits you to select a new home even before your present home is sold with the assurance that you will never own two homes and have to make double mortgage payments simultaneously.
- 5. SAVE MONEY. By properly advising you on the homes that are the best values and through their up-to-the-minute knowledge of the best mortgage rates, our sales associates will assist you in getting the best home buy and the best financing available.
- 6. WORRY-FREE FOLLOW-UP. Because we are one of the few Realtors in the area with a special Closing Department, you can rest assured that all details of the sale will be handled with the utmost efficiency in cooperation with your attorney or mortgage company.

Consider Heating Plant, Not Fuel

Competition between fuel oil, gas, and electricity for heating business — often called the "battle of the fuels" — is obscuring what is really important to the consumer, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

There is danger that the intensive promotion of such confusing terms as "oil heat," "gas heat" and "electric heat" can mislead the home buyer as to what comes first in home heating comfort, warns the council.

Stressing the importance of the heating system, the council suggests that home buyers ask themselves which they would do first: Select the make of a new car or decide what gasoline to use?

The situation is the same when it comes to home heating, according to the council. The home buyer must first select the heating system because it is the system, not the fuel which determines comfort. Later, he can select the fuel choosing the one which offers the most economy, service and convenience.

Revised Apartment Lease Form Effective This Month

Beginning in mid-August, Chicagoans who lease or renew leases on apartments will be offered a revised lease form containing three major changes designed to improve landlord-tenant relations.

Ernest C. Knecht, Chicago Real Estate Board president, said the changes include:

— Affirmation of the tenant's right to be paid interest on his security deposit as required by law.

— Affirmation of the responsibility to maintain the apartment in a habitable condition, and of the tenant's right to sue for damages if this responsibility is not fulfilled.

— Requirements on the construction of water beds, mud beds, and similar furniture which can damage the apartment structure and endanger other residents.

A fourth revision deals with management-union relations.

"The new provisions do not affect current unexpired leases, but will appear in new leases or renewed leases," Knecht said.

Copies of the revised lease form 12 will soon be available to landlords and property owners through commercial and legal stationers. While owners and managers are free to use any lease form they wish, the majority use the C.R.E.B. form, Knecht added, including those who are not members.

The revisions were made after months of study by the lease revision committee of C.R.E.B.'s renting and management division. William Lyman, chairman of the committee, explained the changes were made in recognition of public policy.

"CERTAIN PORTIONS of the former lease form were out of date or contrary to recently-passed legislation," he said. "For example, Illinois law now requires that in buildings with 25 or more units in cities over 500,000, tenants must receive interest on security deposits. The new lease form recognizes this, but also stipulates that no interest is payable to tenants in buildings not covered by the law."

On the matter of habitability, the new lease form holds the landlord responsible for maintaining the apartment in a condition reasonably and decently fit for human habitation. He must also maintain the building so that it does not endanger the tenant's life, health, and safety.

The tenant has the right to sue for damages if there is a breach of this provision, unless the tenant himself caused the breach, or if the owner was not given the chance to correct the conditions.

"In any event, the new lease form makes it clear that the tenant may not withhold rent because of a breach, nor may he use damages to set off any rent due," Lyman said. Rent withholding is considered by real estate authorities to be extremely detrimental to the quality of urban housing. Realtors contend the delay would lower the owner's income, tend to increase building abandonments, and discourage investment in low and middle income housing.

Also included in the habitability provision is the statement of the tenant's responsibility to adhere to all applicable municipal codes, to refrain from storing refuse, garbage, and litter on the premises, and to maintain his apartment in good order.

While water beds and similar heavy contrivances have not yet become widespread problems, there have been many instances where these devices have ruined floors, caused water damage, and wreaked havoc in other ways. The new lease form prohibits water beds except when contained by proper frame and liner.

Lyman's committee is working on a new lease that will contain additional revision. It is expected to be ready by spring, 1973.

Shopping Center Expansion, Remodeling Near Completion

The final stages of a major expansion and remodeling program which have produced a totally new look for the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center are nearing completion.

Included in the improvement program are enlargement and remodeling of the Jewel Food Store at the east end of the center, together with major alterations on the canopy and frontage between the Jewel store and the recently enclosed mall.

"When these structural modifications and improvements are done, we'll have a practically brand new, more convenient, and more beautiful shopping center," said Leo Koltz, vice president of the Commercial Management Division of Baird & Warner, Inc., leasing and management agents for the center.

"In effect, we will have transformed the exterior from a 1956 shopping center into a 1972 version," said Koltz.

Highlight of the latest phase in the program is the 50 per cent expansion of the Jewel Store from 18,000 square feet to 27,500 square feet. Besides providing a bigger food store, Jewel staff architects and the architectural firm of Ted S. Quintas and Associates have created a novel and appealing new look for the store.

Together with the Jewel outlet alterations, Baird & Warner has completely remodeled the canopy and frontage of the center between the food store and the enclosed mall. The total cost of expansion and remodeling exceeds $400,000, according to Koltz.

Architect Stuart Wolf, in cooperation with Jewel architects, has used both the mansard slope of the new Jewel front and the reddish brown color of the steel mansard roof to set the basic design tone for the center.

THE MANSARD style is used on the new canopy, the Jewel store and the bank. Wolf also added new red brick columns to give the entire center a better "sense of solidarity" than was conveyed by the light, temporary marquee. He has also built up parapets of red brick between some of the stores.

The overall effect now is that of a sturdy, ultra-contemporary shopping center which is color coordinated through architectural material which complements the original design.

In 1971, the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center completed a $1.5 million remodeling program which included a major expansion and re-design of the Crawford Department Store; the addition of an enclosed mall; and the redesign and tripling of space for the Bank of Rolling Meadows.

General contractor for the current canopy remodeling, which extends to each side of the enclosed mall, is Vedra Construction Co., Berwyn.

S&Ls Boost Mortgage Market Share

By an increasingly wide margin, savings and loan associations are becoming the major source of mortgage money for home buyers.

John P. Farry, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, said the trend goes back to the post-World War II era but has assumed special significance in today's inflation-prone economy.

The League is the biggest trade association for the savings and loan business, which has $221 billion in assets and holds more home mortgage loans than all other major lenders combined. Farry is also president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Albert Lea, Minnesota.

"Inflation has made it possible for other lenders to get higher yields elsewhere, and many have decided to reduce their commitments in the home loan field," Farry observed.

"They are channeling more money into other types of investments leaving more of the home financing responsibility to us."

Farry added that one consequence of the trend is that home buyers and sellers have an even greater stake in the fortunes of the savings and loan business, currently experiencing one of its best years in a decade.

Another is that it tends to support firmer interest rates. Associations must spread their money further in order to meet a greater share of the nation's demand for home financing.

In 1971, Farry noted, the savings and loan share of the increase in private home mortgage debt was billion, or a very substantial 76.6 per cent of the total. Including multi-family properties, their share of the increase in the private residential sector was 67.5 per cent of the total.

In the first 1972 quarter, home mortgage debt held by associations rose by $4.1 billion, or a whopping 32.8 per cent of the private sector increase. Including multi-family housing, savings and loans accounted for $5.1 billion, or 77.2 per cent, of the total increase.

In contrast, during the first 1972 quarter mutual savings banks put just $1.2 billion of their gain in resources in home loans and $5.3 billion in corporate bonds. Life insurance companies reduced home loan holdings by $3.8 billion while increasing corporate bond holdings by $4.4 billion.

"Fortunately for home buyers," Farry went on, "savings have continued flow into our institutions at a brisk rate in 1972 and we have plowed nearly all of this money into more loans on homes and apartments."

"In fact, in 1972 our lending programs got off to one of the strongest starts in years, both for new homes and existing dwellings."

"More than half the loans made by our institutions are on existing homes, providing the liquidity essential for the support of active local residential real estate markets and sound property values."

Savings associations now hold 47 per cent of the nation's total home mortgage debt, up sharply from the 29 per cent they held in 1950, when the postwar housing boom began picking up steam.

During the same time span, the commercial bank share dropped from 21 per cent to 15.6 per cent and the life insurance company share fell from 18.8 per cent to 7.6 per cent, while the mutual savings bank share rose from 9.5 per cent to 12.5 per cent.

Realtor Promotes Berth To Manager

Wallace Berth

Homefinders Realtors recently announced the appointment of Wallace "Bud" Berth as manager of the Buffalo Grove office at 100 W. Dundee Rd.

Berth received status as a "Million Dollar Salesman" in 1971 and has achieved a million dollars in real estate sales during the first half of 1972.

Berth has a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin and has had previous sales experience with General Electric Co. before joining Homefinders.

Bud and his wife, Dorothy, reside in Buffalo Grove and are active in local affairs. He is past chairman of the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission and his wife is past president of the Buffalo Grove Garden Club.

DeMarco Joins Twinoak Inc.

B. A. DeMarco

B. A. DeMarco of Palatine, has joined the staff at Twinoak Products, Inc., Batavia, as vice president-sales, in charge of the drug, grocery, plumbing and heating industries, according to Richard L. McDuffee, president.

DeMarco will head-up a national campaign on the company's automatic bowl cleaner, as well as its new concept in humidification media, which is the first of its kind to be offered to the plumbing and heating industry.

DeMarco's vast sales background has been with E. R. Squibb & Sons, where he advanced from salesman to Chicago regional sales manager, over four division managers and 84 salesmen. He has also served as vice president in charge of Midwest operations for Geotek Resources Fund.

RCA Cites George Reiling

George Reiling

George E. Reiling of Park Ridge, salesman in the Central District Sales Office, Des Plaines, for RCA Solid State Division, has been cited as an outstanding salesman for 1971.

The citation commends Reiling for increasing his sales by 120 per cent over his 1970 level, with particular success in power transistors and linear integrated circuits. He was also recognized for again exceeding $1 million in total sales. Daniel P. Del Frate, marketing director for the solid state division, made the presentation to Reiling during a recent visit to the district office.

Kraft Foods Promotes Rowe

W. A. Nick Rowe

W. A. Nick Rowe of 204 W. Hiawatha Tr., Mount Prospect, has been appointed director of sales operations for Kraft Foods, according to an announcement by C. R. LeMaster, senior vice president of sales and sales operations.

Rowe, previously manager of sales operations, joined Kraft's southern division sales office in a distribution assignment in 1948. He was appointed western division distribution manager in 1962 and eastern division distribution manager in 1960. He was brought into Kraft's worldwide headquarters in Chicago in 1963 as manager of sales distribution and, in 1968, was named manager of sales operations.

Robert Johns Salesman For Bethlehem Steel

Robert Johns

The appointment of Robert W. Johns as salesman in the structural shapes sales division for Bethlehem Steel Corp., Bethlehem, Pa., was announced by John G. White Jr., general manager of sales for the corporation.

Johns previously was a salesman in Bethlehem's Chicago sales district.

A Chicago native, Johns is a graduate of Glenbrook High School and earned a bachelor of science degree in management from the University of Illinois in 1965.

He joined Bethlehem Steel as a member of the 1965 Loop management training program. The following year, after initial training in executive sales at the home office, he was assigned to the Chicago office as a salesman.

Johns has served as an officer with the Northbrook Jaycees and with Winston Knolls Homeowners Association. He also has been a member of the Northbrook Industrial Development Commission and Hoffman Estates Zoning Board of Appeals.

He and his family reside at 414 Winston Dr., Hoffman Estates, but plan to move to the Bethlehem area shortly.

Anthony Attends Education Seminar

Norman Anthony of 1202 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, attended a Human Relations Seminar for educators at National College of Education, Evanston-Wilmette, July 17-28.

The seminar, entitled Educational Renewal in a Desegregated Setting, was conducted by the National College Institute for Program Development in Equal Educational Opportunity in cooperation with the Illinois Education Association Human Relations Department and the Commission on Human Relations.

Sales Award To Bob Duffy

Wheeling resident Robert E. Duffy, 918 E. Old Willow, an insurance representative with Combined Insurance Co. of America, has received an award for outstanding sales and service to the public.

Paul Bordonaro, regional manager of Illinois, said Duffy won the pearl award in the W. Clement Stone International Sales and Management Achievement Club. The honorary organization is named after the company's founder and board chairman.

Combined specializes in accident and health income-protection and life insurance. Duffy joined Combined as a representative in 1972 and his work in service to policyholders earned him his reward.

Applies For Patent

John W. Woodward, 918 Sharon Ln., Schaumburg, of the switching laboratories of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake, has applied for a U.S. patent.

Woodward is the inventor of a programmed telephone code translator circuit for translating customer-dialed digits into a form usable in a telephone switching system.

Day Care Chain Expands

Children's World Comes To The Suburbs

by DOROTHY OLIVER

A new concept in day care centers is taking shape in the northwest suburbs. Social Dynamics Inc., a Minneapolis-based corporation which built and now operates four day care centers in Minnesota, has expanded its operation to this area.

In 1970 Social Dynamics opened two full-time day care centers in the Minneapolis-St. Paul suburban area. By the end of the first year the schools were filled and two more centers were constructed, opening last fall.

THIS FALL THE corporation will open its fifth school in the Twin Cities as well as the two Children's World day care centers in this area.

"We operate under the concept that there are advantages in our policy of opening a number of schools in the same area," said Bob Benson, in charge of creating the northwest suburban centers. "When we became interested in growing beyond Minneapolis, we looked for an area capable of supporting several schools as well as being education conscious."

"We looked this area over carefully before coming here," he continued. "We felt a need existed. There is a lack of centers and a lot of working mothers."

During the first week of October the first Children's World will open at 1020 S. Hunt Club Rd., Mount Prospect. The second day care center will open Oct. 20 at 421 N. Springinguth, Schaumburg. Future plans include two additional centers, very possibly in the northwest suburbs, to open in 1973.

SOCIAL DYNAMICS' concept of day care centers is a first for this area. The architecture of the 7,000 square foot, one-story centers is identical right down to closets, storage areas and playgrounds (although improvements have been made on the design since the original center was built). Individual staff are hired to care for the children and supervise growth and development at each center, yet all top level administration, purchasing, bookkeeping, etc., are done from the central office in Minneapolis.

Operations are on a mass production basis — except the handling of children. "In many instances day care has not been particularly education oriented or very concerned with the social or psychological development of children," said

TODAY STEEL FRAME and wood beams. By October more than 100 children will call it "home away from home." Bob Benson, vice president of Social Dynamics Inc., Dora Fowler, and Judy Cohan check out the future site of Children's World day care center in Mount Prospect, one of two centers to be operated by Social Dynamics in the northwest suburbs. Judy will direct the Mount Prospect facility; Dora, the Schaumburg one.

Judy Cohan, director of the Mount Prospect Children's World. "It has often been very custodial with large numbers of children moved en masse from activity to activity."

"A BASIC PART OF our philosophy — and something we feel is very important — is to not treat children as a mass, but rather as individuals," she said.

Judy, Dora Fowler, director of the Schaumburg center, and Bob Benson together developed an educational philosophy to guide operation of Children's World centers. The philosophy tries to provide an environment that allows a child to discover, to express curiosity, to develop at his own rate, to be creative and to form a realistic and satisfying self-image.

Each child, according to the three, will be given individual attention by adult instructors; observations and evaluations will be made on each child on a regular basis. Parent-teacher conferences will be scheduled to involve the parents in this area of their child's life.

"A KEYNOTE OF the Children's World program is respect for children as human beings whose ideas and feelings have value," Benson said. "The development in each child of dignity, self-confidence and self-respect are major goals whose accomplishment depends heavily on the ability of our adult staff to give warmth, love and respect to each child."

Children will be involved in group activities with children their own age, at times mix with children of other age groups, and allowed some time for activities on an individual basis. Large numbers of children will be brought together for specific instructional activities such as storytelling, singing, reading readiness, games, dancing, etc.

A 12-person staff will operate each of the centers, designed to care for up to 120 children. The schools will be open from 6:45 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Three programs are available: full day care, half-day nursery school and kindergarten, and before and after school care.

THE FULL-TIME PROGRAM is for children aged 2½-6. Tuition, paid weekly or monthly, will range from $7 for a one-day-a-week child to $30 for a five-day-a-week child.

Children 2½ to 6 years old are also eligible for the nursery school and kindergarten programs. Three-hour sessions are offered mornings and afternoons. Children may attend five days a week at a monthly cost of $65; three days a week for $43 or two days a week for $30.

Before and after school care is available for children in kindergarten, first, second and third grades. Parents are responsible for arranging transportation to and from the child's other school. Tuition is based on the number of hours per day a child spends at the center.

A special summer program for children up to age 12 is also planned to begin in mid-June and run for 10 weeks.

SPECIAL RATES ARE given to families with more than one child enrolled in Children's World.

Information on enrollment is available from Bob Benson by calling 928-4662.

"We feel we have an outstanding quality program," Benson said. "Quality is a most important word when applied to day care. Parents are the ones who can demand it and seek it out."

Fun Is What It's All About

Blind Kids Go To Summer Camp

by DON BEMAN

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Like many normal child activities, summer camp used to be just a dream for blind or visually impaired children. Not any more.

In 1967, Ray Hubbart decided that despite an apprehension of parents and others, the visually handicapped had just as much right to enjoy a summer outing as any other child.

He opened a one-week camp in Florida, with the financial backing of the Christian Record Braille Foundation, headquartered in Lincoln.

The foundation, after studying the results, named Hubbart national blind camps director and gave him the go-ahead to expand.

In 1970, three camps were offered. That was increased to six in 1971 and this summer applications were accepted for 11 week-long camps in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Massachusetts, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Washington, Virginia and California.

LAST YEAR, youngsters ranging in age from 9 to 13 attended the camps from 26 states. This year, applications were accepted from 40-plus states at an average of 80 per camp and indications were the number of sites will have to be increased again next year.

The foundation said its program is not the only effort of its kind. On a single-state basis, camps have been started in Texas and Wisconsin at various times.

"But nobody has the money to keep them going," said R. L. Sheldon, public relations director for the foundation.

The foundation has behind its camp project an international organization which serves the visually impaired in 88 countries with the necessary funding mechanism to provide everything to their clients free of charge, including the camps.

Although affiliated with the Seventh-Day Adventist church, the foundation provides braille and large print books, recorded magazines, taping services for textbooks, equipment and other services on a non-sectarian basis.

TO AID THOSE in the United States, the foundation has a network of 90 field representatives who work directly with the visually handicapped and also head area fund drives.

The camps cost $60 per child in direct expenses and while parents may contribute, national fund-raising efforts are conducted each fall for the next year's program.

Even trading stamp drives are included in those efforts. Twenty-five books equals the $50 fee needed.

But, Hubbart said, even with the tradition of the foundation behind each camp, there is still a parental timidity about sending their blind or visually impaired children to one.

"We know almost every child wants to go," he said, "but we also know that almost every parent is apprehensive."

Helping parents allay their fears is the job of the foundation's area representatives who, at the same time, take care of arrangements.

PART OF THE apprehension may even result from the list of camp activities, Hubbart said.

Reading it gives no indication that participants have any special problems. Camp brochures list water skiing, swimming, boating, horsebackriding, archery and nature walks as some of the activities.

However, the brochure-applications differ from others in that each parent must sign an agreement which allows the news media to visit camps with cameras in hand.

Parents are told the reason is that "we want everyone to know that our children and their interests are no different than those of any wholesome, red-blooded child."

At camp, there are a few differences, but not as many as one would think, Hubbart said.

For example, safety lines are strung around the camp and one counselor may have no more than four charges at any one time. But the sites are not specifically designed for the visually handicapped and, except for the week the foundation uses them, they serve as regular summer camps.

HUBBART ALSO SAID no large, specially trained staff is imported to operate the camp for the week of use by blind youngsters. A short training session for existing camp personnel is held just prior to the time the children arrive and daily sessions are held as needed to take care of special problems.

Of course, there are other differences, the director conceded, such as in the handicrafts department.

"Their work may not be the best, but the thrill of doing the same things as their sighted friends enjoy makes up for any technical deficiency," he said.

In one respect, at least, the blind youngsters go one up on their sighted friends in activities. That is a "hands-on instead of hands-off zoo."

Each camp has a nature center where the children are allowed to "see" tamed animals with their hands. Included are alligators, raccoons and black bears.

But over-all "fun is what it's all about," Hubbart said. And brochures reassure parents: "All campers are a sacred trust to us and we pledge ourselves to help each camper receive the thrill that summer camping offers."

(Editor's note: Persons interested in more particulars about the camping program may write National Camps for the Blind, Box 6087, Lincoln, Neb. 68504.)

Herbs Still Used To Treat Illness

by JIMMY F. KEMP

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—If someone offers you a little tansy root for what ails you, don't just laugh it off.

Herbs — or folk medicine — are used all over the world to treat illness from diabetes to indigestion. And though herb medicine appears to be disappearing, it still forms a distinct medical subculture that varies from ethnic group to ethnic group.

Using plants and part of plants to treat disease has attracted the attention of Dr. Clarissa Kimber, a Texas A&M University researcher who is studying and classifying herbs found along the U.S.-Mexican border on the basis of their medicinal use.

"A great many women use plant remedies before going to a doctor," Dr. Kimber says. "Some women have told me that if they have gone to a doctor without quick relief, they turn to herbal medicine."

So far, Dr. Kimber has classified more than 400 specific herb medicines made up of their whole plants or stems, flowers, fruit, bark or roots.

SHE HAS concentrated her efforts on plants that grow along the border in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Technically, Dr. Kimber is a plant geographer, and one of her main interests is how folk remedies are transmitted from one area to another.

"Like many cultural items, folk medicines can be shown to have origins quite far away from their scene of present use," Dr. Kimber says. "To see the castor bean growing so commonly in Texas, you would never know it is a native African plant."

The oil of the castor bean, one of the most common folk remedies, is used by many American families as a laxative and lubricant.

Some of the more common plants utilized in making herb remedies along the U.S.-Mexico border include native ones such as purple sage, cud weed, estafiate and sunflower seeds.

THE MOST COMMON plants — the castor bean, pirul peppers, peppermint, rosemary, and basil — were imported to the New World during the Spanish conquest of Mexico.

Along the border, the ailing seeking a herb remedy visit curanderos, or folk curers, who tell them what to take for their particular complaint.

"Most curanderos practice clandestinely," Dr. Kimber says, because their prescriptions are tantamount to practicing medicine without a license.

Many other persons visit herb shops, which are legal, and buy the different plants available without inquiring into their specific uses. They find out later that eating papaya fruit is one treatment for indigestion.

Additional remedies in the Mexican-American pharmacopoeia include a tea of zendo leaves for kidneys and respiratory organs, a tea of laurel leaves to help start the flow during menstruation, and a brew from twigs and bark of retama for diabetes.

Women Executives Still Meet With Discrimination

by ALISON GODDARD

Albany, N.Y. — Although many women try to get ahead by concentrating on the so-called "female" professions, one reached the top by seeking "the kinds of jobs that women are not expected to have," she's Ersel Poston, president of New York State's civil service commission and holder of the highest civil service job in that state.

Commissioner Poston notes that most managerial jobs, both in government and in the private sector, are invariably controlled by men. "A qualified woman can't get near them," she says, "unless the man doing the hiring is terribly liberated himself." In most cases, when a man rather than a woman is selected for a high level job, she adds, "you'd have a devil of a time trying to prove it was discriminatory. It's so very subtle. Yet it happens all the time."

Ersel Poston knew from the start that she didn't want to be put in any of those "patronizing feminine kinds of positions" in civil service, she says. "I wanted to be treated as a professional. But I realized, as I worked my way up the managerial ladder, that I had to keep proving I could handle the requirements of the job, as any new boss would."

"WE WOMEN executives are often accused of spending half our time with frivolities," Mrs. Poston observes. "When I first became Civil Service Commissioner, I was shocked to discover the men thought I'd have my staff do all the work, while I spent most of my time at the hairdresser's or at cocktail parties."

Mrs. Poston's male colleagues have since learned otherwise. "I don't capitalize on being a woman. I don't flaunt my femininity," she declares. "I make a point of dealing with both men and women in an honest day-to-day, face-to-face relationship. Their time is important. My time is important. Being open and direct with one another is the only way to get our jobs done."

The commissioner notes that although she herself has shied away from traditionally female occupations, numerous job opportunities for women do exist in these fields. "We can't buy enough, grow enough, or build enough social workers," she says.

"WE MUST often go outside the country — and waive our usual citizenship requirements — in order to get them." There are also serious shortages, she reports, of librarians, dietitians, occupational therapists and physiotherapists.

Women are always in demand too for entry level clerical jobs in civil service, Mrs. Poston notes. Men supervisors often find mature women "more acceptable" for such jobs than girls fresh out of school, she adds. "The men claim," Ersel Poston says, "that after they've taken the time to train the girls, they usually go off, get married and have babies."

"But whether women operate on higher or lower vocational levels," Mrs. Poston declares, "they're not being given the opportunities for position, promotion and the other opportunities that go with equal employment. Discrimination is quite prevalent. Many of us are still subject to what — by now — should be history."

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Any altruistic idea or movement inevitably and ultimately attracts profit-seekers, and consumerism is no exception.

Part of the problem is that it is often very difficult to perceive true motives and thus to distinguish between individuals sincerely interested in helping others and those with dollar signs in their eyes.

I tend to suspect the latter is the case with a newly-marketed product called "Telagripe Complaint Kit." The brain-storm of two Boston businessmen who have incorporated themselves as "Infact Systems," the kit is basically a magazine that tells you how to complain most effectively, whom in general to complain to, lists sources for information such as names of company presidents, and includes some 30 "telagripes" with carbon paper and gummed sealers.

The "telagripe" itself is simply a printed form which simplifies and spells out, in fill-in-the-blank format, what you should tell the party to whom you are complaining.

As the press release accompanying the kit aptly points out, many complaints go unsatisfied because people do not know how to compose a letter which communicates the problem emotionally and briefly what the problem is. In addition, they often do not know where to write or to whom they should complain.

My gripe with "Telagripe" is that, for $1.29, you get information that is readily available for free, and you don't get what is most useful — specific names and addresses. You also get the telagripes, which may or may not be cheaper than your own stationery, and which will insult the intelligence of many. Even those persons who really panic at writing a letter won't be helped that much by the form, which has to be very general and thus still requires the writer to figure out what to say and how to say it.

Let's this judgment be too harsh, let us note that mere uniformity does sometimes aid the recipient of complaints in processing them. And, if "Telagripe" helps some consumers in obtaining redress of grievances, it probably can't be all bad.

But it is far from an essential tool, and I can think of better investments for my $1.29.

The National Safety Council warns that sleeping bags, if not cared for properly, can be hazardous. The biggest danger is from chemical residues that may remain after dry-cleaning and which, the council says, can cause serious illness and even death. To avoid any harmful effects, air sleeping bags thoroughly for 24 hours after cleaning. They should also be aired after eating or carrying food in them, since lingering food odors may attract bears and other animals while you are camping.

National Consumers Union (NCU), a local organization that keeps an eye on consumer problems relating to food, recently changed its name to National Consumers United, to avoid confusion with Consumers Union, publishers of Consumer Reports. NCU, headquartered in Evanston, is currently involved in investigations of short-weighting of food and nutritional labeling of packaged food.

Dear Dorothy: The new regulation requiring garments over a certain price to have permanent labels attached telling how they should be taken care of — laundered, dry cleaned or professionally dry cleaned — is a wonderful idea for the homemaker. But what about those of us who are home sewers? It's just as important that we know what to do with the garments we make. —Mabel Hunter

Help is on the way. One of the country's largest mills is already printing on its fabrics all pertinent information on caring for the finished garment.

Dear Dorothy: A friend brought me two wood bowls from Hawaii. Can you tell me how to care for them? Can you use soap and water on them? —Stella B.

The ordinary wood bowl can be sponged out with a barely damp sponge, then dried and stored in a dry place. If a bowl is being used for salads, the same treatment can be used. However, many like to use a gentle soap and water treatment and rinse and dry immediately.

Named 'Lollipops' Chairman

Mrs. Richard C. Berkshire, 104 W. Willow Road, Prospect Heights, has been named chairman of "Lollipops and Roses - 1973," a benefit sponsored by the 50 Chicago area Centers of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

A past president of the Mount Prospect Center, Mrs. Berkshire served as co-chairman of the all-center benefit held last spring. Her duties as chairman will include coordinating the 16-member committee for the '73 benefit. Infant Welfare is celebrating its 60th anniversary in '73 and theme of the benefit will be in the Victorian mood.

A luncheon-fashion show affair, each chapter sends one adult model and one child model to model in the benefit.

Besides the Mount Prospect Center, the Arlington Heights and Palatine Centers also will be represented at the benefit. Mrs. Edward Carpenter, a past president of the Arlington Heights Chapter, is now serving as first vice president under Mrs. William Rentschler of Lake Forest, president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Board members of the Auxiliary also include Mrs. John Ostrem and Mrs. Guy Courtney of Mount Prospect and Mrs. Robert G. Kodl and Mrs. Norbert Rosenhauer, Palatine.

Felicia
Toman

Laurie
Cox

Margie Sullivan

Nancy
Banter

Arlington Heights Nurses Club has awarded a record-breaking $2,600 in nursing scholarships to local girls this year.

The winners are: Janet Schultz, $700; Margaret Sullivan, $400; Donna Jordan, $400; Janet Jaskula, $300; Laurie Cox, $300; Felicia Toman, $200; and Nancy Banter, $300. Janet Jaskula and Nancy Banter are previous winners of nurses club scholarships.

Janet Schultz, a graduate of Prospect High School, will attend the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire this fall. She is the recipient of the club's Martha Jackson Educational Fund Award. This summer Janet is working as an aid at Americana Nursing Home.

Margaret Sullivan first became interested in nursing while working as a Candy Stripper at Northwest Community Hospital. She studied at Sacred Heart High School and will be attending St. Therese College at Winona, Minn., this fall.

Donna Jordan, also a graduate of Sacred Heart, has been working as a nurse's aid at an industrial clinic in Elk Grove Village. She will be attending the College of St. Catherine in Minnesota this fall.

Laurie Cox, who graduated from Forest View High School in three years, will be attending St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing in September. Felicia Toman will be attending the University of Illinois School of Nursing on a General Assembly Scholarship as well as nursing scholarship. Felicia is also a graduate of Sacred Heart.

Janet Jaskula is now entering her senior year in nursing at Illinois Masonic Hospital School of Nursing, and Nancy Banter is entering her senior year at Ravenswood Hospital of Nursing. Nancy hopes to take post graduate work in operating room technique.

The Nurses Club, a non-profit 34-year-old organization with 138 members raises funds through a series of fall garage sales and the sale of cook books published by the club. It also maintains a lending closet which makes medical equipment available free of charge to Arlington Heights residents.

All registered nurses in Arlington Heights are eligible for membership.

There's A Wedding In Their Future

Laurel
Hamley

Laurel Patrice Hamley of Mount Prospect and her fiancé, William E. Scagnelli, are planning a Sept. 2 wedding in St. Joseph's Church, Atchison, Kan.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Hamley, 1416 Robert Drive, Atchison and will both attend college in Atchison and be now teachers there. He is a '71 graduate of St. Benedict's and Laurel a '72 graduate of Benedictine. She also graduated from Forest View High School.

Her fiancé's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James B. Scagnelli of Atchison.

Linda Remsing

The engagement of Linda Margaret Remsing to Richard Kwiecinski of Wheeling is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Remsing Jr. of Mount Prospect. An Aug. 26 wedding in St. Emily's Church is planned.

Linda graduated from Maine Township West High School in 1970 and attends the University of Illinois, Champaign. Her fiancé is a '68 graduate of Prospect High and a '72 graduate of the University of Illinois where he will work on a master's in business in fall.

Rebecca Vaudt

A Sept. 16 wedding is planned by Rebecca Sue Vaudt and her fiancé, Craig Edward Telander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Telander, 130 S. Elm, Palatine. The couple's engagement and approaching marriage is announced by Rebecca's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Erwin Baudt, Sauk Rapids, Minn.

Rebecca is finishing her senior year at Concordia Teacher's College, River Forest, where she is majoring in elementary education. Craig, a Palatine High School graduate, attended Concordia College in Milwaukee, and is now employed at

Debra
Coleman

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald J. Coleman of Ashland, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter Debra to Scott L. Johnson, son of the Robert W. Johnsons of Hoffman Estates.

Debra is living in Roselle and working for Hoffman Rosner Corp. Her fiancé is a student at Western Illinois University.

A July 14, 1973 wedding is planned by the couple.

Ozark Airlines, O'Hare International Airport.

Pamela Ekblad

Pamela Ekblad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ekblad of Rolling Meadows, is engaged to James Schneden of Clinton, Iowa, and plans a Jan. 14, 1973 wedding.

Pamela attended Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. She is a stewardess for Trans World Airlines based in Chicago.

Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Schneden of Clinton, is a Coe College graduate and now a First Lieutenant in the air force stationed at Charleston, S.C.

Kathy
Nunes

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver E. Nunes, 1000 Barbary Lane, Mount Prospect, announce the engagement of their daughter Kathy to Michael A. Sessa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sessa, 209 E. Hiawatha Trail, Mount Prospect.

Both are '71 high school graduates now studying at Harper College. Kathy was graduated from Hersey High and Michael from St. Viator's.

The couple plans an August 1973 wedding.

Wendy Lee Bischof

Mr. and Mrs. George Bischof, Palatine, announce the engagement and approaching marriage on Aug. 26 of their daughter Wendy Lee to Steven Donald Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bailey, Westminster, Colo.

The wedding will take place in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine, with a garden reception following at 1620 S. Quentin, Palatine.

Wendy, a '69 graduate of Fremd High School, is now working for Square D. Co., Park Ridge. Steve is a '70 graduate of Cary Grove High School and is presently employed with Reichardt Chevrolet & Buick, Crystal Lake.

After a brief honeymoon in Florida and the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Crystal Lake.

A Special Wedding Date

There are now two July 15 wedding anniversaries to celebrate in the Robert Cave family of Palatine. Last month on that day, the 22nd anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Cave's marriage, their daughter Linda became the bride of Gerald Reagle Jr. of Arlington Heights.

Linda and Jerry met at Harper College two years ago after he came home from air force duty. They are still attending Harper evenings while working in the area, Linda for City Products Corp., Des Plaines, and Jerry for Signode Corp., Glenview.

Jerry's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reagle of 1530 N. Haddon Ave., Arlington. The Cave family resides at 1357 E. Kenilworth Ave., Palatine.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in a rainbow setting of pink, blue, yellow, orchid and green. The pastel colors appeared in the bridal attendants' gowns and bouquets.

The afternoon ceremony was solemnized in St. James Church, Arlington, with a reception following at the Maltre 'D' Restaurant, Elk Grove.

Linda wore a white organza gown, styled with a high neckline, leg-of-mutton sleeves, and an Empire waist flowing into an A-line skirt. Wide bands of lace threaded with satin ribbon edged the neck and waist, also running down the skirt front. A chapel-length veil edged with lace was held by a Juliet cap. Linda carried orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath in her bouquet.

Mrs. Nancy Nagl of Marengo, her sister, was matron of honor, wearing a pink Empire gown with fitted front and gathered back. With it she wore a pink headpiece and carried a bouquet of pink, blue and yellow daisies, pink carnations and bachelor buttons.

There were three bridesmaids — Maria Gineris, Palatine, wearing yellow; Jo Alice Reagle, the groom's sister, in orchid; and Cheryl Reagle, a younger sister, in blue. Cheryl, as junior bridesmaid, wore a gown slightly different from the adult attendants but carried a mixed bouquet as they did.

THERE WAS also a flower girl, 8-year-old Laura Reagle, Jerry's youngest sister, who appeared in a green dress styled like Cheryl's and carried a mixed bouquet.

Bob Allen of Park Ridge was best man, and ushers included the couple's brothers, Marshall Reagle and Jeff Cave, and Dennis Graczyk, Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reagle Jr.

After a week's honeymoon at Niagara Falls, Canada, the newlyweds are back in the area living in a Buffalo Grove apartment.

Linda graduated from Palatine High School and Jerry from Maine West High, Des Plaines.

It's Fashion

by United Press International

The world-renowned Drummer Boy, "Der Paukenspieler," painted by Paul Klee in 1944 has been reproduced by Montgomery Ward in an authentic limited-edition tapestry. Woven in West Germany of 100 per cent virgin wool, the 30-by-60 inch tapestry is intended to become a collector's item. Only 2,500 of the wall hangings have been produced.

The fashion in housewares: A color revolution. A survey by the National Housewares Manufacturers Association shows avocado is being displaced as the longtime favorite in the rainbow hues of today's housewares. At the same time gold and white are becoming increasingly popular.

Lingerie and sleepwear buyers around the country agree that fleece robes have in many instances replaced quilted robes. The reason: They're more versatile and easier to care for.

What's a back-to-school shopping trip without picking up something plaid? Not much of a trip. This fall pick up a lot of plaid. Plaid is the pattern for fall and winter clothes, from tot to toddler to teen to moms and grandmothers.

The jumper's set to make the back to school scene. It goes over sweaters with dolman sleeves or it goes over shirts with cap sleeves.

Scarves for fall and winter are up to new tricks in vibrant plaids and paisleys, often patterned to match dresses. The oblong is the shape most likely to succeed.

Dickies with matching cuffs will give a sweater a double life.

Shawls stay in the fashion picture for fall.

Scads of pearls go with elegant crepes and daytime dresses this autumn.

Huge button earrings will be for wearing with fall's shorter hair.

Linda Doyle Will Return To College As Mrs. Long

Linda Doyle of Arlington Heights will be back in classes at the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater in fall, but she will answer to a new name. Linda became Mrs. Peter A. Long on July 15 in St. Colette Catholic Church, Rolling Meadows.

She and Peter, son of the Wayne A. Longs of Neenah, Wis., met in Whitewater at a football game. Both will be returning to the university to complete their education.

For their four o'clock nuptials, the bride's sister Patricia was maid of honor and the groom's brother Thomas was best man.

LINDA HAD THREE of her Delta Zeta sorority sisters as bridesmaids: Linda Schmidt, Peggy McGillevy and Patricia Radspinner. Peter chose two fraternity brothers, Michael Lanko and Michael Holliday, and his brother-in-law, David Rebstock, as groomsmen. David and his wife came all the way from Amsterdam, Holland, where they live, to attend the wedding.

As the bride came down the aisle, she wore a white organza gown embellished with tiny lace daisies. The dress was styled with long sleeves ending in wide lace cuffs. A fingertip veil flowing from a Juliet cap studded with seed pearls complemented the bride's ensemble. She carried white roses with baby's breath.

Her attendants were gowned alike in aqua chiffon with a multicolored lace waistband for accent. They had Juliet caps of lace and short veils over their hair, and they carried bouquets of aqua carnations, white glads and baby's breath.

GUESTS AT THE wedding were seated by Stephen Reynolds of Little Rock, Ark., and Michael Laspisa, Rolling Meadows, a cousin of the bride.

A dinner at Villa Olivia Country Club in Bartlett followed the ceremony. Among the 300 guests greeting the bride and groom was U.S. Representative John E. Lehman of Elmhurst, a friend and classmate of the bride's parents.

Linda is a graduate of Arlington High School. Her husband is a veteran of three years' military service.

Candice Herzler Moves To Arizona As Bride

Lt. Michael Anthony Moran of the U.S. Air Force has taken his bride, the former Candice Kay Herzler, to live in the Phoenix, Ariz., area where he is stationed at Williams Air Force Base.

He will enter flight training there, and Candice will enroll at Arizona State University at Tempe.

The couple met at summer jobs in Elk Grove Village while Lt. Moran's family lived in Bensenville. He is a '68 graduate of Peaton High School and a '72 graduate of Southern Illinois University where he was in the ROTC program. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Moran, now reside in Spencer, Iowa.

CANDICE IS THE daughter of the Robert E. Herzlers of 509 E. Mill Valley Road, Palatine. She is a '70 graduate of Palatine High School and has completed two years of nurse's training at Bradley University, Peoria.

The Presbyterian Church of Palatine was the setting for the couple's two o'clock wedding. Afterwards they greeted 100 guests at a reception at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge in Palatine.

According to bridal tradition, Candice wore a pair of ruby earrings from her great-grandmother as "something old" and "borrowed" a string of pearls that her father gave her mother as a wedding gift.

Her gown was of white organza, Empire styled with a tucked bodice, high neckline and puffed sleeves with deep cuffs of pea d'ange lace. The neckline was also edged with lace, as was the gown's chapel-length train. The bride chose a bouffant veil with a Juliet cap of lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of white sweetheart roses and carnations with light blue baby's breath. HER ATTENDANTS WERE all gowned in light blue chiffon with a white bib front and white collar and cuffs. A blue bow accented the neckline. The girls carried nosegays of light blue, yellow and pink daisies, cornflowers and white baby's breath, all tied with light blue streamers.

Carolyn Herzler was her sister's maid of honor; Christine Kerrigan, Palatine, and Melissa Moran, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids.

The groom chose a friend from Bensenville, William Brown, as his best man, and groomsmen were Michael Bulawa, Elmhurst, and Bruno Dacanay, Chicago.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week at The Abbey at Fontana, Wis., before going to Arizona to make their first home.

Title Check Vital In Buying Home

by DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Do you really own the home you purchased? The piece of paper you signed at the closing says you do, but you can't always be sure.

That's what title search and insurance is all about.

When you buy a property, using a mortgage, title insurance is required by the lender. Although procedures and requirements vary from state to state, generally speaking the buyer pays for this insurance.

He should be certain, at the same time, to obtain similar insurance covering himself as owner as well as the lender. If he fails to do so, his initial equity in the house, plus any appreciation over the years, could be lost in case of title fault.

To get owner's insurance, usually the buyer must ask for it, although in some states, by law, a buyer must sign a waiver if he does not choose to have such insurance. The fee for title insurance is a one-time cost.

William J. McAuliffe Jr., executive vice president of the American Land Title Association, Washington, notes that in today's complicated world we are faced with numerous title hazards that even the most careful investigation cannot disclose. "Forgery, for instance, is much more common than you might think," he said. "It has clouded the title to thousands of pieces of property over the years. And many people have bought homes from a man or woman they thought single only to have a separated or missing spouse later appear to claim a right to the property — their home."

A title insurance company recently encountered a classic example of this type of title problem, McAuliffe said. Over a period of several years it had searched and insured the title on five pieces of property purchased by a couple claiming to be husband and wife. The husband died. A short time later a woman arrived from Italy and said she was the "real" wife. As such, she claimed an interest in each of the properties the alleged husband and wife had purchased.

An investigation by the title insurance company, McAuliffe said, showed the Italian woman was indeed the man's legal wife with a valid claim against the real estate. Her interest in the properties amounted to $16,000. The title company was able to negotiate a settlement and the woman relinquished all her claims, thus clearing up the problem for the intended heir and possible future purchasers.

The purpose of a title search and title insurance, McAuliffe explained, is to make sure the seller of a property is the true owner and that no one else has an interest in the property.

Examination of a typical file at a title insurance company shows how this is done. Title records generally are searched back 60 years, he said.

During this period, 13 mortgages and deeds had been placed on the home. Each of the documents was examined, and those who were parties to the transactions checked out legally. If one of the signers of a deed had been declared at the time to be legally insane, for example, the deed could be void.

The title check turned up a condemnation proceeding involving the property, four declarations of insanity proceedings against four persons with the same name as the signer of one of the deeds, a domestic relations claim, a guardianship proceeding, and a prior tax lien against the house.

Besides these claims and legal vagaries, McAuliffe said, ownership of a house may not be free and clear because of a legal judgment outstanding against the property or an undisclosed mortgage on it.

The ultimate title defect — a wrong owner — is a rare occurrence, McAuliffe said, and when it happens, the new occupants of a house almost never are evicted. Rather, title insurance companies reach some form of cash settlement with the rightful owner.

Although most title insurance losses are the fault of a title searcher who overlooked an outstanding claim, McAuliffe said, some are beyond the control of the company — a forged deed, for example, or an error by a recorder of deeds. Most title policies cover these unforeseen losses.

Like all industries, McAuliffe said, the title industry has had some problems.

Beer, Brat, Swim For Pilots Wives

Delta Airlines Pilots Wives Club is sponsoring a beer, brat and swim party Tuesday at the Wonder Lake home of Mrs. Robert Rowley.

All Chicago area Delta pilots and their wives are invited. Special guests will be veterans from the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, Waukegan.

Luncheon will begin at 11:30 and reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Earl Behrens, 428-1888.

But, he said, the American And Title Association, which represents the industry, is working to correct these problems.

One of the biggest problems, he said, is the shock some unsuspecting consumers receive when they have no prior knowledge of how much "closing costs" on a house can amount to or even, in some instances, that there are costs over and above the purchase price of a property.

To combat this, McAuliffe said, ATA, in cooperation with the federal government, is supporting a uniform closing cost statement that would be given a home buyer prior to closing, affording him opportunity to study the various items — some of which concern title services and others which do not — and figure these costs into his calculations when budgeting for his home.

It may take a while for this to become standard practice around the country, McAuliffe noted, and suggested, if "you don't get such a statement, ask for one."

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

My friend, the bird lady, and I make a cute couple. On any nature stroll she is always looking up toward the treetops; I've got my eyes directed toward the ground looking at the plants. Neither is watching where she's going.

It's no wonder we got lost in the woods recently. Five hours in the woods isn't all that unpleasant, but I started to get concerned about the bird lady's 4-year old daughter, a 30-pound cutie who would have been the first to show signs of fatigue, heat and mostly — hunger.

So I collected wintergreen berries along the way, just in case.

Perhaps you've never been lost in the woods or had occasion to eat wild food.

Day Lily

only way is with boiling water. Always start by plunging the buds in vigorously boiling water. (Starting in cold water and then bringing it to a boil will set in the bitter taste. You don't want that.) Change the boiling water three or four times, and after the last rinse, boil the buds another 10 minutes, then butter, salt, pepper and serve.

I was so pleased with the taste that I quick-froze a batch of the cooked buds for future use.

The shoots, leaves and pods of the milkweed are also edible, but the buds are probably preferred by most people who have tried working with milkweed.

Another interesting edible of roadside origin is the day lily. Orientals use and appreciate the day lily, and its dried buds can be purchased in Chinatown (Cermak Road and Wentworth Avenue, Chicago).

IT IS EASIER to pick your own. Fry half a pound of fresh pork, cut into bite-sized pieces, until brown. Add a quart of water, two tablespoons of soy sauce and a teaspoon of salt. Cook about an hour or until the meat is tender. Then add a cup of withered blossoms and one teaspoon of Accent. Cook until the blossoms are tender. Purists serve this with rice and tea with fortune or almond cookies for dessert.

Also the unopened blossoms can be dipped in egg batter and quickly fried, like potato chips.

Some people wonder if acorns are edible. They surely are — red, black, white and chestnut acorns. They should be shelled and roasted or boiled for two hours, changing the water as it discolors. Dipped in clarified sugar after boiling or roasting, they make good TV snacks.

Bon appetit, wild food gatherers!

Take A Steak Out To Dinner

BBQ CHEDDAR FAMILY STEAK

(6 to 8 Servings)

- 3-4 lb. top round steak, cut 2 inches thick*
- Instant meat tenderizer
- ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
- 1 medium green onion, finely chopped (tops and all)

Slash fat edges of steak to prevent curling. Prepare all surfaces of the meat, one side at a time, as follows:

① MOISTEN

1. Thoroughly moisten the meat with water — pat the water on from the faucet with your fingers or use a wet pastry brush across the surface

2. Sprinkle meat tenderizer evenly, like salt, over the entire surface of the meat. Use about ½ teaspoon per pound of meat

3. To ensure penetration and retain meat juices, pierce meat deeply and thoroughly with a kitchen fork at approximately ½-inch intervals. Meat is ready for cooking immediately.

② SPRINKLE

4. Place steak on barbecue grill set 2 inches above hot coals. Coals are ready when gray, shot with a ruddy glow. Allow approximately 25 minutes total cooking time, depending upon desired degree of doneness. Turn steak frequently. During the last 5 minutes of cooking, sprinkle steak with grated cheese and chopped onion, continue cooking until cheese melts

5. To serve, carve steak in thin diagonal slices across the grain at about a 30 degree angle, instead of perpendicular to the board. Three or more slices make a generous serving

*or use bottom round, heel of round, round bone chuck, rump or sirloin tip.

VEGETABLE SALAD SUPREME

- 2 cups iceberg lettuce, cubed
- 1 jar (6 oz.) marinated artichoke hearts
- ½ cup cherry tomatoes
- ½ cup pitted ripe olives
- ½ cup green pimiento stuffed olives
- ½ cup sliced raw zucchini
- 2 sliced green onions, including tops
- Watercress

Layer all ingredients in salad bowl. Refrigerate until serving time. Then toss with dressing.

DRESSING:

- ½ cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons sour cream
- 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
- 1 teaspoon freeze dried chives
- Pinch of salt

Combine all ingredients in jar. Cover and shake well.

HOT PEACHES VINAIGRETTE

- 2 cans (16 ounces each) cling peach halves
- or
- 1 can (29 ounces) cling peach halves
- 1 cup bottled Italian dressing
- 2 tablespoons green onions, finely sliced
- 2 tablespoons pimiento, finely sliced

Drain peaches. Turn peach halves into skillet and sprinkle with sliced onions, and pimiento. Pour dressing over all. Cook over low heat until peaches are well heated through, about 20 minutes.

FROZEN FRUIT SQUARES

- ½ lb. package miniature marshmallows, or large marshmallows cubed
- ¾ cup sour cream
- 1 can (30 ounces) fruit cocktail, drained
- 1 banana
- 1 cup shredded coconut

The night before serving:

Combine marshmallows with sour cream and refrigerate overnight. Marshmallows will partially melt in sour cream.

The next day:

Combine fruit cocktail and coconut. Toss lightly together; do not crush. Fold in marshmallow mixture. Turn into two freezing trays and chill at least one hour. Do not freeze solid. Cut into squares or scoop into sherbet glasses.

Serves 6-8

Eggs Mornay Supreme

A Multi-Meal Egg Recipe

Let us give due respect to the great American breakfast tradition... the Egg. High in nutritional value, versatile in cooking, and mild and delicate in flavor characterize the egg as one of our most valuable foods. A steadfast custom of our early-morning eating habits, the egg deserves tender loving care and an appreciation for the proper cooking techniques of its preparation.

When it comes to egg cookery, we have progressed quite far from the days when ancient Egyptians whirled their eggs at such speeds that internal friction finally boiled them in their own shells. Even with today's modern improvements for egg preparation, a few heating factors should be considered. Any good "egg-meister" knows that overcooking is the most disgraceful destiny for this unsung offspring of a hen; if cooked too long at too high a temperature, they will become tough and sometimes discolored. Eggs should always be cooked below the boiling point with the water barely bubbling along the edge of the pan.

Because the egg has always been right at home on the American breakfast table, it is often considered as only a morning meal and not utilized to its fullest capacity. The variety of egg recipes available for lunch or supper offer a delightful array of tasty, nutritional meals that are easy and fun to prepare. A perfect example of the egg's versatility is evident in Eggs Mornay Supreme. This multi-meal egg recipe can be served in the morning with a glass of cranberry juice, at lunch accompanied by a fruit salad, or at supper combined with a side dish of green vegetables and kidney beans. Whatever time of the day you choose, egg delicacies are sure to be an exciting new addition to your everyday meals.

EGGS MORNAY SUPREME

1 medium onion, cut in eighths
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups cooked ham pieces

(1/4" thick)
3/4 cup chicken broth
3/4 cup milk
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 cup Swiss Cheese cubes
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 tablespoons white wine
3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
6 slices toast or 6 patty shells or 6 potato baskets

Blender-chop onion. Melt butter in medium saucepan and saute onion lightly. Add ham pieces and stir until heated and lightly browned. Put remaining ingredients except wine and eggs into blender container, cover and process until smooth. Pour into saucepan and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Add wine and mix well. Add 6 sliced eggs and stir gently. Serve over toast points, patty shell or potato basket. Garnish with remaining egg slices, parsley and paprika. Yield: 6 servings

Problems Of The Elderly

Limited Income Is Health Hazard

by JEANNE LESEM

Many elderly persons these days suffer from a shortage of bread — the kind you spend to buy the kind you eat.

Ironically, the money problem has grown more acute at a time when more supermarkets are responding to older shoppers' requests for packaging and quantities geared to the needs of small families and small appetites.

A recent study by Chain Store Age Magazine showed increasing numbers of merchants are making a special effort to serve senior citizens.

The survey found that many older persons are frequent shoppers. Some visit the same store two to four times daily, not just because they can't carry heavy bags. Those who are lonely enjoy shopping as a social outlet, according to the survey.

Loneliness also can undermine health by creating poor eating habits, says Dr. W. H. Sebrell, Jr., professor emeritus of nutrition at Columbia University.

In a telephone interview, Dr. Sebrell said there are two kinds of old people with food problems: the ones who eat too much and get too fat, and the ones who eat too little and suffer from semi-starvation or various deficiencies.

He said the latter frequently live alone and find it too much trouble to cook for themselves.

"They feel rejected, isolated and depressed. Their teeth often are bad," he said. "They may have ill-fitting dentures or none at all."

Others may have digestive troubles or be so crippled by advanced arthritis that even holding a knife and fork is difficult or impossible.

A LIMITED income or welfare status adds other complications: more expensive protein foods, fresh fruits and vegetables often are beyond their means.

Community and national organizations, including the American Red Cross ARC, are trying to solve these problems in various ways. The ARC and the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture USDA are working with volunteers in a pilot program to deliver USDA-donated food to senior citizens who can't pick it up in person. The joint program operates in San Bernardino, Calif., Wilmington, Del., Bowling Green, Ky., Fulton, Mo., and McKinney, Tex. The USDA alone works with volunteers in Attleboro, Mass., to provide the same service.

A similar program called Meals on Wheels operates in many other communities to deliver hot and cold meals to elderly shut-ins, often under sponsorship of local organizations.

Help also is available from two food guide booklets, one published by the USDA and the other, by the American Association of Retired Persons AARP and the National Retired Teachers Association, NRTA, which have a combined membership of 35 million persons 55 years of age or over.

Their advice on low-cost food shopping includes:

Watch newspaper ads for best buys. If you have the energy, shop in several stores to get the best prices. Remember that supermarket competition generally leads to lower prices than you get in smaller markets which take phone orders and make deliveries.

BE WARY of money-back offers on food packages. You can end up spending too much on postage and total purchases.

Cook enough meat at one time for two or three meals. This saves both fuel and your energy. You also can save fuel by baking potatoes and dessert along with a roast or other baked main dish.

Buy only as much food as you can use easily. A large package of a low-priced product isn't cheap if it spoils or grows stale before you can eat it all.

Use leftover meat, fish, poultry, seafood and even cooked vegetables in salads, omelets or cream sauces made from canned soups. But don't add so much new food to these dishes that you have leftover leftovers.

Food Guide for Older Folks, USDA Home and Garden Bulletin No. 17, is available for 10 cents a copy from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Your retirement Food Guide is free from AARP-NRTA, 1225 Connecticut Ave., NW., Washington, D.C. 20036. Membership dues in each organization are $2 a year. Dues include a bimonthly newsletter and magazine. (United Press International)

A Special Spoon Cake

Those dessert lovers who never have tasted a traditional plantation spoon cake are in for a special treat. Spoon cakes have a bottom layer of pudding and a fruit topping. Try one with apricot halves and almonds that rise to the top during baking. This is good hot or cold and many will insist on a lemon-flavored whipped cream as a topper served while the Apricot Spoon Cake is still warm.

APRICOT SPOON CAKE

1 package (18 1/2 ounces) yellow cake mix
2/3 cup milk
1 cup toasted blanched slivered almonds
1 can (17 ounces) apricot halves
2/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 cup heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel

Blend cake mix and milk thoroughly in bowl; stir in 2/3-cup of the almonds. Spread in greased 12x7 1/2-inch (2 quart) baking dish. Bake in 350-degree oven 25 minutes. Drain apricots, reserving syrup. Add enough water to make 1 1/4 cups liquid. Cut apricots in half.

Heat apricot syrup mixture with brown sugar; pour evenly over partially baked hot "cake." Arrange apricots in three rows over surface of pudding; sprinkle with remaining almonds. Return to oven and bake 30 minutes more or until pudding seems set in center; serve warm.

Just before serving, whip cream with lemon peel until soft peaks form; serve with pudding. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

(NOTE: Cover and refrigerate leftover pudding. To warm pudding before serving, place in 350-degree oven and heat uncovered for 20 minutes or until heated through.)

Homemade Milk Coolers Beat The Others Cold

Do you find yourself competing with the local snack shop for your teenagers' time and attention?

You might persuade them to pause and refresh at home once in a while by offering them a free summertime cooler created in your own kitchen with ice cream or sherbet. Besides the budget-approved milk coolers are a nutritious snack shop hasn't even discovered yet.

A bonus for you, Mother... Mocha Fizz, Lemon-Chocolate Frost, and Apricot Milk Drink are all quick and easy-to-make. You can rest assured that these frosted milk coolers are a nutritious snack with high protein, calcium, vitamin D, and milk's natural energy value all deliciously disguised in a cool, thirst-quenching treat.

The youngsters will probably think that your soda fountain is such a great idea, they'll want to share the wealth with their in-crowd. Be prepared by having some sugared butter refrigerator cookies on hand. The dough can be made into rolls and stored in the refrigerator. The fresh butter flavor won't change with storage. When the doorknobs ring, count the heads; cut the cookies; pop them in the oven. By the time the milk coolers are mixed, you'll have a tray of warm Sugared Butter Cookies to serve. (Baked butter cookies, stored for a week or more, will stay freshest in the freezer during hot summer weather.)

MOCHA FIZZ

1½ cups milk
¼ cup chocolate-flavored quick milk mix
1 pint coffee ice cream, cut-up
Carbonated water
Whipped cream
Chocolate curls

In a blender or mixer, combine milk, chocolate mix and ice cream. Fill 8 ounce glass ¾ full. Fill with carbonated water. Top with whipped cream and chocolate curls. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

LEMON-CHOCOLATE FROST

1 pint lemon sherbet
3 cups chocolate milk
In a small mixing bowl, beat ½ of the lemon sherbet until smooth; gradually add chocolate milk. Pour into glasses and top with spoonfuls of remaining lemon sherbet. Serve immediately. Yield: 4-2/3 cups.

APRICOT MILK DRINK

2 cups milk
1 pint vanilla ice cream, cut-up 12 canned apricot halves, drained
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon almond extract (optional)
In a blender, blend together 1 cup milk, ice cream and apricot halves until smooth. Add remaining 1 cup milk and almond extract, if desired. Serve immediately. Yield: 4½ cups.

SUGARED BUTTER COOKIES

1 cup (2 sticks) butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon baking powder
Colored sugar or decorations
Sugar
In a mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in egg yolk, almond and vanilla extracts. Sift together flour and baking powder; gradually add to creamed mixture. On a lightly floured surface form into two rolls 7-inches long and 2-inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper; chill several hours or overnight. Cut rolls into 1/8-inch slices and place on baking sheet. Sprinkle with colored sugar or decorations. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven, 10-12 minutes or until slightly brown around edge. Loosen immediately from baking sheet; while still warm carefully dip each side of cookie in sugar. Place on wire rack to cool. Makes 6 dozen.

Baked Sandwich For Summer

A baked sandwich for summer lunches or a hurry-up supper is a pleasant change from the normal daily fare of cold cuts. Try a ripe olive and Cheddar cheese combination seasoned with mustard, onion and chili powder. Serve with cole slaw, cherry tomatoes and fresh orange slices for dessert.

TOASTED CHEESE RIPE OLIVE SANDWICH

1 cup canned pitted ripe olives
2 cups grated Cheddar cheese
2/3 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
12 slices firm-textured bread
1/2 cup butter or margarine
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Chop olives coarsely. Mix together cheese, mayonnaise, lemon juice, mustard, onion powder and chili powder. Stir in olives. Trim crusts from bread and spread 12 slices with butter. spread cheese-olive mixture thickly and evenly on the 12 slices. For each sandwich, place three slices, cheese side up, on top of each other. Press lightly together. Place on flat baking pan. Bake about 10 to 15 minutes, until lightly toasted and cheese is bubbly. Cut each stack into 4 slices and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

For Optimum Nutrition

Fresh Fruit And Salmon Combos

The value of raw vegetables and fruits in daily meals can hardly be overestimated. They are power-plants of vitamins and minerals, which regulate the body processes. Raw vegetables and fruits also contain the cellulose or bulk needed to support the growth of valuable intestinal bacteria.

Some fresh raw food should be eaten at every meal, in addition to the three other basic elements of good nutrition. These are: complete proteins, carbohydrates and fats.

Proteins are of first importance, for they are the main substance of all living tissue. Digestion breaks proteins down into amino acids, of which twenty-two are known. When all twenty-two are contained in a food, such as canned salmon, that food is known as a complete protein food.

Carbohydrates are fuel foods, which supply our bodies with energy, and fruits are our best source of natural sugars.

Fats combine with phosphorus to form our body cells. Liquid fats such as those derived from vegetables are known as unsaturated fats, containing three essential fatty acids, necessary to the proper functioning of arteries and vital organs, to regulate body temperature and to control the cholesterol levels in the blood.

From 75 to 80 grams of complete protein should be eaten daily in combination with these other essential elements of good nutrition, and four ounces of canned salmon supply 23.2 grams of this total amount. Canned salmon is also a good source of beneficial fatty acids, riboflavin, niacin, calcium and iron and is one of the best sources of vitamin D.

When you combine canned salmon with fruits, which supply natural fruit sugar, with salad greens, high in vitamin C and A, and with a light vegetable oil salad dressing or mayonnaise, a homemaker is able to quickly put before her family a salad which meets every nutritional requirement. In addition such colorful salads are gastronomic delights in eye-appeal and flavor.

SOUTH SEAS SALMON SALAD

4 large ripe bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/8 teaspoon salt
7 1/2-ounce can salmon, drained
1 cup pineapple chunks, drained
6 tablespoons mayonnaise
Finely chopped macadamia nuts
Salad greens
Peel and slice bananas into mixing bowl. Sprinkle with lemon juice and salt. Flake and add salmon and pineapple chunks and toss lightly with mayonnaise. Pile mixture onto bed of salad greens and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Serves 4.

THREE FRUITED SALMON SALAD

1 pound can salmon, drained
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 oranges, peeled and sectioned
1 banana, sliced
1 red apple, diced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds
3 cups shredded lettuce
Mayonnaise
Additional orange sections
Water cress
Break salmon into bite-size chunks. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Combine fruits. Add salmon, salt, almonds, lettuce and 1 cup mayonnaise. Toss lightly. Arrange on cold salad plates. Top with orange sections and a dab of mayonnaise. Garnish with water cress. Serves 6.

Saucy Spareribs Spice A Barbecue

What's a summer of outdoor cooking and eating without some tasty spareribs? For those who tire of broiling meats on an outdoor grill, try baking those spareribs with a very special sauce combining Concord grape jelly, apricots, soy sauce, a touch of garlic and ginger. Saucy Grape Spareribs will prove a favorite for a teenage party, too.

SAUCY GRAPE SPARERIBS

4 to 5 pounds spareribs, cut into serving size pieces
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Generous dash pepper
1 jar (10-ozs.) Concord grape jelly

1 can (8-ozs.) apricots, drained and chopped
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 medium clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

Place spareribs in a large saucepan. Cover with water. Cover; bring to boil. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Drain. Arrange in shallow baking pan. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients. Bake spareribs 30 minutes longer, basting with sauce and turning every 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Tropical Touch For Salad

A character familiar to those who grew up in the '40s and '50s is back. It is Chiquita Banana, extolling the healthful and tasty assets of bananas for all ages. Only this time the tropical fruit authority must watch her weight, a problem not faced by the animated characters who sang the calypso ditty years ago.

Miss Chiquita of the '70s is a New York fashion model, Barbara Carrera. She says she believes in nutritious food but abstains from eating meat. She gets her protein, she says, from fish and poultry and eats only fresh fruits and vegetables. She enjoys a summer fruit salad and appreciates low calorie dressings such as Lo-Calorie Fruit Dressing, Yogurt Dressing or Tangee Cheese Dressing.

CHIKUITA FRUIT SALAD
Fill a summer salad bowl with the fruits in season — seedless grapes, strawberries, melon, oranges and bananas. Serve with low calorie dressings.

LO-CALORIE FRUIT DRESSING

2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons water
2 medium eggs, beaten
1/4 cup freshly squeezed lemon juice
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
In top of double boiler thoroughly combine dry ingredients. Gradually add water, blending until smooth. Stir in remaining ingredients. Place over 1/2 inch gently boiling water. Stir constantly and cook 7 to 8 minutes until thick and smooth. Cover and reduce to very low heat. Cook 5 minutes, stirring as needed. Chill before using.

YOGURT DRESSING

2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon salad oil
1/2 cup plain yogurt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Dash Tabasco pepper sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pinch of garlic powder
Combine all ingredients in a jar and shake well. Cool.

TANGEE CHEESE DRESSING

1 (8-oz.) container creamed cottage cheese, soft curd
1/3 cup evaporated skimmed milk
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vinegar
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash Tabasco pepper sauce
Combine all ingredients in electric blender and blend at low speed until smooth. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Flowery Food And Drink For A Summertime Party

Fresh-as-a-daisy summertime entertaining is a breeze when you serve this daisy drink, a cool thirst-quencher and cookies. The flowery food and drink automatically decorate the party table, a delight to gatherings on both sides of the generation gap.

Pick this cider-based "Daisy Drink" and "Loves Me Not," light and lemony cookies in daisy shapes.

DAISY DRINK

Combine 1 1/2 quarts each of chilled apple cider and ginger ale with 1 quart of pineapple sherbet. Add 1 cup crushed pineapple which has been reduced to pulp in blender (if possible). Serve immediately in a one-gallon insulated ice bucket to preserve chill, especially if punch will be served out-of-doors.

To make daisy float for top of punch, criss-cross two plump wooden toothpicks through a miniature marshmallow. Place pineapple chunks on each pick end, forming four petals. For proper floatage, be sure to use large wooden toothpicks.

LOVES-ME-NOTS

3 cups sifted flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
2 1/2 tablespoons milk
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream sugar with shortening. Beat together eggs, milk and vanilla and add to creamed mixture. Mix in sifted ingredients and knead dough until very smooth. Roll dough 1/4 inch thick; cut into circles using floured biscuit cutter. Cut each circle into six equal triangles. Shape each into "petal" by pinching rounded edge to a point with fingers.

Leaving a little space (about 1/8 inch) between each petal, assemble daisies on ungreased cookie sheet. Cut centers for daisies from leftover dough, using cap from extract bottle as cutter. Place one small circle in the center of each petal grouping. Bake in moderate oven (325 degrees) for 15 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet and cool completely on rack before frosting.

ICING: Combine 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 2 teaspoons lemon extract, and 3 tablespoons milk. Dip top of each cookie into icing and place on rack to dry. Add a drop or two of yellow food coloring to remaining icing; place a dab in center of each daisy.

Easy Peach Wizardry

Juicy canned cling peach slices and warm gingerbread make a delicious family dessert. Frost gingerbread with a caramel icing and serve with peaches right as they come from the can; or drain peaches and serve shortcake-fashion with whipped cream and gingerbread.

For a gay salad, mound drained canned fruit cocktail on a bed of crisp watercress or shredded iceberg lettuce. Surround spoke-fashion with slices of California avocado. Drizzle with a sweet French dressing, using some of the fruit cocktail syrup with vinegar or lemon juice as part of the liquid.

Here's a dessert quickie the youngsters will love. Place canned cling peach halves cup-sides up in shallow pan. Fill centers with marshmallow creme and sprinkle generously with chopped peanuts. Slip under broiler for a minute to heat peaches and toast marshmallow creme lightly.

A hint of curry does something wonderful to canned cling peaches. Blend a spoonful of curry powder with dairy sour cream dressing. Spoon into cling peach halves. Top with finely chopped nuts and garnish with greens, for an easy dinner salad.

California Styles

The Far West has been an innovator in the salad field and many of America's most famous salads have originated there. The internationally known Caesar's Salad started in San Francisco, fruit salads in fabulous variety are commonplace on the West Coast, and the sensible habit of eating salad as a first course so that one is sure of getting one's vitamins while hungry, is also a California custom. That way, salad doesn't get left to one side, as is sometimes the case when a person has eaten too much of the main dish.

It may seem exotic but it's a delightfully refreshing idea to garnish soups, especially cream soups, with a little crisp, shredded lettuce just a moment before serving.

Easy New Recipe Elevates Burgers To Party Status

Polynesian Burgers are a delicious illustration of how everyday, budget stretching ground beef can be elevated to party status. The recipe uses just two out-of-the-ordinary ingredients to achieve this distinction. And the burgers are a cinch to prepare — an important plus for summer entertaining.

Crushed pineapple and chopped water chestnuts give the ground beef patties unusual flavor and texture. And a baste made with the pineapple syrup and peppery prepared yellow mustard adds a piquant sweet-tart glaze.

The crisp Lettuce-Bean Sprout Salad, with a simple but tangy oil-vinegar-Wor-chestershire sauce dressing is the perfect complement to the burgers.

Round out the party meal with a colorful relish tray with pickles, green and ripe olives and cherry tomatoes, tall glasses of fruit punch and for dessert, pineapple sherbert topped with mandarin orange sections and coconut cake. This festive menu is both attractive and balanced to provide servings from each of the Basic Four Food Groups everyone needs daily to keep fit.

POLYNESIAN BURGERS

1 can (13½-oz.) crushed pineapple
2 pounds ground beef

1 can (5-oz.) water chestnuts, finely chopped

1 green pepper, finely chopped
6 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
1 egg, slightly beaten
8 to 10 hamburger rolls

Drain pineapple well, reserving ¼ cup syrup. Combine ground beef, well-drained pineapple, water chestnuts, green pepper, 4 tablespoons of the mustard, and egg; shape into patties, pressing together firmly. Combine ¼ cup pineapple syrup with remaining 2 tablespoons mustard; brush over patties. Place patties in hinged barbecue rack, and grill over hot coals about 10 minutes, turning once and brushing with syrup mixture. Serve on rolls. 8 to 10 servings.

LETTUCE-BEAN SPROUT SALAD

¼ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon catsup
4 cups torn or shredded lettuce
1 cup (1-lb.) bean sprouts, drained

Combine oil, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, and catsup in small jar; shake well to blend. Combine lettuce and bean sprouts in salad bowl; add dressing and toss. 8 to 10 servings.

Her Love For Fine Food Inspires Gourmet Dinners

by LOIS SEILER

Mrs. Morris J. Liberati of Schaumburg has an incentive to be a good cook — she loves to eat! However, she cares little for ordinary food, but enjoys gourmet-type meals.

Artistic by nature, Joan Liberati plans her meals with care, choosing recipes she thinks her guests will enjoy and foods that will complement each other in flavor and color. Her table settings are also important in relation to what she serves.

A favorite recipe of Joan's that she found in "Gourmet" Magazine is an English Cheddar Chowder. She serves this as a first course to both family and guests.

"The recipe is originally from the Beaumont Country Club in Beaumont, Tex.," Joan explained.

The soup is a rich and thick mixture of chicken broth, milk, several cooked vegetables and Cheddar cheese.

"I season it with lots of pepper and cayenne as I like the hot flavor," Joan explained.

It is excellent preceding anything from the choicest rib roast to the simplest hamburgers, and it also makes an appealing lunch.

With the soup you may wish to serve Joan's Herb Parmesan Bread. There is no kneading involved in this easy yeast recipe. The dough is quickly mixed together and needs only 45 minutes to rise. It is well-seasoned with oregano and Parmesan cheese.

This good cook bakes the bread in a Bundt pan, however, any round casserole may be used. It is cut in wedges and served warm with butter.

"The bread has a moist, solid texture and is very flavorful," Joan commented. "It is a nice accompaniment for barbecues, shish kabobs, casseroles, chicken, spaghetti, or just about anything."

One of Joan's party specialties is a South American dessert called Chaja. It is made basically with an angel food cake.

Cut in three layers, each layer is sprinkled with peach brandy, then filled with vanilla cream and minced peaches. The cake is frosted with whipped cream.

Then Joan bakes a meringue, breaks it up and pats it all over the cake, giving it a porcupine-like appearance.

"The cake, vanilla cream and meringue may be made a day ahead, but it is best to assemble the dessert on the day it is to be served," Joan explained.

High, light and handsome, this elegant Chaja is especially refreshing to serve during the summer months.

Joan's husband Morris enjoys gourmet food and appreciates his wife's culinary endeavors. The Liberatis have a baby son, Jon, who is 16 months old.

In addition to cooking, Joan is an accomplished artist and having majored in music education in college, is also a talented pianist.

ENGLISH CHEDDAR CHOWDER

2 cups water
1/3 cup finely-chopped carrots
1/3 cup finely-chopped celery
1/3 cup finely-chopped scallions
1 medium onion, finely-chopped
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup flour
4 cups boiling milk
4 cups boiling chicken broth
1 pound grated Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salt to taste
White pepper
Cayenne pepper

In a saucepan, bring water to a boil and salt lightly. Add carrots, celery and scallions. Boil for five minutes.

In a large soup pot or Dutch oven, cook onion in butter for one minute. Blend in flour. Slowly add boiling milk and chicken broth, stirring constantly. Blend in the cheese, cooked vegetables and liquid and seasonings. Heat thoroughly. Serves 10 to 12.

HERB PARMESAN BREAD

2 cups warm water
2 packages dry yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons soft margarine
1/2 cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Seal immediately in hot jars. Makes 8 pints. These should stand at least a week for best results, then chill before serving.

DILL PICKLES also are easy to make and will be equally as welcome in months to come. To make 6 quarts, you'll need 24 large cucumbers or 6 quarts of small cucumbers.

With the large cukes you may slice them thin crosswise for dill chips or lengthwise for dill strips. The small ones are left whole.

Mix 1 cup salt with 9 cups water and soak the cucumbers in this brine for 12 hours. Drain well.

Pack the cucumbers in 6 sterilized quart jars adding 1 head dill, 2 garlic buttons, 1 grape leaf to each jar. If you prefer a hot pickle, add 2 red pepper pods per jar.

Heat 2 quarts water, 1 cup salt, and 1 quart vinegar. Pour over the pickles in the jars and seal. Let stand a week or so before using. Serve chilled.

Do you have a favorite recipe for pickles, or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

For personal reply, please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

1 1/2 tablespoons oregano
4 1/2 cups all-purpose flour (not sifted)
Dissolve yeast in warm water and let stand.

Add sugar, salt, margarine, cheese, oregano and half of the flour to the yeast mixture. Stir until blended. Stir in remaining flour. Cover with waxed paper and a tea towel and let rise for 45 minutes in a warm place.

Beat down dough with a spoon. Turn into a greased Bundt pan or a round casserole. Bake at 375 degrees for 55 minutes. Watch carefully; do not over-bake. Cut in wedges and serve with lots of butter.

CHAJA

1 10-inch angel food cake cup peach brandy
Vanilla Cream
5 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
2/3 cup flour
2 cups boiling milk (low boil)
1 1/2 tablespoons vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
6 medium-size fresh peaches, sliced, or 1 pound can sliced peaches, drained
2 cups whipping cream, whipped
Cut angel food cake in three layers. Sprinkle 1/3 of peach brandy on each layer.

Prepare the vanilla cream by heating the egg yolks until thick. Add sugar and continue beating. Beat in flour. Gradually add hot milk, beating constantly. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat and blend in vanilla and butter. Let cool.

Spread half of the vanilla cream on the bottom layer and half on the middle layer. Arrange peaches over both layers of vanilla cream.

Assemble all layers and frost top and sides with whipped cream which has been sweetened with a little powdered sugar. Prepare the following meringue:

3 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup sugar

Beat whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Add sugar gradually, beating until it stands in stiff peaks. Spread meringue in a thin layer on a cookie sheet. Bake 1 1/4 hours at 250 degrees.

When cool, crack meringue into small 1/2 to 1-inch pieces. Pat over top and sides of cake. (Recipe makes more meringue than is needed. Store remainder in a baggie in a dry, cool place for the next time you make this cake.)

Refrigerate cake until served. Serves 12 to 16.

ENGLISH CHEDDAR chowder and Herb Parmesan Bread are two of Mrs. Morris Liberati's gourmet specialties. She often serves the chowder as a first course to guests along with the warm bread. However, the soup is just as tasty for family meals; preceding anything from rib roast to hamburgers.

Corn Off The Cob Is Tasty, Too

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Pickle making is a creative art. Not only does one seek top quality in taste but also to pack the jars so that there's an added factor of eye appeal.

Every year thousands of pickle makers compete in county fairs across the nation and take as much pride from a blue ribbon as does a painter whose work receives recognition.

One of the all-time favorites of most people is the bread and butter pickle which is easily made and comes in handy in winter months. For our recipe you need enough cucumbers to produce 1 gallon when sliced (about 40 or 50). Peel and slice 8 onions, remove seeds and slice 2 green peppers and 2 red peppers, both sweet.

Place cucumbers, onions and peppers in a large crock or earthenware bowl and sprinkle with 1/2 cup salt. Cover with ice cubes. Put a plate on top and weight down. Let stand 3 hours.

Drain well. Combine 5 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons mustard seed, 2 tablespoons celery seed, 1 1/2 teaspoons turmeric, 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves and 5 cups vinegar. Put cucumbers in a large pan, pour over the mixture and simmer for 30 minutes.

Seal immediately in hot jars. Makes 8 pints. These should stand at least a week for best results, then chill before serving.

DILL PICKLES also are easy to make and will be equally as welcome in months to come. To make 6 quarts, you'll need 24 large cucumbers or 6 quarts of small cucumbers.

With the large cukes you may slice them thin crosswise for dill chips or lengthwise for dill strips. The small ones are left whole.

Mix 1 cup salt with 9 cups water and soak the cucumbers in this brine for 12 hours. Drain well.

Pack the cucumbers in 6 sterilized quart jars adding 1 head dill, 2 garlic buttons, 1 grape leaf to each jar. If you prefer a hot pickle, add 2 red pepper pods per jar.

Heat 2 quarts water, 1 cup salt, and 1 quart vinegar. Pour over the pickles in the jars and seal. Let stand a week or so before using. Serve chilled.

Fresh Corn Custard is a good way to serve corn as a different kind of vegetable course, or a luncheon or supper dish. Fresh, tender corn kernels are cut from the cob, blended in a seasoned custard mixture with sliced sausages, sprinkled with cheese, and baked to a savory turn. This is a way to serve fresh corn that is quite out of the ordinary.

FRESH CORN CUSTARD

6 sausage links, sliced
1/2 cup chopped fresh onion
2 cups fresh corn cut from cob
4 egg yolks
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
2 cups milk, scalded
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

In small skillet brown sausage slices. Add onion and cook until tender. Puree 1 cup corn in electric blender. (If blender is not available, put corn through food mill or pound on board.) In a small bowl mix pureed corn, whole corn kernels, egg yolks, flour, salt and tarragon. Slowly add scalded milk, stirring constantly. Mix in sausage-onion mixture and turn into a 1 1/2-quart casserole; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a 325 degrees oven for 45 to 50 minutes, or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

Makes: 6 servings.

SAVORY SOUP

Corn soups serve fresh corn in appetizing style. Our recipe is for a creamy, chowder-like soup with the natural sweetness of fresh corn kernels for the basic flavor.

There is a lovely legend about corn in our native land, harking back to Indian times. It seems that among the Navajo Indians, "all the wise men being one day assembled, a turkey hen came flying from the direction of the morning star and shook from her feathers an ear of corn into the midst of the company..." and that's one story of how corn first came to this country. It's poetic to picture corn that first "flew in" from the direction of the morning star!

And how do we determine good quality corn in the market today? Look for fresh, succulent husks with good green color; silk ends and stem ends that are not too dried or discolored; free from decay or worm injury. The ears should be covered with plump, not-too-mature kernels.

CREAMY CORN SOUP

1/2 cup finely cut salt pork
1/2 cup chopped fresh onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 cups fresh corn cut from cob
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
1 1/2 cups water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

2 tablespoons flour
1 cup light cream
1 cup milk
Chopped fresh parsley

In large saucepan over low heat cook salt pork until fat has cooked out and pork is browned. Add onion and celery and cook until tender. Puree 1 cup of corn in an electric blender. (If blender is not available, put corn through food mill or pound on board.) Add puree and cut corn to saucepan with salt, pepper, sugar, thyme and water. Cover and simmer 15 minutes or until corn is tender. In small saucepan melt butter and blend in flour to form a paste. Slowly stir in cream and milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add hot milk mixture to the chowder and simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley before serving. Makes: 7 cups; 6 to 8 servings.

Low-Cal Mocha Cream Pie

Rich desserts are out of favor in these weight-conscious days, but it's possible sometimes to shave points off the calories scale and enjoy a delectable result.

One good way to do it is to use calorie-low dairy foods in making a sumptuous-seeming dish.

The calorie story on sour cream, for example, surprises many figure-conscious housewives: Compare the 30 calories in one tablespoon of dairy sour cream with 60 calories in a tablespoon of French dressing or 125 calories in the same amount of salad oil. Even cream cheese rates 55 calories to the tablespoon.

Equally surprising is the distinction that sour cream can add to the taste of many familiar foods. Try it as a topping for chocolate ice cream, if you want something new in the way of flavor. Or, when you're serving green beans, add a spoonful per serving of sour cream and a sprinkling of dill seed. Better yet, find your own favorite ways to savor its smoothness. When it's time for dessert, you may want to climax the effort with this new treat, Mocha Cream Pie.

MOCHA CREAM PIE

1 package unflavored gelatin
2 packages (4 ounces each) chocolate pudding and pie filling mix
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons instant coffee
1 1/2 cups water
1 cup sour cream
9 inch baked pastry shell
Combine gelatin, pudding mix, sugar, salt and coffee in a medium size saucepan. Stir in water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Cool 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend in dairy sour cream. Pour into pastry shell. Chill well. When ready to serve, top with slightly sweetened whipped cream and sliced bananas, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Dominick's Finer Food Stores are using a new beverage tag to insure that customers will not be charged sales tax on soft drink bottle deposits.

Showing the price of the beverage and the bottle deposit, the new tags make it easier for the checker-cashiers to properly register beverage sales. The checker rings up the price of the soft drink, not including the bottle deposit. All purchases are subtitled and the appropriate sales tax added. Bottle deposits are charged after tax.

The new system was initiated to make it easier for the shopper to buy his food needs but making certain that all price tags and pertinent information are clear and easy to understand, according to a Dominick's spokesman.

Easy, simple recipes will have priority in the 24th "Bake It Easy" Bake-Off in Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 24-27, according to the Pillsbury people.

Modifications have been made in the year's contest in an effort to satisfy consumer interests. Bake-Off will have two main groupings, each with a $25,000 grand prize: the flour, frosting mix and hot roll mix division, and the refrigerated crescent roll dough division. Each represent a characteristic type of baking with different results, thus appealing to a wide variety of consumers.

Two new eligible products this year are hot roll mix and frosting mix, with coconut almond or coconut pecan frosting mix specified. Recipe suggestions for frosting include desserts, cakes, cookies bars and snacks.

Flour, the only product included in early Bake-Offs, also invites new types of recipes this year, as whole wheat and the new unbleached all-purpose flour can be used, as well as regular all-purpose and self-rising flour.

Another difference is that crescent rolls are the only refrigerated fresh dough product in this year's contest. However, a $5,000 first prize will be awarded in each of the two crescent categories: sweet snack, sweet roll or dessert and savory snack or quick meal, which would include sandwiches, non-sweet snacks or easy main dishes.

Entries will be judged on the following three basic elements: taste, appearance and popular appeal; preparation time and method; value-cost (Is the recipe a good value in terms of quality, cost and convenience, considering the serving occasion.)

In addition to the 100 finalist recipes which will compete in Bake-Off, General Electric is offering a special $5,000 microwave award. The original recipe entered in this special contest must be cooked by microwave energy only and can use any easily-available products. Entries will be judged by General Electric home economists, with the winner named prior to Bake-Off.

Recipes must be submitted with an official entry blank to the Pillsbury Co. by Oct. 31.

The Volunteer Bureau

Service Bureau Begins To Gear Up

As the summer vacation period draws to an end, the Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County, prepares to open Branch Offices and volunteer programs related to the September to June schedule.

The schools using the Volunteer Bureau services are required to have a volunteer coordinator, through whom all requests are channeled and supervised. These coordinators are chosen by the principals, and this year the training program for the coordinators is being enlarged to include the principals, too.

Libraries and learning centers in the schools utilize volunteers as well as individual teachers requesting aid in preparing materials and giving the added attention to a reading group. The paid staff remains responsible for the program, and the volunteer permits an expanded program in addition to exposing the student to adult figures. Enrichment volunteers — who share knowledge in foreign languages, crafts, science, and travel — are incorporated into the curriculum at intervals throughout the school year.

School Dist. 25, St. James, and Our Lady of the Wayside are served through the Arlington Heights branch office. Dist. 15, St. Theresa, St. Thomas of Villanova,

Historical Society of Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Community Services, Johanna Bureau for the Blind, Cook County Department of Public Aid, Cook County Department of Health, Elgin State Hospital, American Cancer Society, The Bensenville Home Society, The Bridge, Arlington Heights Park District, Harper College, and Cook County Hospital all open to additional volunteers. All of these agencies recognize the guidelines of a volunteer program. Some have more detailed training than others and some have more elaborate job descriptions and some have more structured recognition procedures; but all utilize volunteers.

The Volunteer Bureau does not serve all the programs using volunteers nor does it attempt to take over any such program operating. Little League, Picture Lady of the PTA, Church Schools, etc. are all functioning through the use of volunteers. The bureau's role in the community is to further volunteerism wherever it is, hopefully to upgrade it in terms of training, supervision, and recognition; always with the goal in mind of a society where people are interested in and working with people in dignity and respect.

High Psychiatric Impairment In Blacks Explained

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital, in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

A Florida psychiatrist has found blacks have a higher rate of social psychiatric impairments than whites.

"There are two major factors for this," explained John Schwab, M.D., professor of psychiatry and medicine at the University of Florida, "poverty and the turbulence of the times."

"There has been an influx of highly skilled, technologically oriented whites into the community who have pushed many blacks into lower job levels. There is also a low level of educational and social opportunities available to blacks. These factors are caused by, and are responsible for poverty."

Dr. Schwab found the incidence of psychiatric impairment is highest among young black men — between the ages of 18 and 29. "We are suggesting these young blacks have witnessed turbulence accompanying desegregation in the 1960's and they're stratifying themselves caught between two cultures: not only with different allegiances. They're the black and white but young versus old. They have their parental restraints on aggression and assertion which are against their new feelings of ethnicity — black pride, black power and to some extent greater educational opportunities. So we think they are caught in the dilemma of the marginal man."

As a result of the black man's plight, Dr. Schwab cited an unusual phenomenon which occurs in the small ghetto area of Gainesville, Florida.

"There are Saturday night divorces. This acts as a safety valve permitting the community to operate safely six days intra-racial aggression."

usually associated with marriage and other institutions are tacitly and explicitly dissolved for a certain number of hours. There is a great deal of drinking, sexual promiscuity and a fair amount of a week. On Saturday nights the restraints "This is done because the situation is so explosive," he continued. "There is a massive frustration of human expression caused by loss of spontaneity and inability to gain entrance into the wider society. This is the society whose goods are displayed on television all day long. The frustration builds to such a point that on Saturday nights there has to be an escape valve.

"And when the level of frustration reaches a certain point the people will turn against each other and there will be minor slashings, cuttings and bruises. This aggression is part of their self contempt and frustration."

Dr. Schwab said that his studies show depression is higher among blacks in the community than among whites. "The young black men are actually the people who are most depressed — and I might say oppressed. The young black women are therefore suffering because they can't develop a meaningful relationship with these men and the entire community suffers for it."

Social Security and You

Q. — I HAVE always gone to the Social Security Office in Chicago. Now that there is an office in Arlington Heights, can I go there instead? Would I have to have the old office send my records to Arlington Heights?

A. — Yes, you can go to the Arlington Heights office. This office has opened to serve the residents of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Inverness, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling. It will not be necessary for you to ask the Chicago office to transfer your records; any records kept for you were automatically transferred to Arlington Heights.

Q. — I AM A 52-YEAR-OLD widow getting a monthly social security check for myself and my son, who's now 17. He plans to enlist in the Army. Should I report this to social security?

A. — Yes. Since you are receiving a payment because you have a child under 18 in your care, your payment will stop when your son enters the Army. Your son's checks may also stop when he enters the Army, depending on when he enters and his estimated earnings for the year. You should notify your social security office as soon as you know the date your son will enter the Army.

Q. — I AM 63 YEARS old and receiving social security benefits. In January, I went back to work part-time. My earnings have now reached $1,680. What will happen to my checks?

A. — Because you will be earning more than $1,680, we will withhold $1 in benefits for each $2 you earn over $1,680 up to $2,880. In addition, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $1 of earnings over $2,880. The benefits which must be withheld are from the months when you earned more than $140 including months prior to your reaching $1,680.

We need to know your total expected earnings for this year (from January through December) in order to tell you exactly how much we will be withholding from your social security checks. You should report your expected earnings to us immediately if you have not done so. This will permit us to make the necessary adjustments in your checks. You can report this by calling 239-7000, the Social Security Service Center.

Veterans' News

Q. — I'M GOING to college under the GI Bill and having trouble with one of my courses. Does VA make any provision for this type of problem?

A. — Yes. VA will pay up to $50 monthly for a maximum of nine months of tutorial assistance if the college says it is needed. This benefit is not charged against the veteran's basic VA entitlement.

Q. — THE VETERANS Administration has encouraged me to convert my $10,000 National Service Life Insurance term policy to a permanent plan. Will VA recommend the plan I should take?

A. — The agency's veterans benefits counselors do not assume the role of insurance counselors. However, they have the knowledge and training to adequately explain the various plans available. From this you can make your own informed decision.

Q. — AS A DEPENDENT parent, I have been drawing death compensation because of my son who died in military service. I was told at the time of his death that I could not receive dependency and indemnity compensation because his insurance premiums were being waived during service. Has there been a change in regulations?

A. — Yes. A law which became effective Jan. 1, 1972, allows you to elect dependency and indemnity compensation if it is to your advantage. VA is notifying persons receiving death compensation of their rights to draw dependency and indemnity compensation.

Q. — I NAMED MY mother as beneficiary of my VA insurance while I was single. I have since married, but now plan a divorce. Can I change beneficiaries again?

A. — Yes. VA regulations permit an insured to change beneficiaries as many times as desired.

Q. — I WAS SEPARATED from active duty several years ago. When will my GI Bill entitlement expire?

A. — Assuming you are otherwise eligible and were released from active duty after Jan. 31, 1955, you have eight years to use your GI Bill benefits or until May 31, 1974, whichever is later.

Q. — CAN THE LENDER who gave me my GI home loan legally raise the interest rate on my balance?

A. — No. VA regulations do not permit contract rate agreed upon when the loan was made to the veteran.

Love to golf? Now you can practically live on the golf course with a Turnberry fairway homesite.

This is Turnberry

Like to live on the water? Select a shoreline homesite on one of Turnberry's sparkling lakes.

Woods? Hills? Valleys? Wherever your heart lies, you'll find the perfect homesite at Turnberry. And all are spacious, fully-improved.

Each home must be designed for its particular site and no two houses may be alike. Prudent deed restrictions, among other protections, assure architectural excellence like this example.

The good life

Turnberry is for people, young and old, who have a real zest for living.

This newest Arthur T. McIntosh & Company community has 1100 acres of woods, hills and valleys to be hiked, biked, explored and enjoyed. Three beautiful lakes of nearly eighty acres to be fished and sailed. And the private Turnberry Country Club includes a magnificent, championship golf course, an imposing French Normandy Clubhouse high on a hilltop with breathtaking views of lakes, fairways and surrounding countryside. An Olympic-size pool set dramatically into the hillside, and tournament-quality tennis courts adjoin. That's the good life at Turnberry, where every day is a vacation from busy city life — the first year-round community of its kind in the Chicago suburbs.

Turnberry, in the village of Lakewood, is a 10-minute drive from the Crystal Lake North Western Station. The Loop is within easy reach by comfortable, air-conditioned trains. O'Hare Airport and all of Chicagoland are readily accessible by expressways.

Of utmost importance, Turnberry is patterned after Arthur T. McIntosh & Company's Inverness — unquestionably one of the most distinctive and beautiful villages in the Midwest. Similar protective covenants assure that the basic way of living — the good life at Turnberry — will never change.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room. What a setting for the good life!

Homesites average  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an acre, and more important, have a minimum of 150 feet at the building line. Prices range from \$16,000 to \$34,000. All sites are fully improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities.

In 65 years of land development, Arthur T. McIntosh & Company has never had such a complete, versatile property as Turnberry. Drive out this weekend and you'll discover that what we've said here about Turnberry is an understatement—it's far more beautiful than mere words can describe. If you can't drive out, we'll be glad to send you a detailed brochure.

State Criticized For Construction Delay On Rte. 72

The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees blamed irresponsibility on the part of the state Tuesday for the delays in the completion of a project to widen 4.5 miles of Ill. Rte. 72 in Elk Grove Village.

In a resolution presented to the board by Trustee Edward Kenna, the board said "its official objection to the State of Illinois for failing to require its contractor to complete the (Rte. 72) project within a reasonable period of time."

Kenna said the construction has cost the village an extra $13,000, or .5 per cent of the total village budget, to patrol the area which has been plagued by accidents.

"This $13,000 could have added one policeman and a squad car to the force, or one man to the fire department, or 13,000 square feet of pavement to the streets or another building inspector," Kenna said.

The village board complained the construction began in January 1971 but was halted temporarily later that year to work on a section of the road not in the village. In addition, "... the contractor has unilaterally decided to terminate work from time to time under the contract and to release its equipment to another contractor on another job."

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis told the board last month that construction on Higgins Road between Landmeier Road and Ill. Rte. 53 was ahead of schedule for its September completion date even though work had stopped.

AT THAT TIME Willis said he was told Greco Construction Co., the general contractor, had used less than 50 per cent of the days allocated by the contract and had leased its equipment to another builder.

More than 145 personal injury and property damage accidents were blamed on the unfinished and unsafe state of construction on the road.

The resolution said the economic welfare of 20 businesses on Higgins Road and 200 plants in the Little Higgins Industrial Park was endangered while construction cuts off easy access to the area.

Stan Klyber, director of the village Association of Industry and Commerce, told the board that business people in the area were suffering because of the incomplete roadwork "monster." He said he plans to meet with William Cellini, Illinois secretary of transportation, in Springfield to talk about the problem.

Klyber complained that sales at some stores along the road have dropped 50 per cent because of the difficulty customers have in reaching the store. He added that monumental traffic jams have delayed trucks in reaching their destinations and slowed delivery.

Both the trustees and Lyber expressed pessimism that the construction work could be completed by the end of the construction season but urged citizens and organizations to try to bring pressure on the state to make the contractors finish the road.

A NEW "POPPET" is created by nine-year-old Michelle Greenwalt while Carol Smitherman, Elk Grove Park District instructor, approves. When completed the hand puppet will join the traveling puppet troupe sponsored by the park district. Park officials supervise the program while children write the skits, make the puppets and stage the shows. The park district program began several years ago.

Woman Injured In Truck-Car Crash

An Elk Grove Village woman sustained spinal injuries Wednesday when a semi-trailer truck loaded with sand collided with her car at the intersection of Rte. 72 and Arlington Heights Road.

Lee Hicks, 38, of 902 Creighton Ave., was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in the village by a fire department ambulance where she was reported in satisfactory condition with a fractured neck vertebra.

The truck overturned in the collision and blocked traffic for about 45 minutes until a tow truck could set it upright. Firemen washed down diesel fuel that spilled on the roadway and disconnected the truck battery to prevent a fire.

The truck driver, uninjured, was charged with running a red light.

The accident occurred on a section of Higgins Road under construction for the past two years. The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees have called the stretch of road a "clear and present danger to the public health, welfare and safety" and have petitioned the state to complete the highway as soon as possible.

'Poppet' Puppets Put On Shows For District

Take clay, aluminum foil, wallpaper, paste, fabric, and paint — what do you have? — a "poppet."

"Poppet" is the Elk Grove Park District traveling hand puppet troupe. The troupe puts on shows for the district and can be rented for nursery schools, churches, community events and children's parties.

Darwin Peterson, debate and English teacher at Elk Grove High School, is in charge of the troupe.

Assisting Peterson is Tami Oliveto, 17, John Madden, 15, and Carol Smitherman, 18. Madden and Miss Oliveto write skits and supervise the construction of puppets. Miss Smitherman paints backdrops and props.

Children from the community join the troupe, helping to write skits, make puppets and put on shows. The children are supervised by Peterson, Madden and Miss Oliveto.

THE NUMBER of children in the troupe varies. After being in the troupe for a time, some children lose interest and quit, while new children are joining. Madden is an exception to the usual turnover in the troupe. He joined when it was formed several years ago and is now an assistant.

Once a skit has been written, the dialogue is put on tape, which is played during a show. The children only move the puppets, they do not speak any of the dialogue.

Miss Oliveto said there were several reasons for tape recording the dialogue. Little children usually have trouble memorizing lines, and if a written script was used the shuffling papers would distract the audience.

When rehearsing, the children are not told to memorize their character's name. They are told to listen for the character's voice on the tape and to operate the puppet when the character is "speaking."

The children are not given detailed instructions on operating their puppets. "A lot is left to their imagination to see what they can do," said Miss Oliveto.

This summer has been a slow season for the troupe. They presented only one show, an outdoor concert for the park district.

Miss Oliveto said fall and winter were the busy times for the troupe, especially around Christmas when up to three shows a day were done.

The older puppets used by the troupe were heavy and would tire a person's hand and wrist after a few minutes.

Madden and Miss Oliveto devised a new way to make puppets which were lighter and easier to use.

They mold clay into the head shape wanted. A piece of aluminum foil is then placed over the mold.

LAYERS OF wallpaper are pasted on, one layer a day. When the head reaches the desired size, it is cut in half. Wallpaper paste does not stick to aluminum foil and the mold and foil are easily removed.

The two halves of the head are pasted together and a final layer of wallpaper added to cover any cut marks.

The head is then painted and a piece of cloth, with the arms sewn on, is fastened to the neck.

The troupe now has approximately 25 different puppets for its skits.

One of the puppets is a six-foot dragon. It fills the entire stage and requires Madden and several children to operate.

With Or Without Supt. Martwick, Schools To Meet

Members of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education will meet Friday night — with or without Richard Martwick, Cook County educational service region superintendent.

"This meeting is at his request. We'll be here and he's certainly invited," said board member Donnie Rudd. The purpose of the conference is to discuss a resolution proposed by Rudd, and endorsed by the school board, which calls for establishment of more than one educational service region in Cook County.

As chairman of the Dist. 54 legislative committee, Rudd plans to submit the resolution at the November annual conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB). He hopes IASB will support legislation permitting residents to decide, by general referendum, if they wish to be a service region or an educational cooperative.

Presently, Martwick's office, formerly the Cook County Education Office, is the sole education service region in the county and the largest in Illinois. It has jurisdiction over 145 school districts.

Should Rudd's proposal eventually become law, Dist. 54 and nine other Northwest suburban school districts which comprise the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC), could form their own service region and become independent of Martwick's control. Until last month, Dist. 54 was a member of NEC, a consortium of school districts serving a four-township area in Northwest Cook County.

RUDD FEELS the present educational service region is too large to be responsive, but has stressed he does not favor formation of a "super district."

However, Martwick has apparently interpreted Rudd's resolution as criticism of his office and the services provided by the region. He has expressed a willingness to meet with Dist. 54 but insists the meeting be held in his Chicago office.

In a discussion with legislative committee members this week, Rudd emphasized his idea of an independent service region as educationally sound and not as a "political question," as Martwick has charged.

"In letters he has sent to us, he says if we tell him what his office is not doing, they will make certain it gets done. That is not our intention nor have we ever criticized his office," said Rudd.

However, Rudd maintains many of the benefits offered by the service region are now being locally provided, including

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Democratic National Committee comprised a budding struggle over party control in a spirit of campaign unity, but left open the real possibility of a drastic overhaul of party leadership in the event of election defeat in November.

Campaigning together for the first time, George McGovern and his running mate, Sargent Shriver, promised to work for quick approval of revenue sharing.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 2-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 10, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

Hundreds of striking longshoremen clashed with 500-massed policemen protecting nonunion workers unloading cargo ships in northeastern England. But for the first time since the nationwide ports shutdown began July 28, prospects of ending it appeared brighter.

The War

Fearing a Communist commando attack similar to the 1968 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue as North Vietnamese gunners mounted an attack.

Little Progress In Teacher Feud

by WANDALYN RICE

Negotiators for the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education and its teachers clarified their differences Tuesday night, but made little progress toward settling their five-month-old contract dispute.

By the end of the two-hour meeting, the 24th in the five months of bargaining, representatives of the Dist. 211 Education Association had modified their proposal slightly but the two sides had reached no significant agreements.

The major issue separating the two sides is the question of whether to include specific guarantees on a number of "working conditions" in the contract. The two sides have not yet discussed salary proposals.

The teachers want contractual guarantees on assignment and evaluation of teachers, curriculum planning, and procedures for filling vacancies, transferring and firing teachers.

THE BOARD, on the other hand, has offered to form joint committees with the association to discuss the question of working conditions, but refuses to put guarantees in the contract.

Board member Robert Seger, head of the board negotiation team, said the board believes the committees will provide teachers a voice in district policies but will not open the matters to formal grievance.

Seger said, "We thought the committees would satisfactorily handle problems the same way we have handled them in the past. You are saying board policy doesn't work in the district. What are you interested in, solving problems or filing grievances?"

Ron Avery, chief negotiator for the association, replied that "grievances provide a way to solve problems. We feel that if you and we can reach agreement, we ought to be able to put it in a contract with a procedure to resolve problems that arise. A contract is a business-like procedure."

Another point of the dispute, which arose as the two sides convened, was the presence with the association bargaining team of David Tomchek, a regional representative for the Illinois Education Association (IEA). The Dist. 211 association is an affiliate of IEA.

SEGER SAID, the board objects to the fact Tomchek sits with the association team because "We feel this is an intrusion by a professional unionist. From what I have seen you are not here as a visitor or an observer but to take over the direction of these negotiations." Tomchek first attended a bargaining meeting last week.

Seger added that Tomchek is not primarily interested in the welfare of Dist. 211, but "is responsible to the state union."

Avery said Tomchek has been invited into the talks by the association and added that members of the association pay his salary through their dues to the IEA.

"He is accountable to us directly because if we do not want him here, we can ask him to leave," he said.

At the end of the session, following a private caucus with Tomchek and other members of the association team, Avery announced he was modifying the teachers contract proposal by dropping a provision that would open board policies to grievance procedures.

Avery said, "We feel this is a major move in your (the board's) direction. We understand that you are concerned about grievances so we only want to open those things that are in the contract to grievances."

The board team said it will study the proposal. Another meeting was called for Monday at 8 p.m.

'Not Opposed To Meeting,' Martwick Says

(See related story on page one)

"I'm not opposed to meeting with Dist. 54 Board of Education members, but I will not attend the meeting the district scheduled in its offices Friday," said Richard Martwick, superintendent of the Cook County Educational Service Region.

Martwick said Wednesday the reason he insisted on meeting in his Chicago office instead of Schaumburg to discuss the district's support of legislation to establish a separate educational service region is a "practical one."

"My staff and our records are here in the Grand Avenue offices. Even with the short notice of a request to meet this Friday I could have substantiated what our region does for the district," said Martwick.

However, their insistence that I come to Schaumburg means the gathering of all these materials and removing them from our offices."

"To demonstrate my intention to serve Dist. 54's needs I am willing at a later date to come to their district. However I must have time to gather the region's resources and will contact the superintendent at Dist. 54 in the near future to arrange a meeting."

"At that meeting I will be willing to not only discuss the present and past services of our county region offices but will talk about the district's future needs," said Martwick.

Schools To Meet

electronic data processing and mass purchasing. Both are available to the district through NEC.

Rudd's resolution notes the action to form a service region must come from five or more school districts representing a combined total of 50,000 or more students. He said, however, the numbers of districts and students were arbitrarily chosen and could be revised.

Music Says It Best - Area Concert Pianist

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Adabelle Gross Marcus, an accomplished concert pianist and contemporary composer, is a woman with something to say, in music as well as words.

Her piano, vocal, choral, chamber, concert, operatic and orchestral works have won such wide acclaim among music critics that she was recently named to the eighth edition of "Who's Who in American Women."

The International Platform Association, an organization of national leaders, writers, judges, entertainers and businessmen, has sought her membership to augment their list of "women of stature in the field of music."

HER COMPOSITION, "A Song for Flute," for flute with piano, is published by Temp Music, Inc., and universally available, and 11 more pieces will be published this fall. In spite of this, she says it is sometimes difficult for a woman composer "to be taken seriously."

"If you're writing short pieces for the piano, men don't worry, but as soon as you start symphonies, or choral works with orchestration or concertos — the bigger forms — well . . ." she says, adding a plug for women's lib.

"Why should all women do all the same thing, like robots?" Mrs. Marcus asks. "We're brainwashed. If you want to be loved, or be approved of by people, you can't be different. It's wrong to conform just for love, but society puts such pressure on you. Women's lib gives inspiration to women to speak out, to have more nerve."

"There's a lot of opposition, but you have to keep motivating yourself. Do as much as you can, and always think positively."

"Individual" well describes Mrs. Marcus who lives in Hoffman Estates.

She invented a five-tone scale for her most recent song cycle, based on Dylan Thomas' text, "I The Beginning." "I use my own techniques," the 43-year-old mother of two says. "Whether I use nine or five-tone, or any mathematical devices, I try to make it music," she added.

Ideas "just come" to the local composer as she works several hours a day at the grand piano in her living room.

Sometimes her children or her husband are the inspiration, as in her descriptive contemporary suite, "A Child's Day." Often she uses texts from Robert Frost or Dylan Thomas because she prefers to write vocal pieces.

The daughter of the late opera singer and music coach Theodore Gross of Chicago, Mrs. Marcus played the piano at two, composed at four, and at eight made her debut in Chicago. At age 12, she played with the DePaul Symphony, where she was enrolled in college courses while still attending high school.

While a student at DePaul University, Mrs. Marcus was a protégé of the renowned Sergei Tarnowsky and of Dr. Samuel Lieberman in theory and composition. Her later study in piano mastery was with Robert Goldsand of New York and with Leo Sowerby, Karel J. Jirak and Alexander Tcherephn in advanced composition.

He added other guards at the shopping center also are under investigation.

TRAFFIC LANES AT the intersection of Elmhurst Road and Algonquin Road were blocked for a while yesterday shortly before noon when a brick hauling truck and a small delivery van collided.

Two women, Kathleen Fulkerson of Arlington Heights and Bonnie Grogan of Des Plaines, were taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after the accident where they were treated and released. State police were unable to provide further information.

Hold Guards In Woodfield Theft

A pair of uniformed security guards were arrested inside Woodfield Shopping Mall in Schaumburg, early Tuesday with more than $800 in merchandise believed to be stolen from a clothing store there.

Thomas Tranchitello, 25, of 4718 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, and Daniel Jas, 32, of 7141 W. 34th St., Berwyn, were charged with grand theft. Tranchitello was a member of the Rolling Meadows police department until February.

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy said the arrests were made after a two-week investigation involving officials of the Servicemaster Co. and the management of Woodfield. He said a number of thefts had been reported recently, but did not say if the two men were involved. Tranchitello and Jas were both employed by Servicemaster, the agency which supplies security for the shopping center.

Conroy said the investigation included lengthy surveillance of the parking lots and mall interior after store hours. Servicmaster hired an extra man to work undercover on the case, he said.

Working on information supplied to the department, Conroy said, Detectives John Barabas, Harvey Woods, Kenneth Alley, William King and Clifford Johnson staked out the center Monday night, both inside the mall area and in the parking lots. The officers found the door to Silverman's Clothing Store open shortly after closing hours, he said. About 3:35 a.m. the officers allegedly observed the two men with bags of goods believed stolen from the store. Both were arrested inside the shopping center.

The men were released on $10,000 bond each. They are scheduled to appear in court Sept. 13 in Schaumburg.

According to Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case, Tranchitello was discharged from his department in February for falsifying his application for the force. He had served on the department for three years. In February, Case said that Tranchitello had resigned.

Case also said Rolling Meadows police were involved with the investigation of the incident.

Conroy said the investigation would not have been possible without the cooperation and assistance of the Servicemaster Co. and Woodfield officials.

He added other guards at the shopping center also are under investigation.

THE IDEAS COME easily, but writing it all down is a tedious task for accomplished pianist and composer Mrs. Adabelle Gross Marcus of Hoffman Estates. She began doing concerts at age 12 and now gives about a dozen concerts a year which include classical works as well as her own on the programs.

At Age 2, She Waded Right Into Family's Musical Show

by NANCY COWGER

At age 11, Melody Ann Wade already has been gainfully employed nine years years of her life.

But Melody has not violated any child labor laws, or been sent out by her parents to "bring home the bacon." She has appeared throughout the U.S. as a member of the Musical Wades, a show business family.

Melody is expanding the family tradition of travel and performances into a new avenue — beauty and talent pageants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Buddy) Wade, 415 Hudson Dr., Hoffman Estates, is the Illinois talent contestant in the World Our Little Miss Pageant, to be Aug. 20-25 in New Orleans.

MELODY WON the Illinois talent title as a drummer, one of the few pre-teen females with a bent toward percussion. Her talents were channeled in that path through her father, who plays drums for the Musical Wades.

The Musical Wades is composed of the Hoffman Estates family and Wade's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wade of Mount Prospect. Melody's mother dances, twirls baton and plays marimbas and chimes: Eddie is accordionist and his wife Stella is organist.

Buddy Wade started teaching his daughter to play the drums when she was just a small child. For the past five years, she has studied with Jack Jerger of Des Plaines, a music teacher at Niles West High School and at schools in Winnetka. Melody's sponsor in the pageant is Slingerland Drum Co. of Niles.

While Melody has entered the pageant with a drum solo, she also likes acrobatics and dancing, which she has done with the family act, and has studied drama two years.

Melody's experience with the Musical Wades is far-reaching. The family has performed in night clubs and hotels all over the country, sharing billing with such entertainment greats as Bob Hope, Jack Benny and Louis Armstrong.

And while the family describes itself as semi-retired, it still performs many weekends and some week nights, keeping its travels to a maximum of about 300 miles.

This year is not Melody's first experience with pageants. Two years ago she entered the preliminary competition in Mount Prospect, and was second runner-up. Last year she made it to state competition, and was among the top 10 Little Misses of Illinois. She will not be the only Illinois entry in the world contest. The state's Our Little Miss will compete along with its talent winner. But as the talent winner, Melody is eligible for all titles.

WITH ALL HER background in entertaining, Melody wants something more serious for her adult life. At first, she thought she would be a doctor, but the thought of operations frightened her. Then she decided she would be the first woman President of the United States.

But even with her ambitions, Melody is not a women's rights advocate. "I don't go along with it at all. I like girls to be girls," she said.

And although Melody is a Hoffman Estates resident, she does not attend school in the village. Public schools lack discipline, children do not pray in them, and their "priorities are way off base," said Mrs. Wade. Melody studies at Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, where Latin is her favorite subject. Before the family's semi-retirement, she studied by correspondence.

Being an outsider as far as school is concerned, she did not know many neighborhood children the first winter her family lived in Hoffman Estates, moving from Des Plaines 2½ years ago. But when summer came, she made many friends, and now counts her friends equally at school and around her home.

And Melody does share some real interests with the neighborhood children. For her girl friends, she can display a collection of 75 dolls. For the boys, she brings out her 32 toy cars and trucks.

'Emergency' Mosquito Spraying In Schaumburg

by STEVE BROWN

Crews from the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) will begin fogging operations in Schaumburg in the next few days on an emergency basis.

Wilbur Mitchell, director of NMAD, said the district had received a formal written request for spraying from the village. Mitchell said fogging operations will begin as soon as weather permits. Current plans call for the village to be sprayed three times in the next few days.

The emergency action comes after weeks of complaints to the Schaumburg Village Board. Residents want action because of the unusually severe mosquito problem this summer.

The fogging operations have been delayed over the past few weeks because of a village ordinance prohibiting spraying with toxic chemicals, except by licensed exterminators.

The ordinance, however, allows the use of the chemicals by NMAD in emergency conditions. When the village first requested the emergency action, NMAD balked, requesting the village recognize it as a licensed exterminator.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and Village Atty. Jack Siegal said they could not grant the recognition because of a law suit filed against the village by NMAD contending the ordinance enacted by Schaumburg and a similar measure in Palatine abridges the NMAD operation.

By granting the NMAD request for recognition, Siegal said NMAD would be exempted from the ordinance and defense of the lawsuit would be untenable.

MITCHELL SAID he knew of no such request for recognition, adding the district was only waiting for a formal written request from the village.

Edward Jackson, attorney for NMAD, said he had contacted Siegal asking that NMAD be exempted from the village ordinance, but Siegal said this could not be done.

"Right now the district is interested in abating the mosquito problem rather than competing in a game of legal gymnastics," said Jackson.

"We are trying to solve Schaumburg's problem in spite of Schaumburg," Jackson added.

"The district has received assurances from police that our drivers will not be arrested in the village, so we will now begin to spray," he said.

FAA Declines Comment On Airport Study

Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) representatives have declined comment regarding recent failure of two consulting firms to provide detailed cost proposals for a municipally owned general aviation airport feasibility study in Schaumburg.

Once an actual study plan has been submitted, the FAA becomes involved in the project and begins to actively review matters, explained Neil Callaghan, public affairs spokesman for the FAA Park Ridge regional office.

Though he described consultants' attitudes as "not entirely unusual," Callaghan emphasized that an opinion from the FAA would, at this time, be premature.

"We just don't get involved in these things until the local governmental authority has ironed out all such problems," remarked Callaghan.

A municipal airport (general aviation-utility type) is being proposed in line with plans for development of a regional transportation center in the village.

The proposed feasibility study is not intended to limit itself to expansion of the now privately owned Schaumburg Airport but will include other appropriate sites in or annexable to the village.

"If a study is made, it would identify needs at Schaumburg and proposed methods of meeting these needs and, in part, would relate to how an expanded facility would fit in with O'Hare and other area airports," said Callaghan.

Working since February, a village airport study committee has narrowed to three a list of consultants under consideration to perform the investigation.

Vickrey-Wines, Inc. (combining with Arnold Thompson Assoc.) has agreed to furnish itemized study costs.

Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff and Ralph H. Burke Associates have indicated preference to work in a general fee range based on other comparable projects.

THOSE CONSULTANTS have been given until Aug. 19 to submit the cost proposals considered mandatory by the study group.

Cost of the study will be funded by an FAA master planning grant that will provide two-thirds of the consultant's fee.

One-sixth of the cost will come from the Illinois Department of Aeronautics and the remainder will be provided by the village. Recapture of village funds is to come from a proposed revenue bond program.

The study committee will meet Aug. 21 to begin its evaluation of cost materials received from the consultants.

Village Asked To Solve Tree Burning Issue

As one of the 15 communities in the Northwest Municipal Conference, Wheeling has been asked to take part in an inter-community effort to solve problems caused by the tree-burning ban in the forest preserve.

In a letter from Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert, Wheeling was asked to consider sharing the cost for several air curtain destructors for burning trees of surrounding communities.

ACCORDING TO Teichert, Mount Prospect has had trouble disposing of diseased and damaged trees ever since the Cook County Forest Preserve District closed its tree burning site July 4.

The burning site, near Wheeling, had been used by nearby municipalities and private arborists for the disposal of trees. The site was closed because a newly installed air curtain destructor proved too costly to operate. Open burning, previously done at the site, was outlawed because it contributed to pollution.

Since then, most municipalities have been disposing of their trees at landfill sites. Teichert said, however, that some landfill operations are beginning to refuse the trees because of their bulk and the limited landfill space available.

THE PROBLEM is that diseased and damaged trees must be cut down and removed. Burning is considered the most effective means of curtailing Dutch Elm disease, and, according to Teichert, is less expensive than using the landfill method.

He estimated it would cost $35,000 each year to dispose of trees by using landfill, while it would only cost $9,000 a year to burn them.

Kennedy Charged With Murder Of California Girl

The man accused of stabbing two area teenagers has been charged with the murder of a 14-year-old girl in Union City, Calif., and will soon be charged with the death of another teenager in that city.

Law enforcement officers in Union City held a press conference yesterday reporting the latest development in the arrest of Weldon Mead Kennedy, 28. Kennedy is currently being held in a Washakie, Wyo., county jail for the stabbings of two youths Thursday night.

Russell Hughes, 17, of Palatine and

"It is obvious that as to our community, we will have to curtail the removal of diseased trees or begin spending much larger sums of money for this operation," he said.

Since the municipal conference is not scheduled to meet in August, Teichert suggested a special meeting to discuss the problem.

According to Teichert, the county estimated it would cost $250,000 to install the five air curtain destructors that would be necessary to handle the burning needs of the area.

SHOULD THE conference decide to buy its own equipment, a suitable site would have to be found first, and Teichert admitted that would be difficult. "Although it shouldn't be, because the curtain device cuts down the smoke," he said.

Trustee Ron Bruhn Monday night expressed his opposition to locating the burning site in Wheeling. He asked the village voice approval of the project as long as the site was not in Wheeling. "We just rid ourselves of that problem," Bruhn said.

New Program Aids Parents With Kids On Drugs

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"Imagine you have a pretty little 15-year-old daughter. Everybody loves her. Imagine you bought her a new purse and you decided to surprise her by transferring the things from her old purse into the new one.

"Suppose you found a little bag of powdered drugs, or some pills she had no business having. What would you do?" said Richard Wynn, director of the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic in Wheeling.

This sort of situation is not too unusual, parents suddenly discover that their child is a drug abuser, and the typical first reaction is disbelief.

Disbelief stems from two things: the parents' conception of the child, and their conception of what a drug abuser is like.

"Parents usually think of their child as the fragile, loving, cute baby. They also think of drug users as wild-eyed, fiendish characters, when really it's hard to tell drug abusers from anyone else," said Wynn.

For example, a person on methadone, an addictive drug used in the cure of heroin addicts, allows a person to function normally even as it satisfies his drug need. Most drug users can control themselves, even making it hard for physicians to tell a user on sight, Wynn said.

Parents may become suspicious if the child displays erratic behavior, a change in mood, hyperactivity, or a loss of drive. Adolescents between 14 and 17 are at one of the most crucial stages of growth, and are most susceptible to drug abuse.

THEN THE blow comes, perhaps by discovering the drugs, or a phone call from the police. The parents often deny it to themselves, calling it an adolescent growing-up phase.

"Then they get angry and yell and cry," said Wynn. "They start analyzing their own experience with the child, asking 'Where did I go wrong?' They become angry at the kid's friends, the school, the neighborhood, a society that allows pushers to exist."

In general, the parents don't know what to do, what to think, or where to turn.

Wynn estimates that perhaps 10 to 15 per cent of parents in the Northwest suburban area might need to face this problem, which happens to kids regardless of intelligence or financial background.

Ten of those parents are trying to find out what to do by attending the Families Anonymous program, which meets at Wheeling High School at 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday. No previous arrangements are necessary, and the members address each other on a first name basis only.

Families Anonymous is a national organization for helping parents adjust to the drug problem. The local chapter serves Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

The chapter began when three parents wrote to the California headquarters last month for organization information. The members can fulfill their need to talk with someone who has the problem and understands. It has also helped them learn what to expect if the child must go to court.

The members discuss what problems they would like to focus on, then set up a program. Problems may include: What to do if the child takes an overdose, what to do if the child moves to harder drugs, what hospital facilities are available, and adjustment by brothers and sisters of the user who may feel neglected.

GUEST SPEAKERS also talk about practical ways to help the child. Tentatively scheduled is Dr. Peter Digre, who works with Omni-House and the hot line, which are part of the Youth Services Bureau.

He will talk about his experiences, and how the hot line can provide information on what to do in an emergency. The hot line can also act as a mediator between parents and child in cases where the child feels worthless or the home atmosphere is destructive.

Another tentatively scheduled speaker is Cook County probation officer Brook Whitted, who will talk about what to expect should a child have to appear in court.

Sometimes parents who are well known in the community hesitate to come to Families Anonymous for fear of being identified. These people can call the hot line (541-HELP), where they will be referred to an agency in another community. An agency in Chicago, called Alternatives, deals with traumatic problems and may be of assistance.

Wynn feels the need for Families Anonymous is a large one, and the group is willing to help anyone in the area. The group's basic goal is to try to identify the reason behind drug abuse, then decide on what changes to make. Meanwhile, Families Anonymous can help parents get through the anguish a little more easily.

Board To Eye School Contracts

The Dist 21 Board of Education may award contracts tonight for the construction of Robert Louis Stevenson and Washington Irving schools.

Bids have been opened, and John Barger, assistant superintendent, said at the last board meeting he would have recommendations ready for tonight's 8:15 meeting. First on the agenda is executive session to discuss possible land purchase. The session was placed first so land appraisers could attend.

There may be a report on the second mediation session, which went on all day Wednesday. Barger will also discuss awarding of a contract for a monitoring system for the district's 15 schools, although bids have far exceeded the original estimates of cost for the project.

The monitoring system could tie all schools to a central location. The system would detect vandalism, fires and furnace shutdowns.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Democratic National Committee comprised a budding struggle over party control in a spirit of campaign unity, but left open the real possibility of a drastic overhaul of party leadership in the event of election defeat in November.

Campaigning together for the first time, George McGovern and his running mate, Sargent Shriver, promised to work for quick approval of revenue sharing.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 18 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 2-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 18, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

Hundreds of striking longshoremen clashed with 500 massed policemen protecting nonunion workers unloading cargo ships in northeastern England. But for the first time since the nationwide ports shutdown began July 28, prospects of ending it appeared brighter.

Commission Screening To Fill Police Posts

The Wheeling Police and Fire Commission is in the midst of an elaborate process of testing and screening to choose new personnel for the police department.

The department is planning to hire three new patrolmen and promote another patrolman to sergeant, filling the vacancy created by the promotion of Lt. Theodore Bracke.

The commission will begin screening applicants for the patrolman positions at their next meeting. Of 65 persons who took the patrolman's test in June, 35 passed and will be considered.

Two of the patrolman positions are to be filled immediately, and the third will be filled when the vacant sergeant's position is filled.

Two of the patrolman positions are to be filled immediately, and the third will be filled when the vacant sergeant's position is filled.

MORE THAN 20 patrolmen will be eligible to take the sergeant's exam scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Sept. 21 at the park district building at Heritage Park. The exam, which is purchased from a private testing firm, is designed to measure practical knowledge of the sergeant's job.

Vern Nystrom, member of the police and fire commission, said the test is on "the everyday work of a sergeant — filling out forms, what he expects from his men, that kind of thing." He estimated that the written exam would take approximately two hours.

Those patrolmen who pass the written exam will then have to take a series of psychological tests administered by the Elmhurst Psychological Center. These tests are also specially geared for the sergeant's position.

Finally, the patrolmen will have a personal interview with members of the commission. Recently the commission also began interviewing the wives of promotional applicants, and they expect to continue the practice.

The applicants will be evaluated on a point system, and an eligibility list will be drawn up from the results. The person with the highest score will be promoted to sergeant.

WITH A MAXIMUM grade of 100, the written examination will be worth 55 points. The oral examination carries a possible 25 points, and the applicants are awarded one point for each year of service up to 10 years.

The final 10 points are awarded on merit and efficiency ratings based on the previous 12 months of service. Because patrolmen must have been with the force one year in order to take the tests, the commission scheduled the exam so six patrolmen who were sworn in on Sept. 16, 1971, would be eligible.

Since so many patrolmen are eligible for the tests, the members of the commission said the police department would probably have to make special arrangements to fill their shifts that night. The unusual circumstance will probably be handled by supervisory personnel.

THESE YOUNG HAWKERS are a familiar sight to motorists who drive down Euclid Avenue near Arlington Park between noon and 2 p.m. daily. Veteran hawkers with three and four years experience respectively, Bob Van Antwerp and Jack Lisinski, have been rewarded by receiving the best corner near the track for making money. Both are sophomores at Rolling Meadows High School.

Kids Profit Hawking Forms At Track

by DAVE MAHSMAN

Jack Lisinski got lucky a few days ago. He was rewarded with a dollar tip for running through traffic to chase down a hundred-dollar bill for one of his customers.

Lisinski is a hawker. He stands in the middle of Euclid Avenue near Rohlwing Road, selling Racing Forms, green sheets and red sheets to patrons of nearby Arlington Park. He also dodges traffic.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, green sheets and red sheets are formally known as the Illinois Sports News and Chicago Turf Bulletin respectively. But uninitiated or not, area residents who drive anywhere near the track between noon and 2 p.m. daily should be familiar with the young men who peddle the tabloids — maybe just because you narrowly missed hitting one of them.

These young men — especially the ones who have been selling the sheets for several years — find hawking to be a lucrative business.

"I can make about eight dollars a day, $12 on Saturday," said 15-year-old Bob Van Antwerp, who hawks his wares at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, just outside the park. Van Antwerp, a sophomore at Rolling Meadows High School, said matter-of-factly that his is the best corner for making money.

But another Rolling Meadows High

School sophomore disagreed with Van Antwerp. Larry Murphy, 16, of 3600 Pheasant Dr., said he likes his spot in the middle of the Ill. Rte. 53 exit at Kirchoff Road. Although he does not make as much money during the week — he clears "five dollars easy" — Murphy said he can earn 10 to 20 dollars on Saturday, as compared to Van Antwerp's $12. He explained that two hawkers work Van Antwerp's corner during the week, and a third moves in on Saturday. They have to divide their earnings evenly.

REGARDLESS OF WHO has the best corner, all agreed that the worst corner is the intersection of Wilke Road and West Campbell Street.

Jim Lisinski, a 14-year-old from Rolling Meadows whose sandy hair blew in the cold wind as we talked, has been hawking only a week and has been stuck with that "worst corner." Seniority decides who gets what corner.

Lisinski said he is lucky to make 10 or 15 dollars in a week, but he added that he hopes to hawk again next year — and get a better corner. Lisinski's brother, Jack, who is also 14, has been selling the sheets for the West Arlington News Agency — as do most of the boys — for four years, and shares Van Antwerp's profitable corner near the track.

It is understandable why Jim Lisinski wants to keep selling the papers, in spite of the occasional bad weather that drenches the boys who stand in the streets rain or shine. Because most regular summer jobs require that boys be at least 16 years old, there is not much else that the under-16s can do. Besides that, a potential 10 or 15 dollars for two hours of work is not bad in anybody's book.

Most of the boys are eagerly awaiting their 16th birthdays and the right to drive an automobile that accompanies that milestone in their lives. The vast majority of the young salesmen said they are saving all that cash they're making to buy a car. Jack Lisinski told of one former hawker who had saved enough from his job to make a down payment on a $3,400 Oldsmobile.

BESIDES COLLECTING their 10 percent profit on the papers they sell, the boys occasionally receive nickel and dime tips.

"I never got any big tips like that before — except from guys who forget their change," Lisinski said of his dollar reward. His smile seemed to reveal a wisdom of the business gained after four years working the track patrons.

His blond hair falling in tight waves nearly to his shoulders, Dan Dionesotes, a fifteen-year-old junior at Palatine High School, told of another kind of tip.

"A car pulled over and a guy tried to hand me a quart of beer," Dionesotes related. "There was a cop standing on the corner, so I said 'no.' You meet interesting people — a lot of drunk people."

Though the money comes in through tips and profits, carelessness can make a hawker lose money as well. Murphy said one hazard of the job is accidentally handing a customer more green sheets than he asked for. He said one young salesman has worked for the news agency for two years and still comes in a dollar short almost every day. The short money comes out of the unfortunate hawker's own pocket.

Waterfowl Die At Schaumburg Animal Refuge

by STEVE BROWN

Concern over the safety of animals at the Town Square Shopping Center game preserve has been voiced by a Schaumburg resident who helps maintain the area.

The installation of a choke pipe on the outlet of the lake contributed to the death of the three waterfowl Monday, said Al Schrul.

The pipe was installed to reduce the flow of water from the lake in accordance with regulations of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Schrul fears the area, located adjacent to the shopping center near the intersection of Schaumburg and Roselle roads, will become a disaster area if heavy rains flood the lake.

"But the animals are in no jeopardy," said Joe Zgonina, Schaumburg's village engineer. He added the choke pipe had been planned all along and that the village and the MSD had inspected the project and approved it.

"The waterfowl must have some dry land to stand on or else they will become waterlogged and drown," Schrul said. He said the entire fenced area was flooded Monday.

Beside a number of ducks and geese, two deer, several goats and two peacocks also inhabit the area.

In addition to the choke pipe, workmen on the project did not replace an iron grate used to keep the animals away from the outlet pipe. The absence of the grate caused the drowning of at least one duck, said Schrul. The grate had been replaced by yesterday.

IT ALSO APPEARED that a large amount of oil, possibly from the lubrication of a heavy piece of equipment, washed into the lake with rain Tuesday. A large slick formed, and by Wednesday the oil covered a major portion of the lake's shoreline.

Representatives of the village's health department said they would investigate the oil spillage.

According to Zgonina, the project was handled by Rosetti Contracting Co. of Rolling Meadows.

MSD Trustee Abe Eiserman said he was unaware of any potential danger to animals and did not know there was a game preserve there.

A spokesman for his office said yesterday an investigation into the project would begin immediately.

Board Opposes Nike Site Housing

To meet the recreational needs of the Northwest area of Cook County, the Arlington Heights Park District board Tuesday resolved to oppose the use of the Nike base for Naval housing.

Last Friday, the U.S. Senate passed a bill that authorizes construction of 350 Naval housing units in the Great Lakes-Glenview Naval Complex, which includes Arlington Heights. According to Naval officials, 165 of the 350 units are specifically earmarked for the Arlington Heights Nike base.

The park district, along with municipalities from Wheeling, Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove Townships, has been trying to secure part of the base, including the 51 acres designated for Naval housing, as a regional park.

The resolution will be sent to local congressmen and President Richard M. Nixon in an attempt to have the proposed Naval housing built elsewhere. Civic groups and homeowners associations in the area will also receive copies of the resolution.

Included in the resolution is the contention that Arlington Heights is in the center of a population growth explosion and there is a critical need for open land. The resolution also states that the Naval housing is for personnel located in Glenview, more than 15 miles from Arlington Heights.

Penny Lane Area Street Repairs May Be Useless

by JILL BETTNER

Buffalo Grove residents in the Penny Lane area where the Illinois Capital Development Board is currently building a new elementary school could be dodging chuckholes and clods of dirt for quite some time.

Levitt & Sons, Inc., builder of the Lake County Strathmore section where construction on the proposed school recently began, has finished the homes in that area and was scheduled to begin repairing the streets Wednesday.

Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg said he expects construction of the school to continue for at least another two years. This means the street repairs Levitt makes now may be useless. By the time the school is finished, the roads could be torn up again.

Two weeks ago, Village Mgr. Dan Larson stopped construction at the school site, saying he was afraid the heavy trucks being used by the Alan Construction Co. to haul clay fill away from the area via Arlington Heights Road would ruin the newly repaired route.

LARSON SAID he would not allow construction at the site to resume until the Alan Co. reduced the loads in their trucks to six tons per axle.

Seaberg said he was more concerned about the possible damage to the residential streets than to Arlington Heights Road. The reinforcements added to that road should protect it, he said.

Village Atty. Richard Raysa said he advised Larson to lift the stop-work order at the school site last Friday after a meeting with the officials and representatives from Levitt and the Alan Co.

"The state doesn't want to see construction of the new school delayed and neither do we," Raysa said, "but we don't want to get stuck with damages caused by contractors using oversize trucks."

Raysa said Buffalo Grove police will be assigned to check the weight of trucks entering the area from time to time, but Seaberg said he thinks the load limit will be very difficult to enforce.

"IT'S A logistical problem," Seaberg said. "We would have to stop each vehicle coming into the area and check it. Although it's physically possible, it would be extremely hard to do."

The village has surveyed and photographed the streets in the Penny Lane area, and Raysa says that if forced to, he could build a case against either the Alan Co. or the state, or both, to recover any further damage to the streets caused by the school construction.

Raysa said he doesn't expect to have to take the matter to court, but if necessary he will.

New Program Aids Parents With Kids On Drugs

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"Imagine you have a pretty little 15-year-old daughter. Everybody loves her. Imagine you bought her a new purse and you decided to surprise her by transferring the things from her old purse into the new one.

"Suppose you found a little bag of powdered drugs, or some pills she had no business having. What would you do?" said Richard Wynn, director of the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic in Wheeling.

This sort of situation is not too unusual, parents suddenly discover that their child is a drug abuser, and the typical first reaction is disbelief.

Disbelief stems from two things: the parents' conception of the child, and their conception of what a drug abuser is like.

"Parents usually think of their child as the fragile, loving, cute baby. They also think of drug users as wild-eyed, fiendish characters, when really it's hard to tell drug abusers from anyone else," said Wynn.

For example, a person on methadone, an addictive drug used in the cure of heroin addicts, allows a person to function normally even as it satisfies his drug need. Most drug users can control themselves, even making it hard for physicians to tell a user on sight, Wynn said.

Parents may become suspicious if the child displays erratic behavior, a change in mood, hyperactivity, or a loss of drive. Adolescents between 14 and 17 are at one of the most crucial stages of growth, and are most susceptible to drug abuse.

THEN THE blow comes, perhaps by discovering the drugs, or a phone call from the police. The parents often deny it to themselves, calling it an adolescent growing-up phase.

"Then they get angry and yell and cry," said Wynn. "They start analyzing their own experience with the child, asking 'Where did I go wrong?' They become angry at the kid's friends, the school, the neighborhood, a society that allows pushers to exist."

In general, the parents don't know what to do, what to think, or where to turn.

Wynn estimates that perhaps 10 to 15 per cent of parents in the Northwest suburban area might need to face this problem, which happens to kids regardless of intelligence or financial background.

Ten of those parents are trying to find out what to do by attending the Families Anonymous program, which meets at Wheeling High School at 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday. No previous arrangements are necessary, and the members address each other on a first name basis only.

Families Anonymous is a national organization for helping parents adjust to the drug problem. The local chapter serves Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

The chapter began when three parents wrote to the California headquarters last month for organization information. The members can fulfill their need to talk with someone who has the problem and understands. It has also helped them learn what to expect if the child must go to court.

The members discuss what problems they would like to focus on, then set up a program. Problems may include: What to do if the child takes an overdose, what to do if the child moves to harder drugs, what hospital facilities are available, and adjustment by brothers and sisters of the user who may feel neglected.

GUEST SPEAKERS also talk about practical ways to help the child. Tentatively scheduled is Dr. Peter Digre, who works with Omni-House and the hot line, which are part of the Youth Services Bureau.

He will talk about his experiences, and how the hot line can provide information on what to do in an emergency. The hot line can also act as a mediator between parents and child in cases where the child feels worthless or the home atmosphere is destructive.

Another tentatively scheduled speaker is Cook County probation officer Brook Whitted, who will talk about what to expect should a child have to appear in court.

Sometimes parents who are well known in the community hesitate to come to Families Anonymous for fear of being identified. These people can call the hot line (541-HELP), where they will be referred to an agency in another community. An agency in Chicago, called Alternatives, deals with traumatic problems and may be of assistance.

Wynn feels the need for Families Anonymous is a large one, and the group is willing to help anyone in the area. The group's basic goal is to try to identify the reason behind drug abuse, then decide on what changes to make. Meanwhile, Families Anonymous can help parents get through the anguish a little more easily.

Board To Eye School Contracts

The Dist. 21 Board of Education may award contracts tonight for the construction of Robert Louis Stevenson and Washington Irving schools.

Bids have been opened, and John Barger, assistant superintendent, said at the last board meeting he would have recommendations ready for tonight's 8:15 meeting. First on the agenda is executive session to discuss possible land purchase. The session was placed first so land appraisers could attend.

There may be a report on the second mediation session, which went on all day Wednesday. Barger will also discuss awarding of a contract for a monitoring system for the district's 15 schools, although bids have far exceeded the original estimates of cost for the project.

The monitoring system could tie all schools to a central location. The system would detect vandalism, fires and furnace shutdowns.

Kennedy Charged With Murder Of California Girl

The man accused of stabbing two area teenagers has been charged with the murder of a 14-year-old girl in Union City, Calif., and will soon be charged with the death of another teenager in that city.

Law enforcement officers in Union City held a press conference yesterday reporting the latest development in the arrest of Weldon Mead Kennedy, 28. Kennedy is currently being held in a Washakie, Wyo., county jail for the stabbings of two youths Thursday night.

Russell Hughes, 17, of Palatine and

Daniel Kotel, 19, of Mount Prospect are recovering from stab wounds in a Wyoming hospital after Kennedy allegedly attacked them. Kennedy is charged with aggravated assault and battery in the incident.

CALIFORNIA LAW enforcement officers said Kennedy admitted killing Vicky Lynn Iselin, 14, and Mario W. Oliver, 15, both of Union City. Oliver's body was found in late July, and Miss Iselin's body was discovered under a house last week.

The officers said Kennedy also claimed responsibility for the death of an 18-year-old girl in South Lake Tahoe, Calif., July 4. El Dorado County officials said the death was not confirmed and South Lake Tahoe police officers have flown to Worland, Wyo., to seek further details of Kennedy's claim that he killed the girl and threw her body in the lake.

Authorities said another crime Kennedy claimed committing was the bludgeoning of Marilyn Burges, 25, in the coastal city of Monterey July 5. Miss Burges was attacked on a Monterey beach early in the morning and her purse containing $2.58 was stolen.

Residents Would Rather Bump Than Grind Out $3,740

by MARCIA KRAMER

The people who live and work on West Colfax Street in Palatine like their road just the way it is.

Oh, they say, maybe it could use patching here and there, a little lighting, perhaps, and a bit of repaving along some of the sore spots.

But they're not all convinced that Colfax Street needs all the improvements the village has in mind. And they're most definitely against the way the village hopes to finance the project.

"IF THE ASSESSMENT goes through, it will force me to go back to work," says Gail Nobosel, a housewife.

The Nobosels' home at 698 W. Colfax is valued at about $30,000. Their share of the street improvements: $3,740.

A retired widow down the street: $3,900.

The pinch on the pocketbook is why many of the 71 owners of property on Colfax between Smith Street and Quentin Road have banded together and are taking the village to court to justify its plans to split the cost of the road improvements.

The property owners consider themselves unwilling partners in the financing of the $1.4 million project.

The village is willing to foot the bill for 70 per cent of the cost, through municipal funds, and, because of the benefits derived from a better road, wants the property owner to provide the remainder, by special assessment.

But the property owners say that's too much, even though the figure was lowered considerably from original estimates.

Some say 10 or 20 per cent would be equitable. Others say flatly they should not have to pay for the improvements at all.

"IT'S NOT GOING to improve my property any," grumbled one Colfax Street businessman. "In fact," he added, "it's going to hurt, because we'll be losing some parking spaces."

Many of the light industrial firms on Colfax have taken advantage of the village-owned gravel frontage to their property for parking as well as for deliveries by large trucks, which use the space for maneuvering. The frontage would be lost as the road is widened from two lanes to four.

The village's reason for the expansion is to handle traffic for the train depot on Colfax at Smith Street, the U.S. Post Office just west of there, and the Countryside YMCA under construction at Colfax and Northwest Highway.

The people who live and work on Colfax contend, however, that "there's not much traffic around here," and are fearful that widening the road would invite much more traffic to Colfax than it currently uses Northwest Highway.

But the real objection of the Colfax property owners to improvement of the road lies in their pocketbooks.

"We bought our house last August and we never would have bought it if we knew about the assessment," said one woman.

"The road is in bad shape; I'm not going to deny that. But it should just be repaved, not widened. And there's no reason for us to pay for it; everyone will be using it."

ONE BUSINESS has chosen to move largely because of the special assessment. The firm, which would be expected to pay $3,750, has purchased a lot in Rolling Meadows and plans to build an office there within a year, according to a company spokesman.

"I have no qualms about them making improvements for the community," he said. "But they're asking us to pay for something that's no benefit to us. So why should we?"

Some of the small businessmen are afraid property owners may raise their rent to cover the cost of the improvements.

And the property owners themselves are wondering where the money will come from.

"We're only a small business," said Charles Altman, owner of Colfax Welding and Fabricating, "and the others are just like me. 'We're just trying to survive.'"

Court To Decide Who Will Pay For Improvements

The actual reconstruction of West Colfax Street in Palatine probably won't take nearly as long as settling the dispute over how to finance the road work.

That conflict has been going on for close to two years, but the end finally appears to be in sight.

The Village of Palatine and many of the 71 property owners along Colfax, between Smith Street and Quentin Road, will go to court Oct. 2 to determine once and for all how much each side will pay for the $1.4 million improvements.

The dispute centers on the public versus private benefits to be gained through the improvement of Colfax Street.

Early estimates were that the public would pay about 40 per cent of the costs, and the Colfax property owners about 60 per cent.

The village board eventually settled on 70 per cent public funds and 30 per cent private.

The figure, determined after several stormy meetings with Colfax Street property owners, was the highest public benefit among eight options submitted to the trustees by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

The 70-30 breakdown was considered unusual but trustee Wendell E. Jones explained at the time it was acceptable to the board because Colfax property owners "are not benefiting to the degree that residents usually do."

IF THE COURT upholds the 70-30 figure, property owners will pay $50 per front foot.

The main reason for the road improvement is to accommodate anticipated growth in traffic volume.

Colfax Street was once considered a major thoroughfare in Palatine, but has been used less since the new Northwest Highway was completed several years ago.

The repaving, widening and installation of street lights included in the current plans for improving Colfax Street may bring back some of that traffic.

Little Progress Reported In High School Salary Feud

by WANDALYN RICE

Negotiators for the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education and its teachers clarified their differences Tuesday night, but made little progress toward settling their five-month-old contract dispute.

By the end of the two-hour meeting, the 24th in the five months of bargaining, representatives of the Dist. 211 Education Association had modified their proposal slightly but the two sides had reached no significant agreements.

The major issue separating the two sides is the question of whether to include specific guarantees on a number of "working conditions" in the contract. The two sides have not yet discussed salary proposals.

The teachers want contractual guarantees on assignment and evaluation of teachers, curriculum planning, and procedures for filling vacancies, transferring and firing teachers.

THE BOARD, on the other hand, has offered to form joint committees with the association to discuss the question of working conditions, but refuses to put guarantees in the contract.

Board member Robert Seger, head of the board negotiation team, said the board believes the committees will provide teachers a voice in district policies but will not open the matters to formal grievance.

Seger said, "We thought the committees would satisfactorily handle problems the same way we have handled them in the past. You are saying board policy doesn't work in the district. What are you interested in, solving problems or filing grievances?"

Ron Avery, chief negotiator for the association, replied that "grievances provide a way to solve problems. We feel that if you and we can reach agreement, we ought to be able to put it in a contract with a procedure to resolve problems that arise. A contract is a business-like procedure."

Another point of the dispute, which arose as the two sides convened, was the presence with the association bargaining team of David Tomchek, a regional representative for the Illinois Education Association (IEA). The Dist. 211 association is an affiliate of IEA.

SEGER SAID, the board objects to the fact Tomchek sits with the association team because "We feel this is an intrusion by a professional unionist. From what I have seen you are not here as a visitor or an observer but to take over the direction of these negotiations." Tomchek first attended a bargaining meeting last week.

Seger added that Tomchek is not primarily interested in the welfare of Dist. 211, but "is responsible to the state union."

Avery said Tomchek has been invited into the talks by the association and added that members of the association pay his salary through their dues to the IEA.

"He is accountable to us directly because if we do not want him here, we can ask him to leave," he said.

At the end of the session, following a private caucus with Tomchek and other members of the association team, Avery announced he was modifying the teachers contract proposal by dropping a provision that would open board policies to grievance procedures.

Avery said, "We feel this is a major move in your (the board's) direction. We understand that you are concerned about grievances so we only want to open those things that are in the contract to grievances."

The board team said it will study the proposal. Another meeting was called for Monday at 8 p.m.

2 Injured In Head-On Crash

Two people were injured in a head-on auto collision Monday at Northwest Highway and Smith Street in Palatine.

The noon accident reportedly occurred when Mary Galan, 942 N. Franklin, Palatine, turned left onto Northwest Highway from Smith St. and collided with the east-bound auto of Fred Nincke, 1 Old Hickory Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Both drivers were treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Galan, 48, was ticketed for failing to yield the right of way after a stop.

NON-RETURNABLES find a home in Palatine's recycling bins, where bottle-tossing residents let go and do their bit for pollution at the same time. Operation of the bins, behind the police station at Washington and Greeley streets, have recently been taken over by the village. Margie Talabar, 359 Parallel St., added her contribution yesterday.

Park Board Mulls Fall Referendum

Keying up for a fall referendum, the Palatine Park District commissioners poured over final plans for construction in two undeveloped parks and the Birchwood Park recreation complex.

The recently-named Doug Lindberg Park between Winston Drive and Sanborn Drive on Salt Creek is scheduled for $40,000 of the $1.4 million proposed referendum. A portion of the Palatine bicycle trail is planned to run through the park, which includes a small baseball diamond and play areas.

A larger undeveloped park at Clark Drive and Williams Drive in northeast Palatine was named Sycamore Park at Tuesday's meeting. Facilities scheduled there include a football-soccer field that could be used for ice skating in winter, tennis courts, a basketball court and play area, at a projected cost of $60,000. The bicycle trail will run along the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way south of the park, then cut through the park.

If the referendum passes, the two parks could be completed within a year, barring construction problems or other unforeseen delays, landscaper William Blue Vaughan assured the board.

Basic plans for the swimming pool-gymnasium development in Birchwood Park, Illinois Avenue at Bennett Avenue, were finalized by the commissioners and building architect Joe L. Bennett.

Park District director Fred P. Hall is scheduled to give briefings on the capital improvement program to the boards of Dist. 211 on Aug. 24, and the Village of Palatine Aug. 21.

Neighborhood groups, PTAs and civic groups will be the targets for presentations of the park district's plans before the referendum sometime this fall.

Combined Appeal Drive Hopes To Meet 1972 Goal

The goal for the 1972 Community Combined Appeal drive in Palatine has been lowered from last year's goal and the drive chairman is hopeful it can be met.

P. T. DiLustro, campaign chairman for 1972, is confident the $15,000 goal can be surpassed. Last year, $14,529 was raised, some $3,000 short of the goal.

The drive this year will start the first week of October, and is expected to run until the end of December.

Of the $14,529 total last year, an estimated 65 per cent was donated by residents, and the balance by businesses, municipal employees and school employees.

DiLustro said the drive will concentrate more heavily on the municipal and school employees, as well as professional people in Palatine.

Recipients of the funds are: Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls, Countryside Center, United Servicemen's Organization, Salvation Army welfare fund, Salvation Army community service, Homemakers, Santa Teresita Church day care center, Northwest Mental Health, Clearbrook Center and Camp Reinberg.

DiLustro said the amount donated will be matched by the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

Working with DiLustro are James Nowlin and Bill Jenkins, who are handling advance gifts; Barbara Gibbs and Ben Brieske, industry and local businesses; Charles Rice, school system; Tom Donohue, residents; John Vanderweil, municipal services; and Jerome Pinder-ski and Dr. Andrew J. Koller, special groups.

Many of the organizations which will receive funds also will assist in running the drive, DiLustro said.

Safe, Pistol Stolen In Separate Thefts

Burglars got away with the office safe from Marc Terry Motors, 500 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, Tuesday night with its contents of numerous car titles and $900 cash.

Entry was gained through a window in the garage area, according to Palatine police. An employee, Al Letza, noticed the office door was broken open when he arrived at the business at 7 a.m. yesterday.

The safe measured approximately 16"x20"x24" and would have required at least two people to move it, police said.

In a weekend theft, an antique Colt Navy percussion revolver valued at $140 was taken from a barber shop at 115 N. Greeley, Palatine. Owner Paul Selley reported the theft to police Tuesday. The theft occurred when a rear window was broken, the door unbolted and a bar across the door removed.

Profits Up At Golf Course

Take one public golf course, add an unusually cool and rainy summer, record 5,000 fewer rounds of golf played this year than last, and the situation should look bleak financially. Right?

Not for the Palatine Hills Golf Course. "The golf course situation, despite chronically bad weather, is good," Director Fred P. Hall told the Palatine Park District Board of Commissioners Tuesday night.

Ironically, the bad weather is profitable for the golf course, at least for this year. Season pass sales are up by $7,000 over 1971, and with fewer good golf days, the season pass holders cause less wear and tear on the greens.

Result? It's not as bad as it sounds. With the clubhouse opening earlier this year, and the season pass sales, revenue has increased more than expenses. If the weatherman will cooperate just a bit more through August, September, and October, park commissioners are confident the golf course will stay in good shape.

The swimming pool situation isn't so rosy. Without a few blazing hot days early in the summer, season passes drop dramatically. This year, hot weather missed the area for most of the summer, and the effect is most obviously felt in the swimming pool receipts.

Palatine pools are running at a total deficit of approximately $20,000, $3,000 greater than the amount budgeted.

A little warm weather would have gone a long way in Palatine this summer.

'Pep Talks' Set For College-Bound

College-bound high school graduates are being offered a one-week lecture course on "Making It In College," sponsored by the Countryside YMCA.

James R. Blackwell of Purdue University will be the lecturer for the Aug. 21-25 series. He is assistant dean and associate professor of industrial engineering technology at Purdue.

Registration for the course is $20. Area graduates may sign up at the Countryside Y office, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine. The two-hour sessions will run from 7 to 9 p.m. at Harper College, Building E, Room 107.

Besides being directly involved in the counseling program for incoming freshmen, Blackwell coordinates the academic counseling program at the Purdue north central campus. He taught a "How to Study in College" course for seven years, and instructed Palatine's lecture series last year.

Penny Carnival Slated Tomorrow

A Penny Carnival will wind up Palatine Park District's summer playground program Friday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Parents and children will participate at booths of penny pitch, sponge throw, ring toss, miniature golf and others. Arts and crafts projects from the summer program will be displayed and ribbons will be presented for winning entries.

The event is put on by children in the summer program.

by DAVE MAHSMAN

Jack Lisinski got lucky a few days ago. He was rewarded with a dollar tip for running through traffic to chase down a hundred-dollar bill for one of his customers.

Lisinski is a hawk. He stands in the middle of Euclid Avenue near Rohlwing Road, selling Racing Forms, green sheets and red sheets to patrons of nearby Arlington Park. He also dodges traf-

For the benefit of the uninitiated, green sheets and red sheets are formally known as the Illinois Sports News and Chicago Turf Bulletin respectively. But uninitiated or not, area residents who drive anywhere near the track between noon and 2 p.m. daily should be familiar with the young men who peddle the tabloids — maybe just because you narrowly missed hitting one of them.

These young men — especially the ones who have been selling the sheets for several years — find hawking to be a lucrative business.

"I can make about eight dollars a day, $12 on Saturday," said 15-year-old Bob Van Antwerp, who hawks his wares at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, just outside the park. Van Antwerp, a sophomore at Rolling Meadows High School, said matter-of-factly that his is the best corner for making money.

But another Rolling Meadows High School sophomore disagreed with Van Antwerp. Larry Murphy, 16, of 3600 Pheasant Dr., said he likes his spot in the middle of the Ill. Rte. 53 exit at Kirchhoff Road. Although he does not make as much money during the week — he clears "five dollars easy" — Murphy said he can earn 10 to 20 dollars on Saturday, as compared to Van Antwerp's $12. He explained that two hawkers work Van Antwerp's corner during the week, and a third moves in on Saturday. They have to divide their earnings evenly.

REGARDLESS OF WHO has the best corner, all agreed that the worst corner is the intersection of Wilke Road and West Campbell Street.

Jim Lisinski, a 14-year-old from Rolling Meadows whose sandy hair blew in the cold wind as we talked, has been hawking only a week and has been stuck with that "worst corner." Seniority decides who gets what corner.

Lisinski said he is lucky to make 10 or 15 dollars in a week, but he added that he hopes to hawk again next year — and get a better corner. Lisinski's brother, Jack, who is also 14, has been selling the sheets for the West Arlington News Agency — as do most of the boys — for four years, and shares Van Antwerp's profitable corner near the track.

It is understandable why Jim Lisinski wants to keep selling the papers, in spite of the occasional bad weather that drenches the boys who stand in the streets rain or shine. Because most regular summer jobs require that boys be at least 16 years old, there is not much else that the under-16s can do. Beside that, a potential 10 or 15 dollars for two hours of work is not bad in anybody's book.

Most of the boys are eagerly awaiting their 16th birthdays and the right to drive an automobile that accompanies that milestone in their lives. The vast majority of the young salesmen said they are saving all that cash they're making to buy a car. Jack Lisinski told of one former hawker who had saved enough from his job to make a down payment on a $5,400 Oldsmobile.

BESIDES COLLECTING their 10 per cent profit on the papers they sell, the boys occasionally receive nickel and dime tips.

"I never got any big tips like that before — except from guys who forget their change," Lisinski said of his dollar reward. His smile seemed to reveal a wisdom of the business gained after four years working the track patrons.

His blond hair falling in tight waves nearly to his shoulders, Dan Dionesotes, a fifteen-year-old junior at Palatine High School, told of another kind of tip.

"A car pulled over and a guy tried to hand me a quart of beer," Dionesotes related. "There was a cop standing on the corner, so I said 'no.' You meet interesting people — a lot of drunk people."

Though the money comes in through tips and profits, carelessness can make a hawker lose money as well. Murphy said one hazard of the job is accidentally handing a customer more green sheets than he asked for. He said one young salesman has worked for the news agency for two years and still comes in a dollar short almost every day. The short money comes out of the unfortunate hawker's own pocket.

A hazard of more concern to parents than to the boys themselves, however, are the cars and trucks that whiz by on both sides of the hawkers while they are selling their sheets. Cars honk and semis nearly blow them off their feet. Still, there have been no injuries in the four years the news agency has sent their boys to peddle the papers.

Some of the boys complained that their job gets boring at times, but the nearer post time approached, the busier the hawkers were and the fewer the opportunities to become bored.

Shortly after 2 p.m., the young salesmen were climbing on their bicycles and leaving their intersections until the next day. The horses were running at Arlington Park.

Woman Injured In Truck-Car Crash

An Elk Grove Village woman sustained spinal injuries Wednesday when a semi-trailer truck loaded with sand collided with her car at the intersection of Rte 72 and Arlington Heights Road.

Lee Hicks, 38, of 902 Creighton Ave., was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in the village by a fire department ambulance where she was reported in satisfactory condition with a fractured neck vertebra.

The truck overturned in the collision and blocked traffic for about 45 minutes until a tow truck could set it upright.

Firemen washed down diesel fuel that spilled on the roadway and disconnected the truck battery to prevent a fire.

The truck driver, uninjured, was charged with running a red light.

The accident occurred on a section of Higgins Road under construction for the past two years. The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees have called the stretch of road a "clear and present danger to the public health, welfare and safety" and have petitioned the state to complete the highway as soon as possible.

THE LITTLE DRUMMER girl of Hoffman Estates, Melody Ann Wade, will compete in the World Our Little Miss Pageant Aug. 20-25 in New Orleans. In the entertainment world since age two, she looks to a serious future, perhaps as the first female U.S. President, if no one beats her to it.

At 2, She Waded Into Show Biz

by NANCY COWGER

At age 11, Melody Ann Wade already has been gainfully employed nine years of her life.

But Melody has not violated any child labor laws, or been sent out by her parents to "bring home the bacon." She has appeared throughout the U.S. as a member of the Musical Wades, a show business family.

Melody is expanding the family tradition of travel and performances into a new avenue — beauty and talent pageants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Buddy) Wade, 415 Hudson Dr., Hoffman Estates, is the Illinois talent contestant in the World Our Little Miss Pageant, to be Aug. 20-25 in New Orleans.

MELODY WON the Illinois talent title as a drummer, one of the few pre-teen females with a bent toward percussion. Her talents were channeled in that path through her father, who plays drums for the Musical Wades.

The Musical Wades is composed of the Hoffman Estates family and Wade's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wade of Mount Prospect. Melody's mother dances, twirls baton and plays marimbas and chimes. Eddie is accordionist and his wife Stella is organist.

Buddy Wade started teaching his daughter to play the drums when she was just a small child. For the past five years, she has studied with Jack Jerger of Des Plaines, a music teacher at Niles West High School and at schools in Winnetka. Melody's sponsor in the pageant is Slingerland Drum Co. of Niles.

While Melody has entered the pageant with a drum solo, she also likes acrobatics and dancing, which she has done with the family act, and has studied drama two years.

Melody's experience with the Musical Wades is far-reaching. The family has performed in night clubs and hotels all over the country, sharing billing with such entertainment greats as Bob Hope, Jack Benny and Louis Armstrong.

And while the family describes itself as semi-retired, it still performs many weekends and some week nights, keeping its travels to a maximum of about 300 miles.

This year is not Melody's first experience with pageants. Two years ago she entered the preliminary competition in Mount Prospect, and was second runner-up. Last year she made it to state competition, and was among the top 10 Little Misses of Illinois. She will not be the only Illinois entry in the world contest. The state's Our Little Miss will compete along with its talent winner. But as the talent winner, Melody is eligible for all titles.

WITH ALL HER background in entertaining, Melody wants something more serious for her adult life. At first, she thought she would be a doctor, but the thought of operations frightened her. Then she decided she would be the first woman President of the United States.

But even with her ambitions, Melody is not a women's rights advocate. "I don't go along with it at all. I like girls to be girls," she said.

And although Melody is a Hoffman Estates resident, she does not attend school in the village. Public schools lack discipline, children do not pray in them, and their "priorities are way off base," said Mrs. Wade. Melody studies at Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, where Latin is her favorite subject. Before the family's semi-retirement, she studied by correspondence.

Being an outsider as far as school is concerned, she did not know many neighborhood children the first winter her family lived in Hoffman Estates, moving from Des Plaines 2 1/2 years ago. But when summer came, she made many friends, and now counts her friends equally at school and around her home.

And Melody does share some real interests with the neighborhood children. For her girl friends, she can display a collection of 75 dolls. For the boys, she brings out her 32 toy cars and trucks.

Fire Personnel Policies OK'd By City Council

The Rolling Meadows City Council has stamped its approval on the two-week old agreement between the fire protection district trustees and city representatives that outlines personnel policies to go into effect if the two municipal bodies merge.

The approval settles all major personnel issues that city and fire district officials have been struggling to iron out for months.

City Tables Move To Dump Palatine Twp.

The Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday tabled a resolution that would endorse the Palatine Township League of Women Voters' (LWV) attempt to hold a referendum on the dissolution of township government.

The council voted 5-2, with three members absent, to put the resolution aside until the Aug. 22 meeting. Dissenting votes were cast by Ald. Merrill Wuersch and Thomas Waldron.

The tabled resolution will ask the council to support the LWV's attempt to place a proposal to dissolve Palatine Township governing agencies on the November ballot.

It was tabled, Mayor Roland Meyer said, to give "township" officials who want to present their side a chance to do so. The council wants to give anyone a chance to appear or let their thoughts be known through their representatives.

The LWV is in its fifth week of circulating petitions in an attempt to collect 1,710 signatures necessary to get the referendum on the November ballot. Earlier this week they were still 300 signatures short of their goal.

The deadline for filing petitions is Aug. 21.

WHEN ASKED about the seemingly odd timing whereby the city's action on the resolution will come after the deadline for getting the referendum on the ballot, Meyer said the resolution "could be amended — on the 22nd" to make it stronger, if the league gets a spot on the ballot. The resolution could also be scrapped if the LWV fails to make the deadline for filing petitions is Aug. 21.

State Baseball Tourney Begins In Arlington

—See Sports

With little discussion, the seven aldermen at the meeting unanimously voted approval of the agreements finalized July 27 between fire district trustees and the city annexation committee.

Their vote was not taken in the form of a formal resolution, Mayor Roland Meyer said yesterday that the vote makes their agreement with the accords "a matter of record. It means that they have read (the agreements) and agreed with them. It says, 'This is what will be done.'"

Meyer said it was "a gentlemen's agreement," while admitting it is "technically not a binding resolution."

BASICALLY THE aldermen agreed to hire six new fulltime firemen, three as soon as possible after the Aug. 19 referendum, if it passes; to keep firemen on their present salary schedule for the coming fiscal year, then in future years to equalize it with police salaries, which are lower now; to put all new firemen on a top-pay-scale-in-five-years plan, but to keep all men now in the department on the fire districts three-year plan; to pay paid-on-call (Volunteer) firemen $4.40 an hour.

Other points approved include holiday and vacation schedules, insurance programs, and time off for schooling. Basically the fire district will be fitted into the city's present personnel policies in these areas with few changes.

Several officials expressed satisfaction with the results of the months of work, but one sour note was also sounded.

Ald. Fred Jacobson charged that the fire district trustees "took a crybaby attitude and tried to try the case in the paper." Fire officials several times told The Herald that they were dissatisfied with some of the city's proposals to alleviate the department's manpower crisis.

Meyer said there was "some confusion over the number of employees to be hired although we thought the council had settled on six," in a meeting with the trustees several months ago.

He said the confusion grew when the city finance committee, which was only peripherally involved with hammering out the agreements, recommended hiring a minimum of three men.

"I CAN'T POINT a finger at the trustees, firemen or anyone on the council who was 'crying,' or acting contrary to the best interests of the citizens," Meyer said.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke, who along with City Treasurer Robert Cole and Ald. Thomas Waldron worked with the trustees to reach the agreements, said, "I don't think anybody's feelings got ruffled. There was some jockeying for position during the meetings. But I'm extremely satisfied with the results."

In related business, the council approved the hiring of 15 persons to serve as poll judges and assistant and associate poll judges for the Aug. 19 vote, which will be held from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the fire station, Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive.

They will oversee the proceedings as registered voters in the city are asked to indicate if they think the city should take over the operation of the fire district and assume its power to levy taxes.

These young men — especially the ones who have been selling the sheets for several years — find hawking to be a lucrative business.

"I can make about eight dollars a day, $12 on Saturday," said 15-year-old Bob Van Antwerp, who hawks his wares at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road, just outside the park. Van Antwerp, a sophomore at Rolling Meadows High School, said matter-of-factly that his is the best corner for making money.

But another Rolling Meadows High School sophomore disagreed with Van Antwerp. Larry Murphy, 16, of 3600 Pheasant Dr., said he likes his spot in the middle of the Ill. Rte. 53 exit at Kirchoff Road. Although he does not make as much money during the week — he clears "five dollars easy" — Murphy said he can earn 10 to 20 dollars on Saturday, as compared to Van Antwerp's $12. He explained that two hawkers work Van Antwerp's corner during the week, and a third moves in on Saturday. They have to divide their earnings evenly.

REGARDLESS OF WHO has the best corner, all agreed that the worst corner is the intersection of Wilke Road and West Campbell Street.

Jim Lisinski, a 14-year-old from Rolling Meadows whose sandy hair blew in the cold wind as we talked, has been hawking only a week and has been stuck with that "worst corner." Seniority decides who gets what corner.

Lisinski said he is lucky to make 10 or 15 dollars in a week, but he added that he hopes to hawk again next year — and get a better corner. Lisinski's brother, Jack, who is also 14, has been selling the sheets for the West Arlington News Agency — as do most of the boys — for four years, and shares Van Antwerp's profitable corner near the track.

It is understandable why Jim Lisinski wants to keep selling the papers, in spite of the occasional bad weather that drenches the boys who stand in the streets rain or shine. Because most regular summer jobs require that boys be at least 16 years old, there is not much else that the under-16s can do. Besides that, a potential 10 or 15 dollars for two hours of work is not bad in anybody's book.

Most of the boys are eagerly awaiting their 16th birthdays and the right to drive an automobile that accompanies that milestone in their lives. The vast majority of the young salesmen said they are saving all that cash they're making to buy a car. Jack Lisinski told of one former hawker who had saved enough from his job to make a down payment on a $5,400 Oldsmobile.

BESIDES COLLECTING their 10 per cent profit on the papers they sell, the boys occasionally receive nickel and dime tips.

"I never got any big tips like that before — except from guys who forget their change," Lisinski said of his dollar reward. His smile seemed to reveal a wisdom of the business gained after four years working the track patrons.

His blond hair falling in tight waves nearly to his shoulders, Dan Dionesotes, a fifteen-year-old junior at Palatine High School, told of another kind of tip.

"A car pulled over and a guy tried to hand me a quart of beer," Dionesotes related. "There was a cop standing on the corner, so I said 'no.' You meet interesting people — a lot of drunk people."

Though the money comes in through tips and profits, carelessness can make a hawker lose money as well. Murphy said one hazard of the job is accidentally handing a customer more green sheets than he asked for. He said one young salesman has worked for the news agency for two years and still comes in a dollar short almost every day. The short money comes out of the unfortunate hawker's own pocket.

A hazard of more concern to parents than to the boys themselves, however, are the cars and trucks that whiz by on both sides of the hawkers while they are selling their sheets. Cars honk and semis nearly blow them off their feet. Still, there have been no injuries in the four years the news agency has sent their boys to peddle the papers.

Some of the boys complained that their job gets boring at times, but the nearest post time approached, the busier the hawkers were and the fewer the opportunities to become bored.

Shortly after 2 p.m., the young salesmen were climbing on their bicycles and leaving their intersections until the next day. The horses were running at Arlington Park.

Elected Secretary

Gloria J. Tysl of 4636 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, has been elected secretary of the academic senate at Illinois Benedictine College of Lisle.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Senate, propelled by the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, passed a tough gun control bill voting to remove an estimated 1 million small, cheap and inaccurate handguns from the American market. The measure which now goes to the House, was approved 68 to 25 after all major attempts to strengthen or weaken it were beaten back by decisive margins. It still faces an uphill fight in the House, however.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 3-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 10, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

Hundreds of striking longshoremen clashed with 500 massed policemen protecting nonunion workers unloading cargo ships in northeastern England. But for the first time since the nationwide ports shutdown began July 23, prospects of ending it appeared brighter.

The War

Fearing a Communist commando attack similar to the 1969 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue as North Vietnamese gunners mounted an attack.

The stock market, apparently consolidating recent large gains, closed mixed. Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was moderately active. The Dow Jones average slipped 1.28 to 951.16. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index gained 0.17 to 110.86. The average price of a common share increased four cents. Advances edged declines, 732 to 681, among the 1,764 issues crossing the tape. Turnover totaled 15,730,000 up from the 14,550,000 traded Tuesday. Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange.

Earns Doctorate

Hard Work Leads To PhD

by JOANN VAN WYE

"Which shelf do you have your bed hidden away in?" librarians at Northern Illinois University used to kid Lorita Langley.

As one of the "more mature" students on campus, Mrs. Langley was a familiar face in the university library last year, often closing it down in the evening and opening it up in the morning.

Technically Mrs. Langley was a commuter student but her husband wouldn't attest to the fact. Impatient to attain her doctorate in education, she would spend up to three nights a week on the campus sleeping in the union — not in the library.

On sabbatical leave from Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 from February 1971 to February, 1972, Mrs. Langley was determined to come back to the district with a Ph.D.

THE WORK TOWARD a doctorate had started by taking evening courses in 1968 but the sabbatical was the big chance to wrap everything up.

By taking the maximum number of courses, working as hard as she could and having a patient husband, Mrs. Langley was able to complete her course work and much of the work on her dissertation within the year.

Finally this summer she donned the cap and gown and officially received her Ph.D. degree.

Looking back on her career as a student, Mrs. Langley said, "I really enjoyed the academic life but the closer I got to the goal the less patient I became with myself. I wanted to be finished with it and get back to Dist. 15.

"I think that by being away from the university life for so long and then getting back to it after working in education I got more out of it than most, but then maybe I was willing to put more into it," said Mrs. Langley.

The latter is probably closer to the truth as Mrs. Langley has a reputation as a hard worker in the district.

When she returned to Dist. 15 in February she was appointed the first director of pupil personnel services.

HER RESPONSIBILITIES include special education, psychological services, testing and guidance, health service and student records.

"These are areas of activity designed to facilitate learning," said Mrs. Langley. "The areas existed before but have now been culminated into one department."

Mrs. Langley, as director of pupil personnel services, also invaded the previously male dominated cabinet of district administrators.

Standing as tall as many of her male counterparts on the cabinet, the soft spoken woman says she receives no special treatment and is just a member.

"I don't expect to be treated differently and therefore I'm not," said Mrs. Langley.

"I don't want to get any position because I am a woman and I don't want to be deprived of any position because I'm a woman," she says.

Discrimination is something she hasn't run up against in Dist. 15.

"I've moved pretty rapidly. I really can't complain," she said.

Because she is immaculate in dress and manner, it is hard to visualize Mrs. Langley standing in front of a classroom of 30 unruly youngsters but that's how her career in Dist. 15 started back in 1957.

SHE HAD TAUGHT after graduating Phi Beta Kappa from Beloit College in Wisconsin but shortly after her marriage decided to become a housewife.

Away from the classroom for several years, she returned as a junior high teacher at Stuart Paddock School in Palatine. When Winston Park School opened she joined the staff there.

In 1965 she took a leave of absence from the district to work on her master's degree at Northwestern University.

On her return she was made a supervisor of instruction and part time assistant to Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent of instruction. The following year she became Omiatek's full-time assistant.

Mrs. Langley stayed in the department of instruction for five years. The final year she was named acting director of instruction while Omiatek was on sabbatical.

Since her return to the district, Mrs. Langley has been kept busy with her new position and "learning to live like a normal person again."

"I'm happy to be coming to work and not have that other thing on my mind," she says.

Now the biggest problem confronting her is relearning how to conquer leisure.

with a procedure to resolve problems that arise. A contract is a business-like procedure."

Another point of the dispute, which arose as the two sides convened, was the presence with the association bargaining team of David Tomchek, a regional representative for the Illinois Education Association (IEA). The Dist. 211 association is an affiliate of IEA.

SEGER SAID, the board objects to the fact Tomchek sits with the association team because "We feel this is an intrusion by a professional unionist. From what I have seen you are not here as a visitor or an observer but to take over the direction of these negotiations." Tomchek first attended a bargaining meeting last week.

Seeger added that Tomchek is not primarily interested in the welfare of Dist. 211, but "is responsible to the state union."

Avery said Tomchek has been invited into the talks by the association and added that members of the association pay his salary through their dues to the IEA.

"He is accountable to us directly because if we do not want him here, we can ask him to leave," he said.

At the end of the session, following a private caucus with Tomchek and other members of the association team, Avery announced he was modifying the teachers contract proposal by dropping a provision that would open board policies to grievance procedures.

Avery said, "We feel this is a major move in your (the board's) direction. We understand that you are concerned about grievances so we only want to open those things that are in the contract to grievances."

The board team said it will study the proposal. Another meeting was called for Monday at 8 p.m.

Little Progress In Teacher Feud

by WANDALYN RICE

Negotiators for the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education and its teachers clarified their differences Tuesday night, but made little progress toward settling their five-month-old contract dispute.

By the end of the two-hour meeting, the 24th in the five months of bargaining, representatives of the Dist. 211 Education Association had modified their proposal slightly but the two sides had reached no significant agreements.

The major issue separating the two sides is the question of whether to include specific guarantees on a number of "working conditions" in the contract. The two sides have not yet discussed salary proposals.

The teachers want contractual guarantees on assignment and evaluation of teachers, curriculum planning, and procedures for filling vacancies, transferring and firing teachers.

THE BOARD, on the other hand, has offered to form joint committees with the association to discuss the question of working conditions, but refuses to put guarantees in the contract.

Board member Robert Seger, head of the board negotiation team, said the board believes the committees will provide teachers a voice in district policies but will not open the matters to formal grievance.

Seger said, "We thought the committees would satisfactorily handle problems the same way we have handled them in the past. You are saying board policy doesn't work in the district. What are you interested in, solving problems or filing grievances?"

Ron Avery, chief negotiator for the association, replied that "grievances provide a way to solve problems. We feel that if you and we can reach agreement, we ought to be able to put it in a contract

Over 60? The Kids Need You

If you're over 60 and want to help a child, someone needs you. Most of all the child.

A unique program slated to begin in the Northwest suburbs this fall will bring the old and the young together in a mutually beneficial experience.

The project is called the Foster Grandparent Program.

The new program administered by the Northwest Opportunity Center, is designed to give elderly persons an opportunity to work with physically, mentally and emotionally handicapped children at residential institutions.

Little City in Palatine and Maryville Academy in Des Plaines both meet the federal guidelines for residential institutions, according to Miss Karen Stanley, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center.

In order to qualify for the program a person must be 60 years old or older and have an income below $2,000 if they are single and a combined income not exceeding $2,600 if they are married.

Persons qualifying for the program will work 20 hours a week and receive $1.60 an hour. Their salary will not affect Social Security payments. They will also receive $1 daily for transportation and a physical examination.

The foster grandparents will work with the children on a one to one basis giving the children a meaningful contact and giving the foster grandparents a feeling of being gainfully employed, said Miss Stanley.

Raiders Now Only Undeclared Team

The Raiders remain the only undeclared team in the Rolling Meadows Park District softball leagues with an 11 and 0 record.

Following them in the men's 16 inch softball B league is the Red Onion with a 9 and 1 record.

The Fox's and Bruins are tied for first place in the 16 inch A league.

Leading the men's 12 inch softball red league are the Barton Stull Ducks with an 11 and 1 record. The blue 12 inch league is led by W. M. Golden Co. with an 11 and 1 record.

Profits Up At Golf Course

Take one public golf course, add an unusually cool and rainy summer, record 5,000 fewer rounds of golf played this year than last, and the situation should look bleak financially. Right?

Not for the Palatine Hills Golf Course. "The golf course situation, despite chronically bad weather, is good," Director Fred P. Hall told the Palatine Park District Board of Commissioners Tuesday night.

Ironically, the bad weather is profitable for the golf course, at least for this year. Season pass sales are up by $7,000 over 1971, and with fewer good golf days, the season pass holders cause less wear and tear on the greens.

Result? It's not as bad as it sounds. With the clubhouse opening earlier this year, and the season pass sales, revenue has increased more than expenses. If the weatherman will cooperate just a bit more through August, September, and October, park commissioners are confident the golf course will stay in good shape.

The swimming pool situation isn't so rosy. Without a few blazing hot days early in the summer, season passes drop dramatically. This year, hot weather missed the area for most of the summer, and the effect is most obviously felt in the swimming pool receipts.

Palatine pools are running at a total deficit of approximately $20,000, $3,000 greater than the amount budgeted.

A little warm weather would have gone a long way in Palatine this summer.

Illinois conference center near Monticello. Karyl was sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Junior Women's Club.

Is Your Child A Drug User?

New Program Aids Parents

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"Imagine you have a pretty little 15-year-old daughter. Everybody loves her. Imagine you bought her a new purse and you decided to surprise her by transferring the things from her old purse into the new one.

"Suppose you found a little bag of powdered drugs, or some pills she had no business having. What would you do?" said Richard Wynn, director of the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic in Wheeling.

This sort of situation is not too unusual, parents suddenly discover that their child is a drug abuser, and the typical first reaction is disbelief.

Disbelief stems from two things: the parents' conception of the child, and their conception of what a drug abuser is like.

"Parents usually think of their child as the fragile, loving, cute baby. They also think of drug users as wild-eyed, fiendish characters, when really it's hard to tell drug abusers from anyone else," said Wynn.

For example, a person on methadone, an addictive drug used in the cure of heroin addicts, allows a person to function normally even as it satisfies his drug need. Most drug users can control themselves, even making it hard for physicians to tell a user on sight, Wynn said.

Parents may become suspicious if the child displays erratic behavior, a change in mood, hyperactivity, or a loss of drive. Adolescents between 14 and 17 are at one of the most crucial stages of growth, and are most susceptible to drug abuse.

THEN THE blow comes, perhaps by discovering the drugs, or a phone call from the police. The parents often deny it to themselves, calling it an adolescent growing-up phase.

"Then they get angry and yell and cry," said Wynn. "They start analyzing their own experience with the child, asking 'Where did I go wrong?' They become angry at the kid's friends, the school, the neighborhood, a society that allows pushers to exist."

In general, the parents don't know what to do, what to think, or where to turn.

Wynn estimates that perhaps 10 to 15 percent of parents in the Northwest suburban area might need to face this problem, which happens to kids regardless of intelligence or financial background.

Ten of those parents are trying to find out what to do by attending the Families Anonymous program, which meets at Wheeling High School at 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday. No previous arrangements are necessary, and the members address each other on a first name basis only.

Families Anonymous is a national organization for helping parents adjust to the drug problem. The local chapter serves Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

The chapter began when three parents wrote to the California headquarters last month for organization information. The members can fulfill their need to talk with someone who has the problem and understands. It has also helped them learn what to expect if the child must go to court.

The members discuss what problems they would like to focus on, then set up a program. Problems may include: What to do if the child takes an overdose, what to do if the child moves to harder drugs, what hospital facilities are available, and adjustment by brothers and sisters of the user who may feel neglected.

GUEST SPEAKERS also talk about practical ways to help the child. Tentatively scheduled is Dr. Peter Digre, who works with Omni-House and the hot line, which are part of the Youth Services Bureau.

He will talk about his experiences, and how the hot line can provide information on what to do in an emergency. The hot line can also act as a mediator between parents and child in cases where the child feels worthless or the home atmosphere is destructive.

Another tentatively scheduled speaker is Cook County probation officer Brook Whitted, who will talk about what to expect should a child have to appear in court.

Sometimes parents who are well known in the community hesitate to

Park District Slates Trip To Sox Park

Salt Creek Rural Park District will sponsor a trip to Chicago for a White Sox baseball game Aug. 16.

Cost for the trip is $2.50, which will include a game ticket and bus fare.

Ech child under 12 years of age will also receive a free Salt Creek park district baseball T-shirt.

The outing is open to children and adults. For more information or to register for the trip, call 259-6890.

Joe Kennedy Local Legion Commander

Joe Kennedy was installed as commander of the Rolling Meadows American Legion Post 1251 at a recent meeting.

Also installed were Frank Briske, senior vice commander; Rusty Fields, junior vice commander; Erv Alquist, Adjutant and chaplain; Chet Dambauer, finance officer; Larry Renkal, Sergeant at arms; Will Hutchinson, service officer; and Al Thompson, historian.

The new officers will serve until July.

ballot, he said. Meyer stressed that the present resolution would not endorse the dissolution of township government, but only endorse the idea of getting the issue to a vote.

He said he thinks "it would be premature and in bad taste" to take a position on the issue itself before the involved parties, specifically township officials and the LWV, make presentations to the council. Both groups are expected to do so at the next meeting.

Ald. Wuerch said he voted against tabling the resolution "simply to get it out and get this business moving."

He said he is "not an advocate of township government," adding he feels it is "becoming an antiquated form of government."

The city council is the first municipal agency in the township to consider collective endorsement of the leagues efforts, according to Ann Scollay, a member of the LWV.

Assessment '70 Bids Are Lower Than Expected

The apparent low bidder for the Special Assessment '70 storm sewer construction contract is Rosetti Construction Contracting Co. of Rolling Meadows.

Its bid of $448,026.50 was about 29 per cent less than the original cost estimate of $633,900. It was based on this cost estimate that the 380 property owners were assessed and the village portion of the project was determined.

However, for this bidding a lower estimate of $538,743 was used. The new estimate was based on informal approaches to a number of local contracting firms. If the new estimate had come in as high as the original estimate the project would not have been advertised because recent court actions had reduced a number of the property owner's assessments.

ALL FIVE bids received Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Board of Local Improvements were considerably under the original estimate. The bids were $591,867 by Bongli Cartage Inc. of Cicero; $588,119.50 by George D. Hardin of Chicago; $474,372 by Di Paolo Construction Co. of Niles; and $449,391 by Tremar.

According to Village Eng. Leonard Dicke, the Tremar bid was considered unacceptable because that firm's security bond was inadequate.

With Tremar unacceptable, the second low bidder becomes Di Paolo. All the bids are being reviewed and tabulated by Consoer, Townsend, the engineering firm that drew up the project plans.

The only explanation Dicke could offer for the low bids was that Rosetti and Di Paolo, as local firms, were better acquainted with the project and had had more time to prepare their estimates. He said both had been contacted for the informal estimates just prior to the bid letting period.

The board of local improvements has a 20-day period after the bid opening in which to award a contract.

The storm sewer project, which has been the subject of controversy for the last two years, is designed to alleviate serious flooding problems in the southwest portion of the village and the Hatlen Heights subdivision.

LAST MAY in circuit court the assessments of 112 property owners were lowered by a total of $68,777. These objectors had successfully argued that their assessments for the project were more than the increase in value to their properties that would result from the improvement.

Originally the village was to pay 25 per cent of the cost or $157,000 as the public benefit portion of the project. After the revised estimate was made, village board members indicated they would keep the same dollar figure as the public benefit share. However, the further reduction in cost of some $80,000 may change this.

The village's share will be paid through Motor Fuel Tax fund receipts, either in a lump sum or over a 10-year period.

Report Driver Fled Hit-Runs

Stephen R. May, 28, of Algonquin, may decide to change his route to work.

May had been using Rte. 62 (Algonquin Road) but, according to Illinois State Police, he allegedly fled from the scene of two hit and run accidents on Rte. 62 and Linneman Road within a 24-hour period last week. The following day he was stopped on the same route by state police and asked if he had been in an accident.

The police stopped May last Wednesday because of a description of his car given by a witness to the second, more serious accident. In this Aug. 1 accident, three Des Plaines youths who were riding bicycles were struck by a car. None of the youths was hurt seriously.

Police said May has been charged with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident in the 10 a.m. incident. He is scheduled to appear Sept. 19 in Mount Prospect Court.

The other accident took place at Algonquin and Linneman roads, the night before. According to police, the driver of the other car involved, Richard D. Van Scoyoc, of 138 Walnut Ave., Des Plaines, read in the Herald the description of the car which hit the boys and thought the vehicle might be the same.

Police said May is to be charged with leaving the scene of this accident, which involved only property damage.

Police said the license number and description of the driver given them by Van Scoyoc matched May and his vehicle.

Chicago Youths' Charges Reduced

Two 17-year-old Chicago youths, charged in the March 21 break-in at 902 Ironwood Dr. in Mount Prospect, have had the charges against them reduced from burglary to theft.

The reduced charges against David W. Smiley and Don Hall came last week in Niles Court. After the new charges, their case was referred to the Mount Prospect branch of circuit court and scheduled for Aug. 25.

The pair are charged with the theft of $13.75 from the home of John Startzel.

State Baseball Tourney Begins In Arlington

TRAFFIC LANES AT the intersection of Elm-hurst Road and Algonquin Road were blocked for a while yesterday shortly before noon when a brick hauling truck and a small delivery van collided.

Two women, Kathleen Fulkerson of Arlington Heights and Bonnie Grogan of Des Plaines, were taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after the accident where they were treated and released. State police were unable to provide further information.

In Brinkman, Fairview Areas

7½ Miles Of Streets To Be Paved

Beginning tomorrow or Monday, about 7½ miles of Mount Prospect streets will be repaved using the Cutler Repaving process.

Streets to be repaved are all those in the Brinkman Manor and Fairview Gardens subdivisions and selected streets south of the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks and east of Northwest Highway.

Residents of the streets to be repaved may have to park overnight on adjacent streets. The streets being worked on each day will be closed to traffic from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Police will not issue tickets for overnight on-street parking in the work area on the night prior to the work.

A patrol car will be sent along the streets to be repaved and, using the public address system, will announce that those streets will be closed for the day. Each day by 3 p.m. the engineering department will inform the police department of the streets to be paved the following working day — subject to favorable weather and no breakdowns.

THE PUBLIC works department will erect the necessary street barriers and signs each morning and then remove them when the work is completed that day.

Under the Cutler method, road oil is poured on the road first. Then repaving equipment scrapes up the existing pavement, mixes it with asphalt and relays the new material. A roller compacts the surface and, once cooled, the street is ready for use again.

Village Eng. Leonard H. Dicke said the total project will take 20 to 25 working days. The machine is able to cover 2,000 feet of streets a day. Funds for the project have been approved by the village board from Motor Fuel Tax fund receipts.

Two Water Shows Set For Weekend

Two park district water shows are scheduled to be presented this weekend in the Mount Prospect area.

"Vaudeville Antics," the annual Mount Prospect Park District water show will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday at Meadows Park pool, 1401 W. Gregory St.

Swimmers from parks throughout the district will perform a series of aquatic routines based on vaudeville themes. Acts to be presented include: Dancing Shadows, Hello Dolly, Bonnie and Clyde, The Japanese Sandman, Hawaiian War Chant, Charlestown, Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head and Moonglow.

During the intermission, Donna Gliska and Garrett Hopkins will present a duet of aquatic art that they performed in England earlier this year. Also, Tom Pope and Bill O'Donnell will perform a comedy diving routine.

In the River Trails Park District, the theme of the show this year will be "Remember When," to be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday. Music and costumes of years past, including Gigi and Three Coins in the Fountain, are planned to set the mood for the evening's performance.

New routines this year include a water polo game between the lifeguard staff and selected members of the swim team and a skit by four and five-year-olds from the tiny tots class. Favorites from last year to be presented include canoe jousting, clown diving and synchronized swimming.

In case of the rain, the show will be postponed until 7 p.m. Monday. The pool is located at 900 E. Euclid, one block west of Wolf Road.

Admissions to both shows is free.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Senate, propelled by the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, passed a tough gun control bill voting to remove an estimated 1 million small, cheap and inaccurate handguns from the American market. The measure which now goes to the House, was approved 68 to 25 after all major attempts to strengthen or weaken it were beaten back by decisive margins. It still faces an uphill fight in the House, however.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 2-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 10, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

The War

Fearing a Communist commando attack similar to the 1968 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue as North Vietnamese gunners mounted an attack.

Parents Of Drug Users Get Help In New TORCH Program

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"Imagine you have a pretty little 15-year-old daughter. Everybody loves her. Imagine you bought her a new purse and you decided to surprise her by transferring the things from her old purse into the new one.

"Suppose you found a little bag of powdered drugs, or some pills she had no business having. What would you do?" said Richard Wynn, director of the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic in Wheeling.

This sort of situation is not too unusual, parents suddenly discover that their child is a drug abuser, and the typical first reaction is disbelief.

Disbelief stems from two things: the parents' conception of the child, and their conception of what a drug abuser is like.

"Parents usually think of their child as the fragile, loving, cute baby. They also think of drug users as wild-eyed, fiendish characters, when really it's hard to tell drug abusers from anyone else," said Wynn.

For example, a person on methadone, an addictive drug used in the cure of heroin addicts, allows a person to function normally even as it satisfies his drug need. Most drug users can control themselves, even making it hard for physicians to tell a user on sight, Wynn said.

Parents may become suspicious if the child displays erratic behavior, a change in mood, hyperactivity, or a loss of drive. Adolescents between 14 and 17 are at one of the most crucial stages of growth, and are most susceptible to drug abuse.

THEN THE blow comes, perhaps by discovering the drugs, or a phone call from the police. The parents often deny it to themselves, calling it an adolescent growing-up phase.

"Then they get angry and yell and cry," said Wynn. "They start analyzing their own experience with the child, asking 'Where did I go wrong?' They become angry at the kid's friends, the school, the neighborhood, a society that allows pushers to exist."

In general, the parents don't know what to do, what to think, or where to turn.

Wynn estimates that perhaps 10 to 15 per cent of parents in the Northwest suburban area might need to face this problem, which happens to kids regardless of intelligence or financial background.

Ten of those parents are trying to find out what to do by attending the Families Anonymous program, which meets at Wheeling High School at 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday. No previous arrangements are necessary, and the members address each other on a first name basis only.

Families Anonymous is a national organization for helping parents adjust to the drug problem. The local chapter serves Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

The chapter began when three parents wrote to the California headquarters last month for organization information. The members can fulfill their need to talk with someone who has the problem and understands. It has also helped them learn what to expect if the child must go to court.

The members discuss what problems they would like to focus on, then set up a program. Problems may include: What to do if the child takes an overdose, what to do if the child moves to harder drugs, what hospital facilities are available, and adjustment by brothers and sisters of the user who may feel neglected.

GUEST SPEAKERS also talk about practical ways to help the child. Tentatively scheduled is Dr. Peter Digre, who works with Omni-House and the hot line, which are part of the Youth Services Bureau.

He will talk about his experiences, and how the hot line can provide information on what to do in an emergency. The hot line can also act as a mediator between parents and child in cases where the child feels worthless or the home atmosphere is destructive.

Another tentatively scheduled speaker is Cook County probation officer Brook Whitted, who will talk about what to expect should a child have to appear in court.

Sometimes parents who are well known in the community hesitate to come to Families Anonymous for fear of being identified. These people can call the hot line (541-HELP), where they will be referred to an agency in another community. An agency in Chicago, called Alternatives, deals with traumatic problems and may be of assistance.

Wynn feels the need for Families Anonymous is a large one, and the group is willing to help anyone in the area. The group's basic goal is to try to identify the reason behind drug abuse, then decide on what changes to make. Meanwhile, Families Anonymous can help parents get through the anguish a little more easily.

From The Library

About 12 years ago I was vacationing with my parents on Washington Island, Wis., and met a Chicago children's book author, John Hawkinson. I was in the process of catching a snake when he identified it, assured me it was harmless, and later explained how to care for it.

Since that was my first introduction to an author, I have never forgotten him. Hawkinson has written many books for children, especially on the subject of nature, and some of these he has done with his wife, Lucy. He no longer lives in Chicago.

The Mount Prospect library has practically all his books. One of these is "Birds in the Sky." Its pictures are done in watercolor. The book covers the characteristics and habits of many birds.

"The Old Slump," narrates a day in the life of a tree stump in the middle of a forest.

I LEARNED that poison ivy, raspberry, strawberry and blackberry plants all have three leaves and could be mistaken for each other, from Hawkinson's book, "Our Wonderful Wayside." In this book he describes several camouflaged skills not found in the average outdoor guide. You'll learn how to make a simple basket from willow you can find by the wayside, how to construct a net for frogs and minnows, how to make a lamp from wayside materials, among other things.

"Collect Print and Paint from Nature" and "More to Collect and Print from Nature" are two books that give instructions for working with watercolors to paint butterflies, birds, fish and other objects from nature.

Mr. Hawkinson worked with a Chicago musician for the book "Music and Instruments for Children to Make." This book is part of a musical involvement series, the purpose of which is to make children aware of sound. It includes easy directions for making simple instruments like the box harp and pan pipes, as well as instructions for playing some songs on them.

John's wife, Lucy, wrote a book called "Days I Like" which tells and pictures what the preschool child does in each month.

The library has some interesting new non-fiction and fiction this month for adults too. Albert Camus' "A Happy Death" is new in fiction. In the non-fiction department the library has the inside story of the Clifford Irving affair, books on dreams, abortion, the Jesus people, and capital punishment. It also has "What Your Child Really Wants to Know about Sex - and Why," "Why Natural Childbirth?" and "The Making of No, No, Nnette."

Summer hours at the library are 9-9 weekdays and 9-5 Saturdays. Be sure to ask about our automatic renewal system for books if you're going on vacation and want a book for longer than two weeks.

Revolver, Jewelry Taken In Burglary

A .38 caliber revolver and an unknown amount of jewelry was stolen Tuesday from a Mount Prospect apartment.

Police said the items were taken from Tomi Marinier, of 1560 Dempster St., after the front door of the apartment was forced open.

A second burglary took place Tuesday night at 874 E. Northwest Hwy. in the office of Dr. Vytantas Kilikonas. Police said they believe nothing was taken but some drugs were disturbed in the office. There was no sign of forced entry but a door to the office was wide open when police discovered the break.

Village Has Right-Of-Way

All the right-of-way necessary for the widening of Burning Bush Lane from Euclid Avenue to Tano Lane has been obtained by the Village of Mount Prospect.

Each of four landowners has dedicated the 33-foot-wide strip needed to make Burning Bush a full-width street. The owners are the River Trails Park District, Otto Damgaard Nursery, St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church and William J. Loyce.

Final plans for the project which include widening the street and reopening the total width are now being drawn up by the village engineering department. Village Eng. Leonard H. Dicke said state approval of the project, to be built with motor fuel tax funds, and bids have yet to be sought. He does hope to have a contractor by Sept. 1, however.

Along the park district property a 20-foot wide strip 300-feet long on the parkway will be paved to accommodate parking.

Actual construction should take place in September or October.

2 Carnivals Slated

Two children's carnivals are scheduled this week to raise funds for research against Muscular Dystrophy in cooperation with the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

One will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow and Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reedy, 307 S. Elmhurst Rd. in Mount Prospect.

The other will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Brown, 303 E. Camp McDonald Rd. in Prospect Heights. The carnival will be held Sunday in the event of inclement weather.

Qualifying For Golf Tomorrow

The first qualifying round in the fifth annual Mount Prospect Golf Tournament, for boys 15 to 17 years old, will take place at 1 p.m. tomorrow.

After the first round, players will be squared off with persons of similar skill within their flight. Scores from the qualifying round will count towards the total.

The second group of qualifying rounds will take place Aug. 18. The rounds are scheduled at 9 a.m. for boys 12-14 years old and 10 a.m. for girls 12-17.

Championship rounds will take place Aug. 19 and 20. The rounds are scheduled at 1 p.m. for boys 15-17; 2 p.m. for boys 12-14 and 3 p.m. for girls 12-17.

Trophies will be awarded to each winner and runner-up in the various flights.

Jaycees' Picnic Set

The Mount Prospect Jaycees will hold their annual picnic for members only, 11:30 a.m., Aug. 19 at Dam No. 1 Forest Preserve, Milwaukee and Dundee roads in Des Plaines.

THESE YOUNG HAWKERS are a familiar sight to motorists who drive down Euclid Avenue near Arlington Park between noon and 2 p.m. daily. Veteran hawkers with three and four years experience respectively, Bob Van Antwerp and Jack Lisinski, have been rewarded by receiving the best corner near the track for making money. Both are sophomores at Rolling Meadows High School.

'Want A Green Sheet, Bud?'

Kids Profit Hawking Forms At Track

by DAVE MAHSMAN

Jack Lisinski got lucky a few days ago. He was rewarded with a dollar tip for running through traffic to chase down a hundred-dollar bill for one of his customers.

Lisinski is a hawk. He stands in the middle of Euclid Avenue near Rohlfing Road, selling Racing Forms, green sheets and red sheets to patrons of near-by Arlington Park. He also dodges traffic.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, green sheets and red sheets are formally known as the Illinois Sports News and Chicago Turf Bulletin respectively. But uninitiated or not, area residents who drive anywhere near the track between noon and 2 p.m. daily should be familiar with the young men who peddle the tabloids — maybe just because you narrowly missed hitting one of them.

These young men — especially the ones who have been selling the sheets for several years — find hawking to be a lucrative business.

"I can make about eight dollars a day, $12 on Saturday," said 15-year-old Bob Van Antwerp, who hawks his wares at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Rohlfing Road, just outside the park. Van Antwerp, a sophomore at Rolling Meadows High School, said matter-of-factly that his is the best corner for making money.

But another Rolling Meadows High School sophomore disagreed with Van Antwerp. Larry Murphy, 16, of 3600 Pleasant Dr., said he likes his spot in the middle of the Ill. Rte. 53 exit at Kirchoff Road. Although he does not make as much money during the week — he clears "five dollars easy" — Murphy said he can earn 10 to 20 dollars on Saturday, as compared to Van Antwerp's $12. He explained that two hawkers work Van Antwerp's corner during the week, and a third moves in on Saturday. They have to divide their earnings evenly.

REGARDLESS OF WHO has the best corner, all agreed that the worst corner is the intersection of Wilke Road and West Campbell Street.

Jim Lisinski, a 14-year-old from Rolling Meadows whose sandy hair blew in the cold wind as we talked, has been hawking only a week and has been stuck with that "worst corner." Seniority decides who gets what corner.

Lisinski said he is lucky to make 10 or 15 dollars in a week, but he added that he hopes to hawk again next year — and get a better corner. Lisinski's brother, Jack, who is also 14, has been selling the sheets for the West Arlington News Agency — as do most of the boys — for four years, and shares Van Antwerp's profitable corner near the track.

It is understandable why Jim Lisinski wants to keep selling the papers, in spite of the occasional bad weather that drenches the boys who stand in the streets rain or shine. Because most regular summer jobs require that boys be at least 16 years old, there is not much else that the under-16s can do. Besides that, a potential 10 or 15 dollars for two hours of work is not bad in anybody's book.

Most of the boys are eagerly awaiting their 16th birthdays and the right to drive an automobile that accompanies that milestone in their lives. The vast majority of the young salesmen said they are saving all that cash they're making to buy a car. Jack Lisinski told of one former hawk who had saved enough from his job to make a down payment on a $5,400 Oldsmobile.

BESIDES COLLECTING their 10 per cent profit on the papers they sell, the boys occasionally receive nickel and dime tips.

"I never got any big tips like that before — except from guys who forget their change," Lisinski said of his dollar reward. His smile seemed to reveal a wisdom of the business gained after four years working the track patrons.

His blond hair falling in tight waves nearly to his shoulders, Dan Dionesotes, a fifteen-year-old junior at Palatine High School, told of another kind of tip.

"A car pulled over and a guy tried to hand me a quart of beer," Dionesotes related. "There was a cop standing on the corner, so I said 'no.' You meet interesting people — a lot of drunk people."

Though the money comes in through tips and profits, carelessness can make a hawk lose money as well. Murphy said one hazard of the job is accidentally handing a customer more green sheets than he asked for. He said one young salesman has worked for the news agency for two years and still comes in a dollar short almost every day. The short money comes out of the unfortunate hawk's own pocket.

A hazard of more concern to parents than to the boys themselves, however, are the cars and trucks that whiz by on both sides of the hawkers while they are selling their sheets. Cars honk and semis nearly blow them off their feet. Still, there have been no injuries in the four years the news agency has sent their boys to peddle the papers.

Some of the boys complained that their job gets boring at times, but the nearer post time approached, the busier the hawkers were and the fewer the opportunities to become bored.

Shortly after 2 p.m., the young salesmen were climbing on their bicycles and leaving their intersections until the next day. The horses were running at Arlington Park.

Woman Injured In Truck-Car Crash

An Elk Grove Village woman sustained spinal injuries Wednesday when a semi-trailer truck loaded with sand collided with her car at the intersection of Rte. 72 and Arlington Heights Road.

Lee Hicks, 38, of 902 Creighton Ave., was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in the village by a fire department ambulance where she was reported in satisfactory condition with a fractured neck vertebra.

The truck overturned in the collision and blocked traffic for about 45 minutes until a tow truck could set it upright.

Firemen washed down diesel fuel that spilled on the roadway and disconnected the truck battery to prevent a fire.

The truck driver, uninjured, was charged with running a red light.

The accident occurred on a section of Higgins Road under construction for the past two years. The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees have called the stretch of road a "clear and present danger to the public health, welfare and safety" and have petitioned the state to complete the highway as soon as possible.

At 2, She Waded Into Show Biz

by NANCY COWGER

At age 11, Melody Ann Wade already has been gainfully employed nine years of her life.

But Melody has not violated any child labor laws, or been sent out by her parents to "bring home the bacon." She has appeared throughout the U.S. as a member of the Musical Wades, a show business family.

Melody is expanding the family tradition of travel and performances into a new avenue — beauty and talent pageants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Buddy) Wade, 415 Hudson Dr., Hoffman Estates, is the Illinois talent contestant in the World Our Little Miss Pageant, to be Aug. 20-25 in New Orleans.

Melody won the Illinois talent title as a drummer, one of the few pre-teen females with a bent toward percussion. Her talents were channeled in that path through her father, who plays drums for the Musical Wades.

The Musical Wades is composed of the Hoffman Estates family and Wade's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wade of Mount Prospect. Melody's mother dances, twirls baton and plays marimbas and chimes; Eddie is accordionist and his wife Stella is organist.

Buddy Wade started teaching his daughter to play the drums when she was just a small child. For the past five years, she has studied with Jack Jerger of Des Plaines, a music teacher at Niles West High School and at schools in Winnetka. Melody's sponsor in the pageant is Slingerland Drum Co. of Niles.

While Melody has entered the pageant with a drum solo, she also likes acrobatics and dancing, which she has done with the family act, and has studied drama two years.

Melody's experience with the Musical Wades is far-reaching. The family has performed in night clubs and hotels all over the country, sharing billing with such entertainment greats as Bob Hope, Jack Benny and Louis Armstrong.

And while the family describes itself as semi-retired, it still performs many weekends and some week nights, keeping its travels to a maximum of about 300 miles.

This year is not Melody's first experience with pageants. Two years ago she entered the preliminary competition in Mount Prospect, and was second runner-up. Last year she made it to state competition, and was among the top 10 Little Misses of Illinois. She will not be the only Illinois entry in the world contest. The state's Our Little Miss will compete along with its talent winner. But as the talent winner, Melody is eligible for all titles.

WITH ALL HER background in entertaining, Melody wants something more serious for her adult life. At first, she thought she would be a doctor, but the thought of operations frightened her. Then she decided she would be the first woman President of the United States.

But even with her ambitions, Melody is not a women's rights advocate. "I don't go along with it at all. I like girls to be girls," she said.

And although Melody is a Hoffman Estates resident, she does not attend school in the village. Public schools lack discipline, children do not pray in them, and their "priorities are way off base," said Mrs. Wade. Melody studies at Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, where Latin is her favorite subject. Before the family's semi-retirement, she studied by correspondence.

Being an outsider as far as school is concerned, she did not know many neighborhood children the first winter her family lived in Hoffman Estates, moving from Des Plaines 2½ years ago. But when summer came, she made many friends, and now counts her friends equally at school and around her home.

And Melody does share some real interests with the neighborhood children. For her girl friends, she can display a collection of 75 dolls. For the boys, she brings out her 32 toy cars and trucks.

High Tennis Bids Leave No Room For Rink Error

by CINDY TEW
A News Analysis

Board members and the architect hired by the Arlington Heights Park District are in the midst of a giant, serious game of Russian roulette and if the gun goes off, a gaping hole will be blown in the pocketbooks of the taxpayers.

The first part of the drama is now taking place as the park district evaluates bids for the construction of an indoor tennis facility. If a referendum passes in October, the stage will be set for an even more critical evaluation of construction bids that would amount to well over $1 million, including an indoor ice rink.

Park district strategy includes reading the minds of 100 different contractors and their labor unions. The game is won only if cost estimates for the proposed park facilities are right on target — there is no room for error.

Already there seems to be an error. Architect Joe Bennett admits that bids for the indoor tennis facility are higher than expected. There are still alternatives, however, he said.

THE $700,000 TENNIS building is the first part of a new wave of proposed construction within the park district. The passage of the upcoming $2.4 million referendum would mean more construction. Unlike the construction included in the referendum issue, however, tennis facility construction does not need the approval of voters. The building is being constructed with revenue bonds which will be sold to individuals and corporations. Only revenue generated by the building will be used to pay the bonds off.

The six-court facility will include a pro shop, nursery and men's and women's locker rooms with sauna baths and whirlpools in each.

Each part of the facility, from the proposed laminated arches to the tennis nets, has a price tag attached. The price tag has been continually updated, however.

"Over the past three years, labor costs have gone up 60 per cent and material costs have gone up 25 per cent," Bennett said. "Even since we made the construction estimate in May a new labor contract has gone into effect."

According to Bennett the best he can do is look at past jobs, keep in touch with current costs and "guesstimate."

"There are over 100 items I have to take into consideration; estimates are damn hard to make," Bennett said.

TO MAKE UP FOR the continually spiraling costs involved with construction, Bennett adds lists of alternate specifications.

"For example, we have a choice of wood or steel to be used in the exterior construction," said Bennett. "It looks like the wood would cost $100,000 extra."

Extras, like the wood, may have to bow out to cheaper alternatives. The wood, in this case, would be replaced by steel.

After studying all parts of the bids, re-calculating and renegotiating, Bennett feels he can get the construction cost down to the original cost estimate of $575,000. He says he may end up $30,000 to $40,000 high, however, which would necessitate the selling of more bonds. The lowest overall bid is now $58,000 high.

Though plans appear to be correctable for the tennis building, the question remains: What if bids for the proposed ice rink come in too high after a referendum has set limits on the money available for construction?

"If bids were 10 per cent off on the ice facility, we would eat up almost all the money we have allotted for park improvements around the district," said Commissioner C. Robert Rees.

"We had to cut some of the promised facilities out of the last referendum when costs skyrocketed," said Commissioner Katherine Muller. "I want to make sure the people get what is promised to them."

After the 1968 referendum brought $2.8 million to the park district coffers for construction of four swimming pools, three neighborhood centers and improvements at several parks, costs rose 20 per cent. Buildings were redesigned and some improvements were scratched entirely.

A $200,000 contingency fund is part of the upcoming referendum. According to Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, the fund should take care of rising costs.

Bennett says he refuses to pad any of his estimates. "I make them on the basis of what I can see," he said.

During the 1968 building in the district construction costs were so out of sight that projects had to be cut. Costs are a ways down the road after a preliminary look at bids on the tennis facility.

The park board has an obligation to make sure that, should the referendum pass, cost estimates are within an arm's reach. The board has the facts, figures and hindsight on which to base their cost estimates.

Diving Meet Slated At Olympic Park

A village diving meet will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at Olympic Park Pool, 600 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights.

The competition is open to all Arlington Heights Park District residents, and registration for the events can be made at poolside Saturday before 10 a.m.

Judging the competition will be Ralph Elwart, head life guard at Olympic Park, and Jeff Thiesman, diving coach for the district.

On Monday, the village-wide novice swim meet will be concluded at Camelot Park, 1005 E. Suffolk, with competition in the back and breast strokes beginning at 6 p.m. All village residents, excluding conference swim team members are invited to participate.

THESE YOUNG HAWKERS are a familiar sight to motorists who drive down Euclid Avenue near Arlington Park between noon and 2 p.m. daily. Veteran hawkers with three and four years experience respectively, Bob Van Antwerp and Jack Lisinski, have been rewarded by receiving the best corner near the track for making money. Both are sophomores at Rolling Meadows High School.

'Want A Green Sheet, Bud?'

Kids Profit Hawking Forms At Track

by DAVE MAHSMAN

Jack Lisinski got lucky a few days ago. He was rewarded with a dollar tip for running through traffic to chase down a hundred-dollar bill for one of his customers.

Lisinski is a hawk. He stands in the middle of Euclid Avenue near Rehling Road, selling Racing Forms, green sheets and red sheets to patrons of nearby Arlington Park. He also dodges traffic.

For the benefit of the uninitiated, green sheets and red sheets are formally known as the Illinois Sports News and Chicago Turf Bulletin respectively. But uninitiated or not, area residents who drive anywhere near the track between noon and 2 p.m. daily should be familiar with the young men who peddle the tabloids — maybe just because you narrowly missed hitting one of them.

These young men — especially the ones who have been selling the sheets for several years — find hawking to be a lucrative business.

"I can make about eight dollars a day, $12 on Saturday," said 15-year-old Bob Van Antwerp, who hawks his wares at the corner of Euclid Avenue and Rehling Road, just outside the park. Van Antwerp, a sophomore at Rolling Meadows High School, said matter-of-factly that his is the best corner for making money.

But another Rolling Meadows High School sophomore disagreed with Van Antwerp. Larry Murphy, 16, of 3600 Pheasant Dr., said he likes his spot in the middle of the Ill. Rte. 53 exit at Kirchhoff Road. Although he does not make as much money during the week — he clears "five dollars easy" — Murphy said he can earn 10 to 20 dollars on Saturday, as compared to Van Antwerp's $12. He explained that two hawkers work Van Antwerp's corner during the week, and a third moves in on Saturday. They have to divide their earnings evenly.

REGARDLESS OF WHO has the best corner, all agreed that the worst corner is the intersection of Wilke Road and West Campbell Street.

Jim Lisinski, a 14-year-old from Rolling Meadows whose sandy hair blew in the cold wind as we talked, has been hawking only a week and has been stuck with that "worst corner." Seniority decides who gets what corner.

Lisinski said he is lucky to make 10 or 15 dollars in a week, but he added that he hopes to hawk again next year — and get a better corner. Lisinski's brother, Jack, who is also 14, has been selling the sheets for the West Arlington News Agency — as do most of the boys — for four years, and shares Van Antwerp's profitable corner near the track.

It is understandable why Jim Lisinski wants to keep selling the papers, in spite of the occasional bad weather that drenches the boys who stand in the streets rain or shine. Because most regular summer jobs require that boys be at least 16 years old, there is not much else that the under-16s can do. Beside that, a potential 10 or 15 dollars for two hours of work is not bad in anybody's book.

Most of the boys are eagerly awaiting their 16th birthdays and the right to drive an automobile that accompanies that milestone in their lives. The vast majority of the young salesmen said they are saving all that cash they're making to buy a car. Jack Lisinski told of one former hawk who had saved enough from his job to make a down payment on a $5,400 Oldsmobile.

BESIDES COLLECTING their 10 per cent profit on the papers they sell, the boys occasionally receive nickel and dime tips.

"I never got any big tips like that before — except from guys who forget their change," Lisinski said of his dollar reward. His smile seemed to reveal a wisdom of the business gained after four years working the track patrons.

His blond hair falling in tight waves nearly to his shoulders, Dan Dionesotes, a fifteen-year-old junior at Palatine High School, told of another kind of tip.

"A car pulled over and a guy tried to hand me a quart of beer," Dionesotes related. "There was a cop standing on the corner, so I said 'no.' You meet interesting people — a lot of drunk people."

Though the money comes in through tips and profits, carelessness can make a hawk lose money as well. Murphy said one hazard of the job is accidentally handing a customer more green sheets than he asked for. He said one young salesman has worked for the news agency for two years and still comes in a dollar short almost every day. The short money comes out of the unfortunate hawk's own pocket.

A hazard of more concern to parents than to the boys themselves, however, are the cars and trucks that whiz by on both sides of the hawkers while they are selling their sheets. Cars honk and semis nearly blow them off their feet. Still, there have been no injuries in the four years the news agency has sent their boys to peddle the papers.

Some of the boys complained that their job gets boring at times, but the nearer post time approached, the busier the hawkers were and the fewer the opportunities to become bored.

Shortly after 2 p.m., the young salesmen were climbing on their bicycles and leaving their intersections until the next day. The horses were running at Arlington Park.

Meetings This Week

Thursday, Aug 10

School Dist. 25 board of education will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 301 W. South St.

School Dist. 21 board of education will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 900 W. Dundee, Wheeling.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Senate, propelled by the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, passed a tough gun control bill voting to remove an estimated 1 million small, cheap and inaccurate handguns from the American market. The measure which now goes to the House, was approved 88 to 25 after all major attempts to strengthen or weaken it were beaten back by decisive margins. It still faces an uphill fight in the House, however.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 3-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 10, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

The War

Fearing a Communist commando attack similar to the 1968 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue as North Vietnamese gunners mounted an attack.

Dealing With Village Is Expensive

Like A Game Of Monopoly

by KURT BAER

Petitioning the Village of Arlington Heights for approval of a new commercial building is a little like playing game of tournament Monopoly, only the stakes are higher and the dollars are real.

Consider the hypothetical example of a man, let's call him A. Lacart, who owns about a third of an acre of undeveloped land just outside the village and who would like to build and operate a small restaurant on his property.

Excluding the cost of actually constructing, insuring, maintaining and managing his restaurant, A. Lacart can expect to spend close to $6,000 on assorted fees, licenses and permits before he ever opens his doors.

The fact is that the road to constructing and operating a commercial building, especially a restaurant, is a complex and often expensive maze of hearings and permits with potential pitfalls at every turn.

The first step for this petitioner is to file an application for a public hearing before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission. A. Lacart will ask for annexation, rezoning and a special use permit to operate a restaurant. At this point it all sounds easy enough.

THE FILING FEE, which covers the cost of the hearing and publication of the necessary legal notice, is $150.

The plan commission's calendar of hearing dates normally is booked solid six to eight weeks in advance, so it may be months before A. Lacart and his restaurant come up for consideration.

In the meantime, he, or more likely his attorney, can set about fulfilling the ordinance requirements which will have to be satisfied before the public hearing can be held.

Since his petition includes a request to be annexed to Arlington Heights, the village will take care of the legal work to incorporate the property.

The owner, however, must secure a plat of annexation, normal cost about $50, and a plat of survey of the property, average cost around $100. These documents provide a detailed legal description of the property.

A. Lacart will also have to secure a current opinion from a title insurance company, most often Chicago Title and Trust Co., showing he has title to the land.

Since April 1970, all restaurants in the Village of Arlington Heights require a special use permit. It therefore becomes A. Lacart's responsibility to demonstrate to the plan commission and later the village board that his establishment "will be desirable or necessary to the public convenience or welfare and will be harmonious and compatible with other uses adjacent to and in the vicinity of the selected site."

What It Costs To Open Up A Restaurant

Here's an approximate tabulation of what it might cost a hypothetical developer to get the required permits and licenses to open a small restaurant in Arlington Heights.

Application for a plan commission hearing	$150
Plat of annexation	$50
Plat of survey	$100
Attorney's fees	$2,000
Class AA village liquor license	$1,500
State liquor license	$50
Building permits	$2,000
Business license	$50
TOTAL	$5,900

monious and compatible with other uses adjacent to and in the vicinity of the selected site."

While he is pondering this, he and his attorney can also prepare for their hearing before the public health and safety committee, three village trustees who will examine A. Lacart's application for a restaurant liquor license.

A police background check of A. Lacart and any of his associates will be included.

AS THE PLAN commission hearing date nears, A. Lacart must remember to notify all other property owners of record within 250 feet of his lot of his application for annexation and rezoning. Should he forget, his hearing will be continued, probably for another six to eight weeks, until he complies.

Assuming he has met all the pre-hearing requirements, A. Lacart presents his case to the plan commission. During the hearing reports from all the village department heads are read into the record and citizens too are given a chance to be heard.

From the plan commission, A. Lacart moves to the board of trustees, who, working from the plan commission's recommendations, will confer ultimate approval or rejection of the project.

It is here that the public health and safety committee enters its recommendations to the liquor commissioner, who is also the village president, on whether or not the restaurant should be allowed to serve drinks.

The liquor commissioner in turn asks for a vote of the village board on the license application. And if it is approved the ordinance will be amended to create a new license.

A Class AA license will cost A. Lacart $1,500 annually. He must also pay the state $50 a year for its license.

With village board approval, A. Lacart is ready for the building department. He is on the last but one of the most costly legs of his odyssey.

IN THE LAND of the building inspectors, his plans will be reviewed by the architectural committee for appropriateness of design and by a structural engineer for soundness of design. And there also he will spend, depending on the precise size of his building, perhaps $2,000 for various permits.

A breakdown for building permits recently issued in Arlington Heights for a small restaurant of 2,500 square feet, situated on about one-third of an acre, reveal the numerous items checked, inspected and controlled by the building department.

The total bill of $2,182.30 can be itemized as follows: $100 building permit, $186.40 electrical permit, $45 plumbing permit, $10 driveway permit, $5 occupancy permit, $8 examination of building plans, $40 opinion of a structural engineer, $1,372.80 for water meters, $200 for water tap, $15 sewer connection, $170.10 water service charge and a $200 bond.

If his restaurant building passes building inspections and if he appears to have met the conditions of his plan, normally including sidewalks, streetlights, landscaping, parking, storm water detention and garbage disposal, and if he has paid his bills, A. Lacart will be handed an occupancy permit.

He can now look forward to opening his restaurant, paying his attorney, probably about $2,000, paying his architect, his taxes, retiring his mortgage and finally, with luck, making a profit.

Is Your Child A Drug User?

New Program Aids Parents

by JEAN CAFARELLA

"Imagine you have a pretty little 15-year-old daughter. Everybody loves her. Imagine you bought her a new purse and you decided to surprise her by transferring the things from her old purse into the new one.

"Suppose you found a little bag of powdered drugs, or some pills she had no business having. What would you do?" said Richard Wynn, director of the TORCH Community Mental Health Clinic in Wheeling.

This sort of situation is not too unusual, parents suddenly discover that their child is a drug abuser, and the typical first reaction is disbelief.

Disbelief stems from two things: the parents' conception of the child, and their conception of what a drug abuser is like.

"Parents usually think of their child as the fragile, loving, cute baby. They also think of drug users as wild-eyed, fiendish characters, when really it's hard to tell drug abusers from anyone else," said Wynn.

For example, a person on methadone, an addictive drug used in the cure of heroin addicts, allows a person to function normally even as it satisfies his drug need. Most drug users can control themselves, even making it hard for physicians to tell a user on sight, Wynn said.

Parents may become suspicious if the child displays erratic behavior, a change in mood, hyperactivity, or a loss of drive. Adolescents between 14 and 17 are at one of the most crucial stages of growth, and are most susceptible to drug abuse.

THEN THE blow comes, perhaps by discovering the drugs, or a phone call from the police. The parents often deny it to themselves, calling it an adolescent growing-up phase.

"Then they get angry and yell and cry," said Wynn. "They start analyzing their own experience with the child, asking 'Where did I go wrong?' They become angry at the kid's friends, the school, the neighborhood, a society that allows pushers to exist."

In general, the parents don't know what to do, what to think, or where to turn.

Wynn estimates that perhaps 10 to 15 per cent of parents in the Northwest suburban area might need to face this problem, which happens to kids regardless of intelligence or financial background.

Ten of those parents are trying to find out what to do by attending the Families

Anonymous program, which meets at Wheeling High School at 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday. No previous arrangements are necessary, and the members address each other on a first name basis only.

Families Anonymous is a national organization for helping parents adjust to the drug problem. The local chapter serves Arlington Heights, Palatine, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

The chapter began when three parents wrote to the California headquarters last month for organization information. The members can fulfill their need to talk with someone who has the problem and understands. It has also helped them learn what to expect if the child must go to court.

The members discuss what problems they would like to focus on, then set up a program. Problems may include: What to do if the child takes an overdose, what to do if the child moves to harder drugs, what hospital facilities are available, and adjustment by brothers and sisters of the user who may feel neglected.

GUEST SPEAKERS also talk about practical ways to help the child. Tentatively scheduled is Dr. Peter Digre, who works with Omni-House and the hot line, which are part of the Youth Services Bureau.

He will talk about his experiences, and how the hot line can provide information on what to do in an emergency. The hot line can also act as a mediator between parents and child in cases where the child feels worthless or the home atmosphere is destructive.

Another tentatively scheduled speaker is Cook County probation officer Brook Whitted, who will talk about what to expect should a child have to appear in court.

Sometimes parents who are well known in the community hesitate to come to Families Anonymous for fear of being identified. These people can call the hot line (541-HELP), where they will be referred to an agency in another community. An agency in Chicago, called Alternatives, deals with traumatic problems and may be of assistance.

Wynn feels the need for Families Anonymous is a large one, and the group is willing to help anyone in the area. The group's basic goal is to try to identify the reason behind drug abuse, then decide on what changes to make. Meanwhile, Families Anonymous can help parents get through the anguish a little more easily.

County Board OKs Gas Station Plans

The Cook County Board has approved a petition for a gas station on the northwest corner of Rand Road and Clarence Avenue.

The decision to rezone the property from single-family residential to business use for the service station was made over the objection of the Village of Arlington Heights.

The county board also approved rezoning for a half acre of land located on the west side of Rand Road just south of Stratford Road for the purpose of sales, display and storage of glass products.

Arlington Heights also had objected to this rezoning petition.

Carnival To Fight Dystrophy Friday

A carnival to earn money to aid in muscular dystrophy research and patient care will be held Friday at 414 E. Rockwell St., Arlington Heights, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Ringmaster Kathy Lacey will introduce the games which will include a horror house and snack shop.

Also helping to plan and supervise the activities are Eileen and Ted Lacey, Mary Gadd, Polly and Sarah Miner, Greg Schultz and Kathy and Dave Rentsch.

CHARRED ANTIQUES have been the subject of tender loving care by Greta D'Ancona, manager of Gatehouse Antiques Ltd., which was damaged by fire in May along with Ma and Pa's Country Candy Store, 123 E. Davis, Arlington Heights. Mrs. D'Ancona has spent the past several months trying to salvage her prizes. Though proprietors of both the antique and candy stores have made preliminary decisions not to return to their former place of business no matter what happens, the fate of the building is still unknown.

Kennedy Charged With Murder

The man accused of stabbing two area teenagers has been charged with the murder of a 14-year-old girl in Union City, Calif., and will soon be charged with the death of another teenager in that city.

Law enforcement officers in Union City held a press conference yesterday reporting the latest development in the arrest of Weldon Mead Kennedy, 23. Kennedy is currently being held in a Washakie, Wyo., county jail for the stabbings of two youths Thursday night.

Russell Hughes, 17, of Palatine and Daniel Kotel, 19, of Mount Prospect are recovering from stab wounds in a Wyoming hospital after Kennedy allegedly attacked them. Kennedy is charged with aggravated assault and battery in the incident.

CALIFORNIA LAW enforcement officers said Kennedy admitted killing Vicki Lynn Iselin, 14, and Mario W. Oliver, 15, both of Union City. Oliver's body was found in late July, and Miss Iselin's body was discovered under a house last week.

The officers said Kennedy also claimed responsibility for the death of an 18-year-old girl in South Lake Tahoe, Calif., July 4. El Dorado County officials said the death was not confirmed and South Lake Tahoe police officers have flown to Worland, Wyo., to seek further details of Kennedy's claim that he killed the girl and threw her body in the lake.

Authorities said another crime Kennedy claimed committing was the bludgeoning of Marilyn Burges, 25, in the coastal city of Monterey July 5. Miss Burges was attacked on a Monterey beach early in the morning and her purse containing $2.58 was stolen.

Board To Award Contracts Tonight

Bids for the construction of a facility for the physically handicapped, to be attached to Berkley School, will probably be awarded tonight at the Dist. 25 school board of education meeting to be held at 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights, at 7:30.

The recommended bid totals $142,567, which is about $2,500 less than what was estimated for the building.

Contracts for safety equipment in district schools, amounting to $57,500, are also expected to be awarded.

Chanute Air Force Band To Play Here

Military marches will ring from Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez in Arlington Heights, Monday as the 505th Air Force Band presents an 8 p.m. concert.

The 34-man band is from Chanute Air Force Base, and the concert is part of the Arlington Heights Park District Music Under the Stars series which will be concluded with a play at Recreation Park Aug. 21.

Ma And Pa's Store Fate Still In Limbo

For the past three months, the fate of 69-year-old Ma and Pa's Country Candy store, 123 E. Davis, Arlington Heights, has been in limbo. The decision to rebuild or tear down the building is still the subject of much speculation.

The store, which included Gatehouse Antiques Ltd., was damaged by fire May 7. Though many antiques, several thousand dollars worth candy and interior decorations were destroyed, the building is still structurally sound, according to Wayne Kliner, who has lived above the store for 29 years.

"Though some subflooring was charred, the frame was not even damaged," said Kliner, who is a carpenter.

According to Bernie Wood who leases the candy store from Nicholas Lattof, the final decision on what to do with the building depends on the insurance settlement and the possibility of developing an under-over pass at Northwest Highway and Arlington Heights Road.

"From what I understand, there are no plans in the near future for constructing that under-over pass," Wood said. "But I think it will come eventually and plan to relocate my business."

Wood said he does not want to go through the work of rebuilding the business at the Davis-Arlington Heights Road intersection knowing that an under-over pass would mean the demolition of the store. He has not decided where to relocate.

"It will be a few weeks before we make any definite plans," said Lattof.

Wood has not yet settled with his insurance company, but said his losses amount to about $24,000, not including personal papers and files which were smoke damaged in his studio above the candy store.

The clean-up procedure in the antique shop is nearly completed, according to manager Greta D'Ancona.

Mrs. D'Ancona isn't sure if she wants to go back to the old store, should it be restored.

"I do a lot of antique business by telephone — the old customers haven't forgotten me," she said.

Fast Chase Ends At Dead-End

A dead-end street ended a high speed chase through Arlington Heights early Wednesday morning, which resulted in police citing the driver for attempting to elude an officer and three traffic violations.

Nel M. Houlihan, 4441 W. 100th St., Oak Lawn, was arrested by police at 4:40 a.m. Wednesday after a chase in which Houlihan was clocked in excess of 60 miles per hour. Beside being cited for attempting to elude an officer, he was charged with speeding, avoiding a traffic control device and running a stop sign. He is being held in Arlington Heights jail in lieu of a $500 bond. His court date has been set for Sept. 1.

Police say Houlihan was first spotted driving at a high rate of speed on U.S. 14 near Windsor Drive. Houlihan allegedly drove through a service station on the northwest corner of Rand Road and Arlington Heights Road to avoid a red light. Police say Houlihan later ran a stop sign at Euclid and Belmont avenues. Houlihan was apprehended when he drove north on Belmont Avenue and came to the dead end.

Houlihan told police he was going home from work and was driving 60 miles per hour so that he would not run out of gas.

Park District Swimmers Place 4th

Swimming in their home pool for the championship meet, Arlington Heights Park District Red swim team placed fourth in the Northern Illinois Swim Conference Class A division last week.

The conference is made up of 24 teams, with the six best teams in Class A. Edging out the Arlington team were Park Ridge, Northbrook and Barrington which finished first, second and third respectively.

Charles Dunn was the outstanding swimmer for Arlington with two individual first place ribbons and a first and second on relay teams. His time of 2:06.733 was the best he has ever recorded in the 200-yd. individual medley as was his winning effort in the 100-yd. backstroke.

CHERYL AND JAN Takata were also big winners of the championship meet. Cheryl took home second and fourth place ribbons and Jan earned first, second and third place ribbons. Jan along with Maureen Stoll, Sue Dragoon and Barb Volden teamed to win the 200-yd. free style relay in 1:53.594, a new Arlington record. Barb also won second, fourth and fifth place ribbons for the day.

Competing in the 11 and 12-year-old division, Gary Stark won the 50-yd. breast stroke and the 100-yd. individual medley.

Jay Takata was the winner of the back stroke title in the 8 and under age division.

Other fine performances were turned in by Kiernan Mack, Jeff Young, John Todd, Joni Jacobsen, Mark Markwell, Chris Prinslow. Divers Jeff Munk and Kelly Holland also had a fine showing for the day.

OTHER FINISHES WERE:
8 & Under: Mike Polacek (6th), Joni Jacobsen (4th, 6th), Jay Takata (6th), Lori Spirek (6th) — Both relays 4th.

9 & 10: Brett Ryden (4th), Christine Takata (5th, 6th), Nancy O'Kane (5th), Garin Kroll (6th) — Boys Relay — 5th.

11 & 12: Barb Loner (4th), Mark Markwell (4th), Steve Nitch (4th), Nora Polacek (6th) Girls Relay — 5th.

13 & 14: Laura Clotfelter (6th).

15 & over: Mike Nitch (4th), Dave Hartman (5th, 6th), Joe Nitch (5th) Vicki Burling & Ray Hollenback (4th — diving), Jim McWherter (6th).

Cassettes, Paperbacks Are Replacing Textbooks

With the advent of a multi-media approach to learning, old, worn out books are fast becoming a rarity in Arlington Heights School Dist. 25.

"We are using instructional aids such as cassettes, movies and paperbacks more and more lately," said James Montgomery, director of instruction. "The textbook budget has remained fairly constant over the past several years."

Still, about 200 books per year are eliminated because they are worn out, Montgomery said. The books, which have an average life of 5 years, are either recycled or burned.

"We'd rather have the books recycled, but I understand recycling isn't an easy operation because of the book binding," Montgomery said. "Also there's no real market for recycling books — no one will take them."

Montgomery said workbooks are often disposed of at local paper drives.

If books are simply phased out because of new information or a new teaching technique, they are often resold. Books, which average $4 each, are sold back to textbook companies such as Wilcox & Follet for less than $1 each.

"OVER THE PAST two to three years we have been keeping more and more textbooks that are no longer used in classrooms as reference material," Montgomery said. "Before that when we adapted a new book series we'd simply resell all of the books of the old series."

Instead of the traditional set of classroom textbooks, issued for each subject to each student, the trend of the district is toward workbooks accompanied with reference books, records, cassettes and films.

During the past few years, about $2,500 has been spent yearly on textbooks and about $40,000 on library materials. Audio visual aids have amounted to an expenditure of about $10,000 a year. The tentative budget for the coming year, however, reflects an increase of about $30,000 in teaching aids and about $7,000 in additional audio visual equipment.

At 2, She Waded Into Show Biz

by NANCY COWGER

At age 11, Melody Ann Wade already has been gainfully employed nine years of her life.

But Melody has not violated any child labor laws, or been sent out by her parents to "bring home the bacon." She has appeared throughout the U.S. as a member of the Musical Wades, a show business family.

Melody is expanding the family tradition of travel and performances into a new avenue — beauty and talent pageants.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Buddy) Wade, 415 Hudson Dr., Hoffman Estates, is the Illinois talent contestant in the World Our Little Miss Pageant, to be Aug. 20-25 in New Orleans.

MELODY WON the Illinois talent title as a drummer, one of the few pre-teen females with a bent toward percussion. Her talents were channeled in that path through her father, who plays drums for the Musical Wades.

The Musical Wades is composed of the Hoffman Estates family and Wade's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wade of Mount Prospect. Melody's mother dances, twirls baton and plays marimbas and chimes; Eddie is accordionist and his wife Stella is organist.

Buddy Wade started teaching his daughter to play the drums when she was just a small child. For the past five years, she has studied with Jack Jerger of Des Plaines, a music teacher at Niles West High School and at schools in Winnetka. Melody's sponsor in the pageant is Slingerland Drum Co. of Niles.

While Melody has entered the pageant with a drum solo, she also likes acrobatics and dancing, which she has done with the family act, and has studied drama two years.

Melody's experience with the Musical Wades is far-reaching. The family has performed in night clubs and hotels all over the country, sharing billing with such entertainment greats as Bob Hope, Jack Benny and Louis Armstrong.

And while the family describes itself as semi-retired, it still performs many weekends and some week nights, keeping its travels to a maximum of about 300 miles.

This year is not Melody's first experience with pageants. Two years ago she entered the preliminary competition in Mount Prospect, and was second runner-up. Last year she made it to state competition, and was among the top 10 Little Misses of Illinois. She will not be the only Illinois entry in the world contest. The state's Our Little Miss will compete along with its talent winner. But as the talent winner, Melody is eligible for all titles.

WITH ALL HER background in entertaining, Melody wants something more serious for her adult life. At first, she thought she would be a doctor, but the thought of operations frightened her. Then she decided she would be the first woman President of the United States.

But even with her ambitions, Melody is not a women's rights advocate. "I don't go along with it at all. I like girls to be girls," she said.

And although Melody is a Hoffman Estates resident, she does not attend school in the village. Public schools lack discipline, children do not pray in them, and their "priorities are way off base," said Mrs. Wade. Melody studies at Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights, where Latin is her favorite subject. Before the family's semi-retirement, she studied by correspondence.

Being an outsider as far as school is concerned, she did not know many neighborhood children the first winter her family lived in Hoffman Estates, moving from Des Plaines 2½ years ago. But when summer came, she made many friends, and now counts her friends equally at school and around her home.

And Melody does share some real interests with the neighborhood children. For her girl friends, she can display a collection of 75 dolls. For the boys, she brings out her 32 toy cars and trucks.

Board To Eye School Contracts

The Dist. 21 Board of Education may award contracts tonight for the construction of Robert Louis Stevenson and Washington Irving schools.

Bids have been opened, and John Barger, assistant superintendent, said at the last board meeting he would have recommendations ready for tonight's 8:15 meeting. First on the agenda is executive session to discuss possible land purchase. The session was placed first so land appraisers could attend.

There may be a report on the second mediation session, which went on all day Wednesday. Barger will also discuss awarding of a contract for a monitoring system for the district's 15 schools, although bids have far exceeded the original estimates of cost for the project.

The monitoring system could tie all schools to a central location. The system would detect vandalism, fires and furnace shutdowns.

John Birch Society

Local members of the John Birch Society will present a series of films in Arlington Heights under the title the John Birch Society Film Forum.

The first of the three films will be shown this Friday, Aug. 11 at the home of M. C. McCallum, 1302 E. Clarendon, Arlington Heights. The film, titled "Overview," will be shown at 7:30 p.m.

Other films, titled "Great Pretense" and "Presentation," will be shown at the same address on Aug. 18 and Aug. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

According to a member of the Society, the films pertain to the issues of the upcoming national elections.

Battle Lines Set Again In Fight On Sewage Plant

by BOB CASEY

The lines have been drawn once again for a protracted fight between Des Plaines and the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD). Bitter feelings that welled up this week against the MSD's determination to build a sewage plant on the west side apparently have ended whatever chance existed for any kind of compromise.

The city filed suit yesterday for the second time in six years, asking once again for a court declaration forcing the sanitary district to abide by local zoning ordinances in any effort to construct a treatment plant here.

The sharp and determined opposition expressed Monday at a city council meeting by some officials and Tuesday night at a public confrontation by more than 300 residents has ensured that the city's previously intransigent stance against the plant will stay that way.

For its part, the MSD has shown no indications of giving up on the plant site, a 165-acre property at the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road. The district won a five year court battle against the city's earlier suit and continues to mount an aggressive defense of its choice for the plant location.

With no sign of a compromise in sight, the battle may well turn out with a winner take all victory. If the city wins, the MSD could be forced to go elsewhere.

But if the MSD comes out on top, sweeping aside all remaining legal roadblocks, the city may be left with little or no leverage, little or no ability to gain any concessions in the development of the treatment plant.

An all out fight is apparently what city officials want. They see no need to discuss any aspect of the plant with the sanitary district except in the courtroom.

Tuesday night's public meeting, called to ask MSD officials for a sewer easement onto the plant site, perhaps in return for a city agreement to give up part of a road that runs through the site, was almost canceled at the last minute.

In a dispute the night before at city council, a move to call off the meeting was defeated in a voice vote. Comments from some aldermen indicated that anyone who is perceived to be "soft" on the treatment plant can expect to come in for criticism.

The dispute started when Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), who has long been an outspoken opponent of the plant, questioned the need for Tuesday night's public meeting and then moved to cancel it.

"Are we gaining anything by having this meeting with them in view of the council's position?" Bolek asked.

"What useful purpose legally are we serving by having this meeting?" he said.

It was then disclosed that in response to a letter from the MSD asking the city to give up a portion of Wille Road, Mayor Herbert Behrel and City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi had met briefly with sanitary district officials earlier this year without telling the aldermen.

Coupled with the revelation that further legal action against the MSD, authorized late last year, had not begun, the disclosure set off a barrage of criticism from Ald. Alan Abrams (8th).

"I had no idea there was any delay in filing the suit," said Abrams. Last winter he said, the council gave the go-ahead for whatever legal moves that were available to the city, "and now we hear in August that the mayor and the city attorney have been negotiating with the district and apparently formulating policy."

Abrams implied that Behrel and DiLeonardi had held up filing of the lawsuit while they were negotiating with the MSD behind the back of city council.

DiLeonardi denied Abrams' charge, saying the suit had been drawn up in May but was then slowed because of the need to consult an expert in the legal aspects of home rule powers granted under (Continued on Section 3, Page 3)

WEST SIDE HOMEOWNERS turned out in force Tuesday night making their feelings known to sanitary district officials about a proposed sewage treatment plant at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road. The session was called off after a little more than an hour when it became clear no one was being won over to the opposing point of view.

Do The Jets Seem Less Noisy?

New Take-Off Procedure At O'Hare

A net jet take-off procedure designed to reduce noise over suburbs adjacent to O'Hare Airport was recently started and, according to one Federal Aviation Administration official, area residents seem to like it.

Les Case, an environmental quality officer with the FAA, told the Herald yesterday the new procedure was established Aug. 1 on a nationwide basis strictly for the purpose of noise abatement.

Case said the new plan calls for the aircraft to reach as much altitude as possible within the boundaries of the airport then reduce power and climb slower while over adjacent towns until the plane reaches an altitude high enough so normal climbing power can be resumed with a minimum of noise.

Aircraft out of O'Hare now try to attain an altitude of 1,500 feet while still over the airport, then reduce power to a safe and quiet setting until an altitude of 3,000 feet is attained," Case said.

THE NEW PROCEDURE applies only to take-offs, since planes land with reduced power and are more quiet.

The new procedure has been established primarily for older aircraft.

"The bigger planes with the DC-10 and Lockheed 1011 engines are twice as powerful as the older engines like the DC-8 and Boeing 727, but make half as much noise because of technological developments," Case said.

While noise decibels will be reduced slightly in areas adjacent to the airport, Case said towns five or six miles away may experience a slight increase in noise decibels because of the new procedure.

Local residents apparently believe the new procedure is working because, according to Case, his office has been receiving fewer complaints about aircraft noise over surrounding towns.

Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), a member of the Des Plaines city council's environmental controls committee said the new procedure may be beneficial to Des Plaines residents because it will result in a reduction in the "horrendous" aircraft noise over the city.

"I'm personally delighted to see some effort being made by O'Hare to reduce the noise over the area. For years they refused to do anything about noise abatement," Abrams said.

THE NEW TAKE-OFF procedure is the third step the FAA has taken in recent months to help curb aircraft noise over towns surrounding O'Hare Airport.

Robert Schwank, acting tower chief at O'Hare, told the Herald extended night takeoff procedures are being used as much as possible. These procedures and aircraft over the Northwest tollway and areas west of O'Hare, thus avoiding heavily populated areas in Des Plaines and eastern parts of Mount Prospect.

Schwank said controllers try to start night take-off procedures as early as 9:30 p.m. if possible, and until as late in the morning as traffic will allow.

Schwank said in addition to night take-off procedures, controllers have been trying to disperse departing planes during the day in a number of directions. In the past, most departing planes have followed a pattern which takes them over Des Plaines and eastern parts of Mount Prospect.

BEN SOSEWITZ, MSD general superintendent, put on a vigorous defense of the proposed sewage plant at Tuesday night's meeting.

'Soul' Is Subject Of Sunday Sermon

This Sunday, the subject of "Soul" will be explored at First Church of Christ, Scientist of Des Plaines at 11 a.m. in the church at Laurel and Marion streets. Bible texts will be explained with passages from "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. The Sunday-school welcomes students to the age of 20, and a nursery is also available. All residents are invited.

Oakton Budget To Be Displayed

The tentative 1972-73 budget for Oakton Community College will be displayed at the business office of the college beginning Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 9 a.m.

The tentative budget will be presented to the college board of trustees at the next regular meeting, Tuesday, Aug. 15. A public hearing on the 1972-73 budget will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, September 19.

A program budget for Oakton will also be on display, which will verbally and statistically describe all activities planned for the college for 1972-73.

The budget will be on display daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., until Sept. 19. Copies of the budget will also be made available to all public libraries in Dist. 535, for the convenience of members of the community.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a major reversal of administration defense policies, the Pentagon announced plans for a research program to increase the accuracy and explosive force of U. S. nuclear missile warheads.

The Senate, propelled by the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, passed a tough gun control bill voting to remove an estimated 1 million small, cheap and inaccurate handguns from the American market. The measure which now goes to the House, was approved 68 to 25 after all major attempts to strengthen or weaken it were beaten back by decisive margins. It still faces an uphill fight in the House, however.

Dr. Charles Hurst, president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said in Pittsburgh that the nation's voters will elect a black president of the United States within 16 years.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sued the administration in U. S. District Court, seeking to override President Nixon's pocket veto of a 1970 Kennedy bill to subsidize the training of family doctors.

The State

An 18-year-old youth charged with a series of fires at the John Hancock Center was found "mentally incompetent to stand trial and turned over to the Illinois Department of Mental Health.

The proposed merger of the Illinois Central and Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroads was upheld in a 2-1 decision by federal judges.

The World

The Greek Catholic archbishop of Israel said he has ordered all his churches closed Sunday to protest government refusal to allow Arab Christians to return to northern frontier villages after 24 years.

Boris Spassky played to a draw with Bobby Fischer in the 12th game of the world chess championship. Fischer leads the series 7-5.

Hundreds of Roman Catholic boys and girls, some as young as 10, hurled curses and bricks at British soldiers in an anti-British rampage in Belfast.

The War

Fearing a Communist commando attack similar to the 1968 Tet offensive, South Vietnamese officials moved 600 additional troops into the former imperial capital of Hue as North Vietnamese gunners mounted an attack.

Local Man Heads Drive

Labor Gears To Back Nixon, Ogilvie

by BARRY SIGALE
A major organizational structure is being set up in the suburbs to persuade rank-and-file union members to support President Nixon and Gov. Ogilvie in their bids for reelection in November.

The movement will focus on union members who belong to the Chicago and Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council and on members of other labor organizations sympathetic to the Republican Party.

The voter drive is being established mostly in response to labor's general disaffection with Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, and not with a sudden appreciation of the accomplishments of President Nixon.

The push for Ogilvie is based partially on labor's general view that he has supported some of the key issues they favor. Labor also feels that Democratic challenger Daniel Walker, with his corporate background, would not support its ideas.

A meeting of a committee has been scheduled later this month to formalize plans to reach rank-and-file members of the trades council, which consists of between 150,000 and 200,000 members OF THIS TOTAL membership, about two-third live outside Chicago, and will be the main focal point for the committee, which will concentrate on union members in suburban Cook, Lake, DuPage and Will counties. Other committees will be set up Downstate and in Chicago.

The suburban committee will be chaired by Arthur Kowal of Des Plaines, a special business representative of the Brotherhood of Painter and Allied Trades. It is the painters union, and unions such as those representing operating engineers, carpenters, cement masons, bricklayers, electricians and plumbers, which comprise the trades council.

The committee, according to Kowal, will focus on spreading the word to vote for the two incumbents. Committee members will pass out literature, speak with local labor members, and generally guarantee that people will get out to vote, Kowal said.

The reelection committee will be comprised of about five key people, either community leaders or union members, or both, and the campaign would then be a "mushrooming thing," where 10 people tell 10 more people who tell 10 more people and so on, according to Kowal. An office will be set up in Skokie to handle the committee's business.

The push for Nixon in particular began "when all those Democrats started splitting up the party," said Kowal, himself a Democratic party supporter until now. He referred to Sen. McGovern, Sen. Edmund Muskie, Sen. Hubert Humphrey and others opposing one another in several primaries.

"THE TROUBLE BEGAN when they couldn't unite the party around one or two candidates. And the vice president wasn't screened properly, too."

Kowal added that McGovern is seen as a threat to labor and that it's too late for him to make up what he has lost because "any promises he makes now will be just presidential promises, nothing more."

Kowal said there is a split among labor members, not about whether to vote for McGovern, but whether to vote for Nixon.

"I was at a meeting last night (Monday night) and some people were saying they would vote for Nixon, others said they wouldn't vote for either."

Kowal said the addition of Sargent Shriver to the McGovern ticket wouldn't have much effect on the labor vote.

"Shriver is good in Illinois, he would help unite the party," he said, amending that by saying "it's not Shriver but Kennedy's name that's supported. It would be better though if it was the other way around (Shriver for president, McGovern for vice president)."

Kowal feels that Nixon has done some things that make him at least an acceptable candidate for labor members disenchanted with McGovern.

"I think Nixon has united the country, especially with his visits abroad. Instead of acting like an enemy he has been more friendly. He has almost gotten us out of Vietnam."

About Ogilvie's race against Walker, Kowal said, "Ogilvie is liked. He was disliked because of the state income tax but in favor of expanding coverage of minimum wage laws and has generally done good for the union man. Walker is too big business. I don't think he'll vote for labor. He hasn't given that indication."

Learning Disabilities Tests Offered

Parents who feel their preschool children show a less than normal learning ability can register them for learning disabilities tests this fall in a new Maine Township program.

The tests are part of a pilot project sponsored by the state and being developed by the Maine Township Special Education Program, which is administered by High School Dist. 207.

The district was commissioned by the state to develop a model program for preschoolers after the General Assembly last year amended the Illinois School Code, reducing the minimum age of eligibility for public special education programs from five to three years.

The five-day series of learning disabilities tests for preschoolers scheduled for this fall will include "in-depth" testing in the important areas of physical coordination, socialization, vision, hearing and language, according to Richard Frankle, program director.

INTERESTED PARENTS should register their three-or-four-year-olds at the office of their local Maine Township elementary school district, Frankle said.

The program's offices are located at Dist. 64's Oakton Elementary School in Park Ridge.

The three-year pilot project is designed to develop special education programs for preschoolers. When the project is concluded, the state hopes to use the program developed at Dist. 207 throughout Illinois.

The first year of the project will be spent in developing diagnostic tests for three- and four-year-olds, said Frankle. The second year will be devoted to evaluating the tests and a program for preschoolers will be organized during the third year.

Although no remedial classes for three- and four-year-olds will be available through the program until 1974, the diagnostic tests administered this fall will serve as a guide for teachers when the child enters school. Frankle said counselors will also suggest childcare agencies that may be able to help the child immediately and may prescribe some activities for the child through the parents.

Frankle said research conducted in the program could show that special learning disabilities classes are "not as necessary as we think they are right now." There are two schools of thought, said Frankle. One says children can be placed in special classes with special education teachers or placed in regular classes with a teacher who also is trained in special education.

THERE ARE TWO advantages in putting a child with a learning disability in regular classes, said Frankle. It is less expensive and the child doesn't feel segregated from his peers. Diagnostic testing provided by the new program and teachers who are qualified to work with learning disabilities children can make this method successful, he said.

Staff members on the project include a learning disabilities specialist, a language specialist, a physical therapist, two elementary teachers, a psychologist, social worker, two teacher's aides, two student teachers and a nurse.

The proposal for the model program was prepared by the Maine Township Special Education Program and submitted to the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction by Dist. 207 Supt. Richard Short. A grant award of $185,575 was allocated by the state for the first year of the project.

Parks Seeking Funds For Trees

The Des Plaines Park District has established a Tree Fund and is asking for contributions to replenish the city's parks with trees.

According to a statement released by the park district, a large number of trees have died in the city's parks during the last five years and 19 trees were destroyed in a wind storm that swept across Des Plaines last month.

The park district says it cannot replace trees because of a lack of money and residents wishing to make a tax deductible contribution to the fund are asked to contact the Des Plaines Park District at 296-6106.

Jewish Congregation Accepts Registration

Maine Township Jewish Congregation is accepting registration for the new Nursery School, Hebrew and Sunday School, and Religious High School. Synagogue Membership and High Holiday reservations are also being processed daily at the Congregation office, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. A color brochure is available by calling 297-2006.

Twice-daily services are being recited throughout the summer. Sabbath worship this weekend will be conducted by Rabbi Jay Karzen and Cantor Harry Solowin-chik Friday at 7:30 p.m., Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. (Sundays at 9 a.m.).

The Annual Selichot Night Dance will be Saturday Sept. 2, at 9 p.m. An evening of live music, entertainment and fellowship is planned for the opening event of the season.

New Group Seeks 'Moderate' Role

by JOHN FARLEY

Des Plaines Citizens for a Better Community, a new voice in the debate on low-income housing, was formed in recent weeks to provide a "middle ground" viewpoint, according to Rev. Philip Gronbach, the group's co-chairman.

In an interview Rev. Gronbach said that for too long the only views offered on the question of low and moderate-income housing have been diametrically opposed views.

"We have been given only two alternatives, one totally opposed to low and moderate-income housing and one totally for it," Rev. Gronbach said. "The Des Plaines Citizens for a Better Community was formed to offer a middle ground."

The new disbanded Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC) represented the liberal viewpoint, according to Rev. Gronbach.

"The main issue for the CMCC was that people who work in Des Plaines but live outside of the city should be provided with housing close to their jobs," he said. "The CMCC reasoned that the fact that Des Plaines is a suburb means that it is racist."

Rev. Gronbach said the CMCC was disbanded two months ago when its leader, the Rev. John Petersen, decided not to carry on the crusade for low and moderate-income housing any longer.

IT WAS THE REQUEST of CMCC for city adoption of a five-point resolution favoring development of low-income housing that led to a stormy public hearing last fall. Although the city council turned down the CMCC request, it voted to set up a housing commission which met for the first time this month.

The CMCC's tactics included a march on city hall, where a "litany for racial justice" read by members of the group implored city officials to recognize what they said was the city's responsibility to provide housing for low-income families.

The group at the other end of the spectrum, according to Rev. Gronbach, is the Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate-Income Housing, led by Joseph Botte. Since forming that group, Botte, has been named to the city housing commission.

Rev. Gronbach said Botte's group appears to be opposed to housing in any form. "The only stands they have made so far have been anti-housing," he said.

Rev. Gronbach said his group takes the middle ground between these two opposing views.

"The CBC sees the need for low and moderate-income housing for those people already living in Des Plaines," Rev. Gronbach said. "Property values have risen so high that some residents can no longer afford to live here, and in many cases young couples, the sons and daughters of residents, cannot afford to settle down here."

Rev. Gronbach said the CBC sees its main function in aiding the housing commission to reach its conclusions about the need for low and moderate-income housing in Des Plaines.

"WE SEE THE NEED for low and moderate-income housing, but we will wait for the commission to do its work," Rev. Gronbach said. "We will provide the commission with assistance such as speakers and experts to advise on the subject."

One of the problems faced by the CBC is the fear created in the community at the mere discussion of low and moderate-income housing, according to Rev. Gronbach. "Just raising the issue is threatening to a lot of people," he said. "Mention of the subject brings to mind the conditions in Cabrini Green for many people."

Rev. Gronbach said that as long as residents are detached from the decision making process the fear will remain. "The city should be able to regulate low and moderate-income housing," he said. "The people would feel more secure."

Gronbach would give no specific figures on the membership of the CBC, but he did say that it was made up primarily of church members in the community. But Gronbach, who is associate pastor at Trinity Lutheran Church, emphasized that the CBC is not a church group. "We are not a church or ecumenical group, we are a community group," he said.

Brentwood, Ridge Knolls Boundaries May Change

Attendance boundaries for Brentwood and High Ridge Knolls in Des Plaines as well as Robert Frost and John Jay schools in Mount Prospect may be changed for the coming year.

James Erviti, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 superintendent, outlined the proposed changes in a letter July 26 to principals at Holmes, Dempster, Frost, Jay, Brentwood, Forest View and High Ridge Knolls schools.

The changes were outlined in the letter as:

"John Jay Area: Remove the DeMucci Apartment complex located along Golf Road and attach the area bounded on the east by Oakwood Drive, on the south by Palm Drive, to Tamarack (Drive) and Tamarack (Drive) to Thornwood (Lane), and along the line of Thornwood Lane to Goebbert Road, and the west by Goebbert Road to Forest View School. Remove the area of Gate House and Village Green (apartments), the area west of Goebbert Road and south of Seeger Road and attach it to Forest View.

"Robert Frost (School) Area (Remove the area east of Linneman Road and east of a line described by the center of South Church Road from Linneman Road to Ash Drive, and then along the rear lot line of homes facing Lancaster Avenue to Golf Road. (This will detach all of Diamond Point (subdivision), all of the Huntington Commons (development), and all of Pickwick (housing area), plus some older homes)."

"ATTACH TO Brentwood (School) all the territory north of a line from Linneman Road along the center of Huntington Commons Road to Elmhurst Road."

"Attach to High Ridge Knolls (School) all territory east of Linneman (Road), south of the center line of Huntington Commons, (Road), west of Elmhurst (Road), and north of Dempster (Street)."

The letter states, "All changes are effective August 15, 1972."

Free transportation will be furnished to the K-5 buildings from areas remote to the schools and where hazardous street crossings are involved.

Students who would shift to different schools may apply to stay in their present school under the district's open transfer policy. Under this policy, a student may ask to attend a school outside his attendance area.

Erviti said that none of the children now attending Jay School and only about 20 children attending Frost School will be affected by the changed boundaries.

In the letter, Erviti said, "I believe the junior highs will experience no change."

The changes were made in anticipation of residential construction now going on which will bring more students into the present attendance boundaries than the schools can handle.

Under the Illinois School Code, all changes in school boundaries must be approved by the school board. Erviti said the proposed changes were an administrative decision. He said the school board had been advised of the proposed changes.

7 High-Points Of School Board Parley Are Reported

In addition to approving the 1972-73 budget and awarding the unit districting feasibility study, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board at Monday night's meeting:

—Approved educational fund disbursements of $14,374.50 and purchase orders of $1,967.20.

—Approved bidding for purchases of Plexiglas.

For Better Club News

For clubs that have resiged their president's name, address and phone number in the Herald offices, personal reminders are in the mail regarding Paddock Publications' annual publicity workshops for presidents and publicity chairmen.

However, all club presidents and news chairmen of all area women's groups whose news appears in the women's pages are invited. All that is necessary is to call your reservations in to 394-2300, Extension 233. In Des Plaines the number to call is 297-6633, ask for Eleanor Rives.

Workshops are scheduled for Thursday morning, Sept. 7, and Friday morning, Sept. 8.

The Thursday workshop will be held at the Plum Grove Club, Plum Grove Estates, Palatine. The Friday workshop will be held in the Northwest Suburban YMCA, Northwest Highway, Des Plaines.

The women may attend whichever workshop is most convenient for them.

THE WORKSHOPS are designed to aid the large number of club publicity chairmen and presidents seeking more and better publicity for their organizations.

The program includes discussions on copy preparation, what is "news," hints on writing, deadlines, how to submit news copy, writing publicity to interest readers, use of names, importance of accuracy and an explanation of Paddock Publications' publicity policies.

Pictures, too, will be thoroughly covered with discussion and slides.

Each workshop will also include a mid-morning "coffee and" break.

As we closed our reminders, "Publicity is our job, too, and we need your help. Please come."

Dear Dorothy: The new regulation requiring garments over a certain price to have permanent labels attached telling how they should be taken care of — laundered, dry cleaned or professionally dry cleaned — is a wonderful idea for the homemaker. But what about those of us who are home sewers? It's just as important that we know what to do with the garments we make.—Mabel Hunter

Help is on the way. One of the country's largest mills is already printing on its fabrics all pertinent information on caring for the finished garment.

Dear Dorothy: A friend brought me two wood bowls from Hawaii. Can you tell me how to care for them? Can you use soap and water on them?—Stella B.

The ordinary wood bowl can be sponged out with a barely damp sponge, then dried and stored in a dry place. If a bowl is being used for salads, the same treatment can be used. However, many like to use a gentle soap and water treatment and rinse and dry immediately. Cleaned immediately after use and never soaked in water, most wood bowls will give years of service — with no other maintenance.

Tip to Brides: If you're picking lemons for juice, be sure they are smooth skinned and glossy. A slightly green tint on the skin has no effect on the juiciness.

Dear Dorothy: Someone told me to spread baking soda on the bottom of the kitten box before putting on the usual granules kept there. Seems to me there is now far less odor than before.—Jinny K.

Baking soda has been around for a long time. I'm constantly surprised by how many new uses are found for it.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

On WTCU Program

Miss Sarah Ward, a resident of Des Plaines at 290 Beau Drive, will be one of the key speakers Wednesday, Aug. 16, when the WTCU holds its 99th annual program at Chautauqua, N.Y.

Miss Ward, a Wheeling high school teacher, is former national secretary of the Youth Temperance Council.

The Consumer

by Monica Wick

Any altruistic idea or movement inevitably and ultimately attracts profit-seekers, and consumerism is no exception.

Part of the problem is that it is often very difficult to perceive true motives and thus to distinguish between individuals sincerely interested in helping others and those with dollar signs in their eyes.

I tend to suspect the latter is the case with a newly-marketed product called "Telagripe Complaint Kit." The brainchild of two Boston businessmen who have incorporated themselves as "Infact Systems," the kit is basically a magazine that tells you how to complain most effectively, whom in general to complain to, lists sources for information such as names of company presidents, and includes some 30 "telagripes" with carbon paper and gummed sealers.

The "telagripe" itself is simply a printed form which simplifies and spells out, in fill-in-the-blank format, what you should tell the party to whom you are complaining.

As the press release accompanying the kit aptly points out, many complaints go unsatisfied because people do not know how to compose a letter which communicates clearly, unemotionally and briefly what the problem is. In addition, they often do not know where to write or to whom they should complain.

My gripe with "Telagripe" is that, for $1.29, you get information that is readily available for free, and you don't get what is most useful — specific names and addresses. You also get the telagripes, which may or may not be cheaper than your own stationery, and which will insult the intelligence of many. Even those persons who really panic at writing a letter won't be helped that much by the form, which has to be very general and thus still requires the writer to figure out what to say and how to say it.

Let this judgment be too harsh, let us note that more uniformly does sometimes aid the recipient of complaints in processing them. And, if "Telagripe" helps some consumers in obtaining redress of grievances, it probably can't be all bad.

But it is far from an essential tool, and I can think of better investments for my $1.29.

The National Safety Council warns that sleeping bags, if not cared for properly, can be hazardous. The biggest danger is from chemical residues that may remain after dry-cleaning and which, the council says, can cause serious illness and even death. To avoid any harmful effects, air sleeping bags thoroughly for 24 hours after cleaning. They should also be aired after eating or carrying food in them, since lingering food odors may attract bears and other animals while you are camping.

National Consumers Union (NCU), a local organization that keeps an eye on consumer problems relating to food, recently changed its name to National Consumers United, to avoid confusion with Consumers Union, publishers of Consumer Reports. NCU, headquartered in Evanston, is currently involved in investigations of short-weighting of food and nutritional labeling of packaged food.

A Reminder To Brides

With summer weddings in full swing, the Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting the news. Full information is printed on forms available at the Herald Offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available at the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

The Potted Shred by Mary E. Cook

My friend, the bird lady, and I make a cute couple. On any nature stroll she is always looking up toward the treetops; I've got my eyes directed toward the ground looking at the plants. Neither is watching where she's going.

It's no wonder we got lost in the woods recently. Five hours in the woods isn't all that unpleasant, but I started to get concerned about the bird lady's 4-year old daughter, a 30-pound cutie who would have been the first to show signs of fatigue, heat and mostly — hunger.

So I collected wintergreen berries along the way, just in case.

DAY LILY

Accent. Cook until the blossoms are tender. Purists serve this with rice and tea with fortune or almond cookies for dessert.

Also the unopened blossoms can be dipped in egg batter and quickly fried, like potato chips.

Some people wonder if acorns are edible. They surely are — red, black, white and chestnut acorns. They should be shelled and roasted or boiled for two hours, changing the water as it discolors. Dipped in clarified sugar after boiling or roasting, they make good TV snacks.

Bon appetit, wild food gatherers!

MILKWEED

Perhaps you've never been lost in the woods or had occasion to eat wild food.

THERE IS a lot of free merchandise in every field, forest, swamp and vacant lot. Most housewives are game for a sale at the local supermarket, but wouldn't think of going out and collecting some wild food free-for-the-taking. It's too much bother, it's too foreign to their taste, or it's too risky because they don't know what is and isn't edible.

Just recently I made a casserole of milkweed buds, which could be compared to broccoli. I thought it offered a new dimension to the usual vegetable fare I serve with dinner.

Should you want to try preparing the unopened flower buds of milkweed, here's how:

Pick the little beaded heads in light clusters that are in season in early August. The clusters which have a tinge of red to them are all right, but try to pick the youngest buds. Avoid picking them if the flowers are open already.

MILKWEED HAS an extremely bitter principle that permeates every part of the plant. It must be removed and the only way is with boiling water. Always start by plunging the buds in vigorously boiling water. (Starting in cold water and then bringing it to a boil will set in the bitter taste. You don't want that.) Change the boiling water three or four times, and after the last rinse, boil the buds another 10 minutes, then butter, salt, pepper and serve.

I was so pleased with the taste that I quick-froze a batch of the cooked buds for future use.

The shoots, leaves and pods of the milkweed are also edible, but the buds are probably preferred by most people who have tried working with milkweed.

Another interesting edible of roadside origin is the day lily. Orientals use and appreciate the day lily, and its dried buds can be purchased in Chinatown (Cermak Road and Wentworth Avenue, Chicago).

IT IS EASIER to pick your own. Fry half a pound of fresh pork, cut into bite-sized pieces, until brown. Add a quart of water, two tablespoons of soy sauce and a teaspoon of salt. Cook about an hour or until the meat is tender. Then add a cup of withered blooms and one teaspoon of

A Paddock Review

'Only Game In Town' A Winner

It starts out as the same old thing... a schmaltzy comedy that oozes trite fluff and utilizes every sexually keyed line that has ever elicited a laugh.

But "The Only Game In Town," the comedy that opened last week at Arlington Park Theatre, rights itself midway in the first act and turns out to be very good entertainment fare.

What begins as the epitome of the frivolous boy meets girl situation, heralded by an early bedroom scene, moves into a play with greater substance.

ATTENTION PICKS up in the last scene of the first act with the entrance of Ray Rayner, who isn't on stage for long, but leaves a most memorable effect behind anyhow.

And the cast of three, Peter Marshall, Lois Nettleton and Rayner, is perhaps the biggest reason that "The Only Game In Town" breaks into an accelerated gait after almost a dead start.

Marshall's entrance opening night was rather stiff and over rehearsed causing the audience to feel almost as uncomfortable as he looked. However, the situation was quickly alleviated as the play progressed and Marshall's overall performance was very good, proving he can hold his own on live stage as well as he hosts television's quiz game, "Hollywood Squares."

It is quite interesting to see Marshall off the set and on stage as Joe Grady, a devil-may-care chap with an eye for a good time and a vocabulary of unpredictable off-color humor and witty remarks that often defy definition. But if they're silly, leastways they are also original.

"GOOD-BYE," he says as he leaves Fran in the morning following their meeting the night before. "It's been real bleh!" Another time he offers the advice, "A bird in the hand is better than getting worms."

Marshall's awkwardness in the beginning is buried between the layers of antics and charm he feeds into his role.

Co-starring in the comedy is Lois Nettleton whose performance in "The Only Game In Town" equals her last appearance at Arlington Park, when she received a Jeff nomination for her portrayal of Lizzie Curry in "The Rainmaker."

In this play, she is Fran Walker, a lonely Las Vegas chorus girl in her late twenties who sees time running out as she waits for her lover of 10 years to fulfill his promises to seek a divorce and rescue her from her mundane stalemated existence.

LOIS IS ABLE to create a sensitive bond between actor and audience that just doesn't let go. It is easy to experience Fran's anxieties and sympathize with her problems. Once again Lois Nettleton is able to attract the full attention of her audience.

Particularly excellent is the highly charged confrontation between Lois Nettleton and Ray Rayner, the older wealthy lover who has come back after considerable time, to offer Fran the world she has all this time been patiently awaiting. But now, she is no longer sure she wants it.

The ending is a typical "They lived happily ever after" one. But though the turn of events is easily discernible, the final curtain does not ring down on a scene that has been exceedingly sugar-coated. That is quite important. It guards the audience's dignity and intelligence too.

American Legion Tournament Opens Today

by PAUL LOGAN
Team contrasts, timing and setting make today's afternoon game of the state tournament THE featured attraction.

Following "warmup" contests with Barrington and Giles (9 a.m.) and Limestone and Belleville (12:30), host Post Arlington Heights takes on Kankakee at 4 p.m. Of this Recreation Park tripleheader, the latter game promises the winner the favorite's spot in the tourney. The reason — the winner gets a day of rest on Friday while the others are in action.

With this vital victory in mind, it's time to mention the contrasts existing in this matchup:

First, the managers. Arlington's Lloyd Meyer has been guiding legion ball clubs for 17 years; Kankakee's John Westerhof is in his rookie year. However, that does not mean Westerhof's inexperience. Four years in Pony League play and eight in Little League in baseball-crazy Kankakee give him good credentials.

It has been said that in a tight game the experienced coach can make the difference. Meyer is thoroughly experienced in this regard, especially from the 1965 season. That was that last time Arlington won in the state tourney and Post 208 won it and then the regional before bowing out at the nationals.

Second, the players. For this, let's turn to the coaches and their analysis.

"We've had a pretty good season," says Westerhof of the team's 24-7 record. "We've had very few problems."

"My team averages 16 years of age. They're young but they can hold their own. The thing that hurt us down here are the two semi-pro teams. If we had those guys, we would be loaded for bear."

Despite the lack of many 18-year-olds, KKK is still loaded. Six of the nine starters are hitting over .300 with the team average nearly that high. Three of the big sticks are off the Eastbridge team that went as far as the state semifinals last spring — first baseman Jeff Devine, third baseman L. C. Nutall and shortstop-pitcher Steve Scott. The latter has accounted for 10 victories.

Starting will be ace hurler Tom Kilgus, 11-1 on the year. He had been bothered by a sore arm in the Danville Divisional Tournament last weekend, but Westerhof says he'll be ready.

"I've got a lot of material," says Meyer of his men. "If you've got the material, it's up to the coach to get it out. I feel — up to this point — we're ready. If we lose, then I've not done my job as a coach."

His first challenge is to get the maximum effort out of Mark Leonhard. Arlington's best with a 14-1 record.

"Not taking anything away from (Jim) Hopkins, but he (Leonhard) can come back within two days," explains Meyer of his husky hurler.

The rest of his lineup looks like this, according to batting order:

This is an all-righty hitting lineup — the same as Kankakee. This would seem to be an advantage to right-hander Leonhard, but Westerhof doesn't think so.

"I don't know what kind of pitchers they've got up there," he says. "We've been having a lot of trouble with lefties but we've been killing righties lately. We hit Champaign righties (four triples and three doubles) hard all day."

In that championship game Sunday, KKK's Devine won the game in the ninth with two on and one out with a triple. The final score ended up 12-9. Their other two wins came over Champaign (9-1) and Gillespie (6-4).

Arlington, which received a berth directly to the tourney because of the host post rule, kept sharp last week by playing the Northwest Rebels, a collegiate team. Only two of the four scheduled games were played because of the weather.

The Rebels won 4-2 behind the two-hit pitching of Mike Pettenuzzo, former Herald Athlete of the Year. Keying the victory was a two-run homer by Mark Frase, a former Arlington Legion star. Hopkins, who is scheduled to pitch the second tourney game, was the hard luck loser. He yielded just five hits while fanning 10.

Leonhard warmed up for today's start by holding down the Rebels for a 2-1 victory. Pettenuzzo provided the only firepower with a blast of about 400 feet over the center field fence.

Arlington tied the game when Broderick scored after a possible double play failed to develop. Then Post 208 won it with a delayed double steal with Harth scoring and Broderick drawing the throw.

Meyer liked what he saw in those two practice games. He is optimistic for a little more hitting, but he's optimistic.

"I think the whole team is concentrating a lot more," says Meyer. "Instead of losing 3-2, we're going to start winning 3-2."

"It came too easy too early," he said of the 12-game winning streak. That romp at the beginning of the season left Arlington with a sparkling 14-2 record.

Meyer's men went 13-9 the rest of the season, but many of those losses were by just a single run.

"Every time they've come to play, they've won."

This afternoon's contest has to be one of those days or the Kankakee youngsters just might answer their coach's question, "We don't have any idea how far we can go?"

Mid-Teen Hopes For Conclusion

The Des Plaines Mid-Teen Baseball League's tournament has been thrown into organizational chaos by the persistent rains which have pelted the area recently.

The best-of-three series, originally scheduled to open July 30 but eventually pushed up to last Friday, finally began with American League champion Allen's posting a victory over National League standard bearer First National. Games scheduled for Sunday, then Monday, and finally Tuesday were all postponed by rain and/or wet grounds.

Mid-Teen Commissioner Al Carstens said Tuesday night he hoped to get the second game in Wednesday night. If the weather was cooperative and the contest was played, the tournament will have ended if Allen's won. That would have been Allen's second straight win, enough to lay claim to the title.

But if First National won, the tourney is tied at 1-1 and in that case, Carstens isn't sure what will happen to the third game.

The problem is that Des Plaines is slated to participate in a local all-star tournament opening today. This would conflict with the Allen's-First National series since several all-stars play for one of the two squads.

Des Plaines will face Elk Grove at Southwest Park in the first game of the four-day, four-team, double-elimination setup. Park Ridge and Oak Park collide in the other match at Northwest Park.

After the all-star tourney, Carstens said he would be faced with several players having to take family vacations and this would complicate any attempts to reschedule the third game of the league tournament, should a third game be necessary.

However, Carstens will have to come up with some sort of decision if First National defeated Allen's Wednesday.

Northwest 'Y' Offers Skin, Scuba Diving

Right now there are 75 men and women involved in the scuba diving program at Northwest Suburban YMCA. The course is run on a 12-week basis continually each year.

Scuba diving averages at least 70 non-members and members per course, with 10 to 15 instructors. The instructors are certified under the National YMCA Aquatic program and volunteer their time and effort to make the Scuba program the success it is today.

Scuba, which stands for Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus, permits anyone to enjoy the thrills of exploration, travel, and photography of the world beneath the sea. Many interested scuba divers make their living as oceanographers or volunteers for a search recovery unit at fire departments.

At Northwest Suburban the course is divided into two parts — six weeks of skin diving and six weeks of scuba diving. Skin diving participants learn to use masks, fins, and snorkels properly, in scuba they learn how to use a tank of compressed air, a regulator, and related safety equipment.

Scuba equipment allows the swimmer to remain under water for varying periods of time, depending on tank volume and depth of dives.

At Northwest Suburban 'Y' there is a scuba club called the Narcosis Knights. Any interested scuba diver is more than welcome to join the club. Most of the YMCA scuba instructors belong to the club.

Each year they take diving trips to different areas. This year they are going to British Honduras, island of Cosumel in Mexico, Hawaii and the Bahamas.

Anyone who is interested in becoming a "scuba-buff" should visit Northwest Suburban YMCA and register for the next scuba session, which begins Sept. 15 from 7 to 10 p.m. There is a whole new world waiting for you in scuba diving, everyone is invited to join the fun.

The Northwest Suburban YMCA is located at 300 E. Northwest Hwy., in Des Plaines. For more information call 296-3376.

Tennis Tourney Coming

More than 500 hopefuls are expected to enter the 12th annual tennis tournament Labor Day weekend, with trophies for first and second offered in each level of competition.

Official entry blanks can be clipped from Tuesday and Thursday editions of Paddock Publications during August, or can be secured from Mel Timmons, president of Arlington Heights Tennis Club. Entry blank with check for entry fees attached must be received at the Paddock office in Arlington Heights by August 28, 1972.

ENTRY FEES include $1.00 per entry for each of the adult divisions; and in the children's divisions $1.00 entry fee entitles participant to compete in two different divisions. Tournament is a limited entry affair, so it is advisable to send in entries as soon as possible.

Divisions of competition include:

Harper May Split Seams By 1980

by WANDALYN RICE

Harper College faces the possibility of being 50 per cent short of building space by 1980 unless more buildings are authorized by the state, college administrators told the board of trustees Friday.

As part of a report on long-range planning during a two-day-long board session, administrators told the board they are drawing up justifications for additional space in hopes of getting state approval for additional buildings.

The State of Illinois furnishes a substantial portion of the money for construction by junior colleges and so must approve building allocations.

Harper is now beginning construction on music and science buildings and has preliminary approval for vocational education and physical education facilities from the Illinois Junior College Board. The junior college board's approval must be finally approved by the state legislature.

EVEN IF THE Legislature does approve those additional buildings, administrators said, it will not be enough for the college to keep up with projected enrollment.

The board also heard how college officials are trying to increase efficiency and use of staff by increasing class size and moving to a lecture plus discussion group format for many classes.

Clarence Shauer, vice president of academic affairs, said the lecture class with a related discussion section is now being used in accounting, psychology, history and sociology. In accounting classes last spring, he said, lectures were held once a week and averaged 146 students and discussion sections were held twice a week and averaged 23 students.

He said the increase in the number of lecture classes has enabled the college to keep its average class size up and its costs down. "The loss of one student, over-all in average class size on campus costs us $70,000," he said.

In addition, he said more efforts are being made to expand self-teaching classes. Typing this year was taught to some students using tapes that could be checked out of the resource center.

SCHAUER SAID educators do not yet have research showing the most effective class size for any given field, but said one study has shown "if we just want to dispense information it doesn't matter how many we have in a class."

He also said there seems to be agreement that discussion sections should not exceed 30 to 35 students.

College Pres. Robert Lahti told the board some students are already being turned away from programs because of lack of space. He said a report on the numbers turned away this fall from all college programs will be available soon.

In another report, Lahti described the college's program for training administrators and told the board he believes it will increase efficiency and help the college keep up with rapid growth.

UNDER THE PROGRAM, administrators receive training in management skills similar to that offered by private industry, Lahti said. The system differs from standard practice in educational institutions, he said, in which "we usually get administrator out of the class room."

He said usually a good teacher is chosen for an administrative position and then "he is suddenly in charge of evaluation and budget, but he has no more skills than he had the year before when he was just a damn good teacher."

He explained the management development program at Harper is designed "to give those guys a chance to succeed." As a result of the program, he said, "We in administration share a common language. I think the program has been very successful in the minds of the administrators."

Synagogue Prepares For Rosh Hashanah

The Ram's Horn — Shofar — is being sounded each morning at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 6800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, following the daily Minyan at 7:30 a.m., Sundays at 9 a.m.

This ancient biblical instrument is blown in keeping with the tradition that one month prior to Rosh Hashanah the Congregation be prepared for the Jewish New Year through the Shofar melody. Daily evening Minyan is at 7:30 p.m. in the Synagogue Chapel.

The new MTJC nursery school will officially open this fall. Registration for all departments of the religious school can be made daily at the Synagogue office. High Holiday reservations are also being accepted. For membership information and color brochure call 297-2066.

Maine West Book Sale Dates Changed

Book sales at Maine West High School will be held Aug. 15 to 24. Seniors will buy their books Aug. 15 and 16, Juniors Aug. 17 and 18, sophomores Aug. 21 and 22 and freshmen Aug. 23 and 24.

The dates of the book sales were incorrectly listed in yesterday's Herald as a result of a mistake in a press statement released by school officials.

Books will be sold in the B-wing gymnasium at Maine West from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., closing during the noon lunch hour. Students who will be out of town during the regular sale period may buy their books Aug. 28 and 29.

Jacket Is Stolen

A $75 suit jacket was stolen from an unlocked auto last week while the auto's owner, a real estate broker, was taking photographs of nearby property.

John Stock of 725 N. Northwest Hwy. told police his auto was parked on Golf Road, 300 feet west of Rand Road, when the jacket was stolen from his auto.

County Coroner's Inability To Carry Out Reforms Explained

by ROGER CAPETTINI
The Cook County Coroner's Office has tried to carry out the promises for reform of the office made in February, a spokesman for Coroner Andrew Toman said yesterday. "But our hands are tied."
The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the reforms "would be to our advantage," but added the office has been largely unsuccessful for various reasons.
The statements by the coroner's spokesman followed remarks made to the Cook County board Monday by a spokesman for a citizen's group, alleging that Dr. Toman "never intended to fulfill his public promises for across-the-board reform."
At the county board meeting, Mary Powers of Winnetka, speaking for a group known as Citizen's Alert, said Dr. Toman promised, in February, to use volunteer attorneys as special deputy coroners. Mrs. Powers said the coroner also promised to summon coroner's jurors from the county's list of citizens eligible for jury duty.

"TO DATE, Dr. Toman has never asked any of these attorneys to serve," Mrs. Powers said. "Coroner Toman has yet to summon his first juror. The same patronage 'employees' still serve on all coroner's juries."
The spokesman for Dr. Toman yesterday conceded Mrs. Powers' statements were "accurate to a point." He said since the coroner agreed to use special deputy coroners from the list of 30 volunteer lawyers for "sensitive" cases, only one special deputy was used and he was not on the list.

That special deputy, attorney Martin Gerber, was used by Toman for the inquest into the death of Cornell Fitzpatrick, shot by a policeman in a Chicago high school.
The spokesman said Dr. Toman did not use the volunteer list in that case because he didn't know if the volunteers are capable of conducting an inquest. He said Gerber was chosen because "He did such a good job on the Black Panther inquest."
Dr. Toman's aide said the coroner has agreed to select a deputy from the volunteer list for a "sensitive" inquest, scheduled for Aug. 23, into the death of Edward Dolberry. Dolberry, who allegedly killed his brother, reportedly was shot 12 times by three policemen who confronted him shortly after the alleged murder.

THE SPOKESMAN said Dr. Toman has requested a special deputy in this case because it was requested by a citizen's organization. "Unless someone requests a special deputy," the spokesman said, "we have no way of knowing if a case is sensitive or not."
Referring to Mrs. Powers' statements that Dr. Toman promised to summon coroner's jurors from the county's list of citizens eligible for circuit court jury duty, the coroner's aide said the coroner cannot, legally and practically, adopt that system.
The spokesman said Harold G. Ward, presiding judge of the circuit court's law division who also controls the selection and use of jurors, has told the coroner state statutes prohibit the use of circuit court jurors outside the court.

Judge Ward also explained to the Herald that jurors for the circuit court are summoned on a countywide basis, without regard to their residence. Coroner's juries, on the other hand, are required by state statute to be summoned from the vicinity in which the death occurred.
DR. TOMAN's aide said that in order to set up a similar system for summoning jurors for the coroner's office, the coroner would have to go to great expense, both in money and in time, that the office is not able to provide.
The spokesman said, "Everyone thinks it's a beautiful idea." He said, however, it would be difficult to obtain any more money from the county board for such a system, and that the best chance for developing the system would come in the form of new legislation pending in Springfield. He said a bill which would enable the coroner's office to draw jurors from the circuit court never got out of committee in the last session.

The coroner's spokesman said, however, that Dr. Toman has agreed to seek volunteer jurors for the Dolberry inquest from the jurors' room in the circuit court. He emphasized, however, that those volunteers would have to reside within the vicinity of the death in order to serve.

Start Contempt Proceedings Against Panther Survivor

by PAMELA REEVES
A judge started contempt of court proceedings Wednesday against a survivor of the 1969 police raid on a Black Panther apartment who refused to testify at the trial of Cook County State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan.
Blair Anderson, 20, one of seven Panthers who survived the Dec. 4, 1969, police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed, also refused to give any reasons for not testifying.
"If I stated my reason, that would be just as harmful to me as if I agreed to testify," Anderson told Circuit Court Judge Philip J. Romiti.
Anderson was allowed to consult an attorney after his initial refusal, but he continued to refuse to talk after the conference. He said he had not informed the attorney of his decision, and refused to change his mind even after Romiti ordered him to testify.
Romiti said since Anderson refused without a stated reason, "I think it's obviously in direct contempt of the court and I think that the proper documents be prepared."
ANDERSON WAS taken back to the Cook County Jail, where he is currently awaiting trial on charges of armed robbery and aggravated kidnapping stemming from an incident in May, 1971.
Prosecution attorneys said Anderson's refusal may be due to a statement which he allegedly made about the raid and which was discovered July 22 in the files of a Black Panther attorney.
In the statement, Anderson is quoted as saying he had a shotgun in his hands the morning of the raid, and he accuses another Panther of firing a gun at police during the raid.

The statement was one of four which the Panthers purportedly gave to their attorneys about two weeks after the raid, and which were discovered accidentally last month by a prosecution attorney who was looking through a Black Panther attorney's files for other evidence.
ROMITI HAS not ruled on the authenticity of the statements, which contradict testimony the Panthers gave to a county grand jury. That jury later indicted Hanrahan and 13 other law enforcement officers on charges of conspiring to block prosecution of the raiding policemen by covering up evidence and planting false evidence.

Raid survivors Harold Bell, Branda Harris and Louis Truelock, who also purportedly made statements admitting they handled weapons during the raid, are also scheduled to testify.

Deborah Johnson, who was sleeping next to Hampton during the raid, finished testimony Wednesday morning, and the rest of the day was spent mostly in long recesses because Bell and Harris, the next prosecution witnesses scheduled, did not show up in court.

State Supreme Court To Review School Funding Issue

by WANDALYN RICE
Last March, the Cook County Board of School Trustees should have had an election — but nobody came.

No one filed petitions for the two vacancies that were to be filled during the regular primary election. As a result, no ballots were prepared and no election was held.

The board of county school trustees has seven members and is responsible for ruling on annexations and boundary changes proposed by existing school districts and on petitions to form new school districts.

If any dual school districts (districts with elementary and high schools in separate systems) want to consolidate into a unit district, their petitions must go to the county school trustees.

County Supt. Richard Martwick said yesterday the remaining members of the board have asked for an opinion on how to fill the two vacancies from the Illinois Attorney General.

"IT'S BEEN A couple of months since we asked for the opinion," Martwick said, "and we have not received it." He said the two board members who had planned to retire after the election have remained on the board while awaiting the opinion.

Once the opinion is handed down by the attorney general, Martwick said, the board will probably either appoint two new members or allow the two former members to continue to serve until the next election.

If the board is told to appoint new members, Martwick said, it will probably ask for applicants for the job and for recommendations from organizations like the Illinois Association of School Boards.

Members of the board of school trustees serve without pay.

Even though the board's status is uncertain now because no opinion has been presented on the status of the former members, Martwick said, "I don't anticipate any problems with any decisions that might be made by the board. The two members have agreed to serve as long as necessary."

The two whose terms expired in April are Elsie Jacobson, the board president from Oak Park, and James W. Dugdale of Evanston.

Judge Rules On Investing Funds

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has ruled Cook County Treas. Bernard J. Korzen cannot legally invest $13 million in private funds held by his office.

Judge John C. Fitzgerald dismissed a suit filed by law partners Robert Sklodowski of Park Ridge and Lawrence Gabrielle of Mount Prospect which had sought to force Korzen and Circuit Court Clerk Matthew Danaher to deposit the funds in interest-bearing bank accounts.

The suit filed by Sklodowski — a Republican currently in an election race with Danaher — arose after charges last spring from the Better Government Association about the funds held by Kor-zen's office.

Korzen maintained and the court ruled funds held in the treasurer's office including money awarded for the condemnation of private land, money deposited by the probate court, and returnable bail bond money are legally private funds.

KORZEN SAID yesterday the court findings sustained his position that he cannot legally invest the private funds.

More than $151 million in public funds held by Korzen's office is currently in interest-bearing accounts, he said.

Korzen says he will welcome an anticipated appeal of the decision so a legal precedent may be set in the case for future years.

The charges the county was losing interest by not investing the condemnation, probate and bail bond money came at the same time as charges that county funds in the non-interest bearing accounts had been deposited in banks which had strong political connections.

The banks holding the funds had connections with numerous officials including County Board Pres. George Dunne; George Dunne Jr.; Michael Daley, son of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley; Chicago Ald. Thomas Kean, and County commissioners Floyd Fuller and Charles Benk.

Kennedy Charged With Murder

The man accused of stabbing two area teenagers has been charged with the murder of a 14-year-old girl in Union City, Calif., and will soon be charged with the death of another teenager in that city.

Law enforcement officers in Union City held a press conference yesterday reporting the latest development in the arrest of Weldon Mead Kennedy, 28. Kennedy is currently being held in a Washakie, Wyo., county jail for the stabbings of two youths Thursday night.

Russell Hughes, 17, of Palatine and Daniel Kotel, 19, of Mount Prospect are recovering from stab wounds in a Wyoming hospital after Kennedy allegedly attacked them. Kennedy is charged with aggravated assault and battery in the incident.

CALIFORNIA LAW enforcement officers said Kennedy admitted killing Vicki Lynn Iselin, 14, and Mario W. Oliver, 15, both of Union City. Oliver's body was found in late July, and Miss Iselin's body was discovered under a house last week.

The officers said Kennedy also claimed responsibility for the death of an 18-year-old girl in South Lake Tahoe, Calif., July 4. El Dorado County officials said the death was not confirmed and South Lake Tahoe police officers have flown to Worland, Wyo., to seek further details of Kennedy's claim that he killed the girl and threw her body in the lake.

Authorities said another crime Kennedy claimed committing was the bludgeoning of Marilyn Burges, 25, in the coastal city of Monterey July 5. Miss Burges was attacked on a Monterey beach early in the morning and her purse containing $2.58 was stolen.
